Little Known Cuban New President

Political Upheaval Places Castro At New Peak Of Power

HAVANA (UPI) — A man scarcely known outside of Cuba took the oath of office at Cuba's new president in the early hours today after a political upheavel which ousted President Manuel Urrutia Lleo and catapulted Fidel Castro to a new peak of power.

Castro announced he was withdrawing his own resignation as premier after a four-hour speech in which he accused Urrutia of near-treason.

Named to take Urrutia's place was Dr. Osvaldo Dorticos Torrado, cabinet members credited with drawing up the revolutionary regime's laws and decrees, including death penalties for counter-revolutionaries and those who opposed Castro's land reforms.

GIVEN ARMED GUARD

Urrutia was given an armed guard for his own protection and moved with his family into the home of his brother-in-law, Lincoln Ilaguno, in suburban Bauta.

Today it was learned that early this morning unidentified persons ransacked the $35,000 home Urrutia had purchased for himself in suburban Biltmore and which was described by Castro last night as the first source of conflict between the two.

RECEIVED $100,000

Urrutia as president received the same $100,000 annual pay as Batista, but Castro said last night he considered the purchase of the house "immoral."

After the explosive hours of last night, Havana returned to normal today.

GUST OF WIND FLOPS SEAPLANE; PILOTS PULLED FROM WATER

A strong gust of wind overturned a seaplane taxiing for a take-off from Richardson Bay at 6:50 p.m. yesterday and its two pilots were dumped into the bay waters near Strawberry Cove.

Ben J. Parker, 39-year-old salesman, and Edwin H. Rogers, 35, a radio technician, neighbors on Tiburon's Juno road, were uninjured.

They climbed on the plane pontoons until rescued by the motor launch of Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Randall of 309 E. Strawberry drive, reported Sheriff's Deputy Fred Marcus who stood by. The Randalls were assisted in their rescue by Mr. and Mrs. Tom Storms of Chicago.

The two-seater Luscomb seaplane had taxied to a take-off when a gust of wind lifted one wing of the plane and flipped it over, dumping out the two licensed pilots, reported Deputy Marcus.

302 Protests Filed On Assessments

A total of 302 assessment protests were filed by yesterday afternoon's deadline, County Assessor Bert W. Broemmel said today.

The County Board of Supervisors, sitting as a board of equalization, has acted already on more than 200 protests and will meet at 9 a.m. Monday in an effort to wind up its equalization hearings on Monday.

The county's assessment roll as delivered to the supervisors on July 6 totalled $192,986,183, which included $11,560,623 on the unsecured roll. Since then the unsecured roll total has increased to $12,170,000, Broemmel said. He compared this figure to last year's unsecured roll of $9,278,000 and the 1957-58 unsecured roll of $6,773,000. The unsecured roll includes assessments on household effects and possessory interest.

Broemmel said that this year a new method of appraising household effects was applied throughout the county. He said that possibly 50 protests were filed because of higher personal property assessments. The total of 302 protests he described as heavier than a normal year. Last year with the county-wide property reappraisals reflected on the secured roll, the assessment protests totalled a record of 3,600.

Wrong Side Driver Critically Injured

Her northbound car collided head-on with one headed south in the northbound lane. The accident happened at approximately 2:30 a.m. about seven-tenths of a mile north of the Black Point Cutoff on Highway 101.

Injuries also were sustained by six persons in two other accidents on Highway 101 during the last 24 hours.

Miss Irene Scott, 44, of 1924 Diamond court in Santa Rosa, died at 4:05 a.m. at Marin General Hospital.

TWO BADLY HURT

Miss Scott's two passengers were seriously injured. Miss Helen M. Valentine, 47, of 166 E. Foothill drive, Santa Rosa, was taken to San Rafael General Hospital with a fractured arm and internal injuries.

Miss Valentine's niece from Oregon, Karen Valentine, 19, suffered spinal injuries and was placed in neck traction at San Rafael General Hospital. Both she and her aunt were reported in good condition.

Driver of the car headed south on the wrong side of the highway was identified by the California Highway Patrol as M/Sgt. Rex Davis Bray, 40, of 637 Owens drive, Ignacio. He is attached to the 78th Installations Squadron at Hamilton Air Force Base.

He remained in critical condition at Letterman Army Hospital in San Francisco after undergoing surgery for multiple fractures of the left upper arm, pelvis, jaw and for internal injuries.

ON WRONG SIDE

CHP Officer J. E. Halligan said Bray had driven for two miles on the wrong side of Highway 101 with several cars trying to overtake him to warn him.

Miss Scott was driving in the left northbound lane. A driver in front of her saw Bray's approaching headlights and swerved to the right in front of a northbound pickup truck, Halligan said. Apparently Miss Scott was unable to avoid the collision, he said.

Novato firemen helped to extricate the two women from the front seat of the smashed car. The fatality injured woman weighed about 250 pounds, the CHP said. It took 20 minutes to remove the women from the car.

The 19-year-old girl, a summer student at College of Marin, was ejected from the car by the impact. She was a passenger in the back seat.

The two Valentine women had driven to San Francisco International Airport to meet Miss Scott when she arrived on a five-hours overdue jet flight from Chicago.

Deputy Coroner Harry M. Williams telephoned Sierra County Sheriff W. D. Johnson, who sent a deputy to notify Miss Scott's parents of her death. They live at a mine approximately 20 miles from Downieville.

Marin County had 11 traffic fatalities at the same time last year. Miss Scott became Marin's 11th traffic fatality of this year.

A 29-year-old Fairfax mother and her two sons were injured at 6:45 p.m. yesterday in a three car collision on Highway 101 on a rise south of the Greenbrae bridge.

Mrs. Patricia E. Saunders, and her sons, Bryant Fisher, 5, and William Fisher, 7, were taken to Marin General Hospital. William was sent home after emergency treatment. Mrs.

U. S. Says Nikita Dropped All Reunification Pretense

GENEVA (UPI)—Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev has dropped all pretense of backing German reunification and openly seeks "perpetuation of the present division," the United States charged today.

U.S. Assistant Secretary of State Andrew Berding told newsmen the American delegation to the Big Four foreign ministers conference based the charge on the study of a key phrase used by Khrushchev in a speech yesterday in Stettin, Poland.

Berding said the United States was "interested" in the paragraph of Khrushchev's speech that said:

"The frontier which we will defend is now between East Germany and West Germany. This is the frontier which divides the world of socialism from the world of capitalism and we will defend this frontier with all our strength."

The Khrushchev statement was in keeping with the cloud of Russian toughness that has descended over the foreign ministers conference. Prospects of an early Berlin truce and a summit conference in September faded today as the Russians drew an increasingly harder line.

Accountant To Serve On Larkspur Council

A 40-year-old accountant and analytical expert has been named to the Larkspur city council to replace Paul W. Cane.

Named in a 3-0 vote was Arthur E. Storhaug of 99 Dartmouth drive in Hillview Gardens. Storhaug is manager of analytical reports for the Crown-Zellerbach Corp. of San Francisco.

A resident of Larkspur more than three years, Storhaug is a member of the Larkspur Dad's Club, and is past president of the Hillview Gardens Home Owners Assn. Also he served on the Larkspur Citizens Committee for Merger with Corte Madera.

Cane, the freshman member of the council, resigned earlier this month. Formerly a public relations representative for the Santa Fe Railway, he will go to work next month for Southern California Gas Co.

Storhaug is also a registered certified public accountant, but is not particularly active as one at this time.

Married and the father of two daughters, 13 and 11, and a boy, 6, he is a graduate of the University of North Dakota.

In other action, the council:

1. Awarded the Brown-Ely Co. of Corte Madera a $25,452 contract to build a 750-foot street from Magnolia avenue to the new elementary school. Neither the school nor the street was named. The job is supposed to be completed about the middle of September. Brown-Ely submitted the lowest of seven bids.

2. Adopted an ordinace annexing about six acres of Palm Hill containing five homes.

Fire Destroys S. F. Building; Two Injured

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Two firemen were injured early today when a three-alarm fire destroyed the Moschetti Refrigeration Co. at 446 Fulton St.

The blaze was punctuated by a number of explosions, believed to have been caused by refrigerator tanks and welding gasses.

Nuclear Plane Hearing Set

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate-House Atomic Subcommittee plans to air publicly for the first time next Thursday a long-smoldering controversy between Congress and the Pentagon over a nuclear-powered plane.

Rep. Melvin Price (D-Ill.), the chairman, told a reporter today high defense officials would be called to testify at the first open session ever held on the project.

The congressman said he and other long-time advocates of full speed ahead on development of such a plane had some hope two months ago that it was about to be given a high priority.

But that now has subsided, he said, into a feeling that the project has settled into another spell of relative quiet.

DOGS AND CATS FOES? NOT SO SAYS FANCIER

She counted up the 33 members of the group and found 17 of them have one or more dogs living peacefully with their felines.

The Marin County Cat Fanciers is the former Marin County Cat Club. The recent name change "more fully explains the purpose of the group," said Mrs. Deeths.

The group is planning two events—a fund-raising style show in September and the annual cat show, tentatively set for Sausalito, on Halloween weekend.

Hub Firehouse Finance Plan Advances Step

John C. Phillips yesterday gave his stamp of approval to the potential dummy corporation being set up for the purpose of financing the new San Anselmo fire house.

Phillips, a tree service manager of San Anselmo, said he would serve as director of the corporation following a meeting with City Atty. John G. Bureh, City Mgr. Arthur W. Brewer, and Lawrence E. Wright, San Anselmo attorney.

Also scheduled to serve as directors are Walter W. Carter attorney, and A. A. Nipper, realty broker.

The meeting, held to discuss the liabilities and responsibilities of the corporation, also explored possibilities of starting work on the building before the rainy season sets in.

"It appears doubtful that construction can start before next spring," Brewer said. "There is an outside chance but our consultants have indicated that it is not a good approach to begin construction until all legal and financial problems are ironed out."

The consultants are Hanauer and Co., an eastern firm who would act as brokers for bonds issued by the non-profit corporation.

Meeting On Saving Redwoods Scheduled

Staff members of the State Park Commission are to open conferences with the State Department of Finance and the Department of Natural Resources to check up on the cost of preventing further felling of large redwoods on the west slope of Mt. Tamalpais.

This action was decided on as result of a commission hearing yesterday. The trees are on the E. G. Brazil ranch in Kent Canyon, acquired recently for Tamalpais State Park but subject to lumbering contracts already exercised on 60 acres and requiring delivery of an additional 5½ million board feet of lumber.

To buy up these contracts would be costly, but Everett Powell, senior land agent for the commission, said it must be done if the logging is to be halted.

But "the value of the timber as logs is infinitesimal compared to its value as park property," the commission was told by Dr. Edgar Wayburn, vice president of the Sierra Club.

The commission has $1,100,000 with which it hopes to buy a total of 1,400 acres to be added to Mt. Tamalpais State Park. Its problem seems to be whether it should take part of this money to buy up the logging contracts or use the whole amount for additional land, some of which would lose some of its redwoods.

Italy Takes Over Meadow Club Party

By FLORENCE DONNELLY

The membership list of the Meadow Club was scrutinized for Italian names so that the hosts and hostesses for the traditional and always gala Italian dinner dance would have appropriate cognomens.

As a result the committee for the party two weeks from tonight is composed of Dr. and Mrs. A. A. Molinari, Dr. and Mrs. Donald De Carle, Judge and Mrs. Jordan L. Martinelli, Judge and Mrs. Guy Ciocca and Messrs. and Mesdames Rinaldo Belli, Frank Boroscchini, C. R. Bricca, John Brocato, Frank J. DeBendetti, R. J. Dell'osso, J. B. DeMaria, L. M. DiGrazia, M. W. Ferrari, Fred A. Figone, A. J. Finocchio, R. G. Franchini, Reno Ghilotti, Louis Gaviati, L. R. Moretti, E. A. Ostaggi, Frank Paganini, S. H. Paganucci, A. D. And just to make it perfect, the members and guests will be greeted by the president of the club, Frank Paganini, and his wife and the new Italian consul, Alessandro Savorgnon, and his wife.

The party will begin with cocktails and antipasto served around the pool while the roving Troubadors, "Scacciapensieri," entertain. Typically Italian is the menu for the dinner which will be served at 9.

A FAREWELL to Marin was the swimming and bridge party and buffet supper party Mr. and Mrs. G. Gordon Brown gave in the garden of their beautiful Kent Woodlands home on Sunday. With their five children, Lee and Gordon are moving to Denver. They left yesterday and are traveling by car going first to Western Canada.

The Warren Lawrences stopped in to say "goodbye" before Warren caught a jet for Washington, D. C. Among the other guests were Dr. and Mrs. Rafael Dufficy of San Rafael and Kent Woodlands neighbors; Dr. and Mrs. Henry Brainerd, the Ed Solinskys, William Woolstons, and Mrs. Richard French, John Gardiners and Mrs. Walter Zwieg. The Browns have sold their home on Goodhill road, to the Fredrick Talbots Jr., also of Kent Woodlands.

Honoring the Browns, the Henry Wagners of Kent Woodlands entertained at a cocktail party for 75 guests Wednesday night.

TRAVEL NEWS has come from several friends. Received a card from Mrs. Adolph L. Costa of San Anselmo. She sailed from San Francisco aboard the S. S. Orcades via the Panama Canal and for England and will arrive there on Monday. She and her traveling companion, Mrs. Elizabeth Bissinger, will tour the British Isles and the continent and will leave by plane for home the first of September. Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Knowles of Kentfield, who left some time ago for the Orient, are now in Japan and will be home in mid-August. Mrs. John MacPhail of Loch Lomond wrote from Ireland that she had kissed the Blarney Stone for me.

THE SOUTH PACIFIC is the goal of the David H. Walkers of Belvedere who are leaving tomorrow. They are flying first to Hawaii where they will join Dave's parents, the David Walkers of Bolinas, who are vacationing there. The Belvedere couple will then fly to Fiji and cruise around the island also taking the "Blue Lagoon Cruise." Next flight will be to Tahiti where the Walkers will spend three weeks. They'll fly back to Fiji and to San Francisco from there, ending a six week vacation. During their absence, Mrs. Walker's parents, the Henry R. Sanborns, will stay at their Madrona avenue home and take care of the Walkers' four children.

A bon voyage party was given for the Belvedere couple a week ago tonight by the B. F. Weavers of Belvedere. Bridge followed a barbecue. Guests in addition to the Walkers, were Mr. and Mrs. Dick DeBerry and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Berry.

Incidentally Jeannie celebrated her six and a half birthday on Wednesday at a picnic at Lake Lagunitas. Jeannie's natal anniversary is on Christmas Day and as her celebration is overshadowed by the holiday, she is always given a party in midsummer. Celebrating with Jeannie were Fred Greene, Joan and David Carson, Janie Wilsey, Hoyt Smith and Ellen and Barbara Drinkwater. Ellen and Barbara, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Fred John Drinkwater of Saratoga, left for home yesterday after spending a week with their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Seymour, next door neighbors of the Peters' in Ross.

Beauty Tips from ME to YOU
by Miss Opal of Walter's
No time like the present to explain the new makeup trend. Not many of us can remember the absence of heavy red, sensuous lips. In our efforts to glorify the mouth, which was, primarily, intended as an organ for speech and intake of food, we completely forgot the most important feature of the face. Namely, the windows of the soul, the eyes. Now, at long last our fashion designers have rediscovered the eyes and women will again be feminine and lovely. Play up your eyes, play down your mouth . . . and walk in beauty.

Bay Area Carpenters Have New Wage Scale

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) —Bay Area Carpenters began work under new wage scales yesterday with the ratification of a new three-year contract.

Chester R. Bartalini, secretary of the Bay Counties District Council of Carpenters, said that the Associated General Contractors have joined seven other employer groups in paying the scale. But, he added, court tests will determine whether the contractors will be bound by all the provisions.

The AGC rejected an earlier contract because of certain provisions.

The new hourly scales effective June 16 to 1959, 1960, and 1961 are $3.55, $3.725, and $3.95, respectively, for journeymen carpenters; $3.68, $3.865, and $4.10 for hardwood floor layers, shinglers, power saw operators, steel scaffold erectors and saw filers; $3.76, $3.945, and $4.18 for millwrights, and 50 cents additional for foremen as of last June 16, in addition to fringe benefits.

Test Borings Are Started At Sandspit

Test borings were begun yesterday for construction of a proposed restaurant and cocktail lounge on the Sausalito sandspit.

The project, to be built by Mac Marin, a firm headed by San Francisco State Sen. J. Eugene McAteer in collaboration with William E. McDonnell of San Francisco, has been a source of controversy. Some Sausalito residents sought to block the construction to retain the sandspit for recreational purposes.

Mac Marin has subleased the land from Madden and Lewis, which holds a longtime master lease from the city. An original minimum investment of $250,000 is required under the sublease.

Folsom Trustees To Lassen Camp

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Trustees from Folsom Prison will be transferred to a new camp in Lassen County soon to help fight fires in the area.

Fair Trade Act Money Bill Signed

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund G. Brown announced he has signed legislation appropriating $90,000 to the attorney general's office to enforce California's Unfair Trade Practices Act.

The governor told his news conference yesterday he also signed a bill providing treble damages for violations of the law.

The Unfair Trade Practices Act prohibits selling anything at less than cost for the purpose of injuring competition. Brown noted that as attorney general he never had enough money to enforce it.

California also has a Fair Trade Act which permits manufacturers to fix a resale price. The governor said the state, by law, does not enforce this act except for liquor.

Corte Madera Top Gainer In Retail Sales

Corte Madera with total resales of $3,321,000 in 1958 had a rise of 65.6 per cent over 1957, the largest increase of any city in the Bay Area, according to figures issued today by the San Francisco Bay Area Council.

The previous year's total sales were $2,006,000.

Ross led cities under 15,000 population, showing a 37.7 per cent rise. Sales in Ross totaled $157,000 for 1958, as compared with $114,000 during 1957.

San Rafael's retail sales last year totaled $50,181,000, as against $47,888,000 for 1957, a rise of 4.8 per cent. Sausalito was up 12.4 per cent, from $4,455,000 to $5,006,000.

Both Mill Valley and San Anselmo showed sales declines for the two years compared. Mill Valley being down 9.3 per cent with 1958 sales totaling $10,319,000, as compared with $11,373,000 for 1957. San Anselmo sales of $6,553,000 last year were off 4.4 per cent from the 1957 total of $6,854,000.

Combat Veterans Of Two Wars Get HAFB Posts

Two combat veterans of both World War II and the Korean War have been named to posts with the 78th Fighter Wing at Hamilton Air Force Base.

Lt. Col. Estes B. Sherrill, former assistant executive officer to the vice chief of staff at Air Force headquarters, Washington, D.C., and holder of the Distinguished Flying Cross, the Bronze Star and the Air Medal, has become director of operations with the 78th.

He succeeds Lt. Col. Edward H. Connor III, who is to attend the Air War College at Maxwell Air Force Base, Ala.

Maj. Paul H. Millikin, formerly with the 682nd Aircraft and Communications Squadron at New Almaden, has been named assistant military personnel officer with the 78th. He holds the Distinguished Flying Cross, Air Medal and Korean Presidential Citation.

Goldsmith Classic Set Tomorrow

The Oliver Goldsmith classic, "She Stoops To Conquer," will be presented as a play reading Sunday at 8 p.m. at the Sausalito Little Theater, according to Mrs. Alice Scarborough, activities chairman.

The lead romantic parts will be portrayed by John King and Lynne Ericksen. It will be directed by Penny Vieregge.

FISTS FLY, THEN BOYS MERGE BUSINESSES; SUCCESS FOLLOWS

PHARR, Tex. (AP)—A lesson in free enterprise:

Bruce Kolberg, 7, opened a five-cents-a-glass lemonade stand this week.

Then Kenneth Walter Jr., 7, opened a competing stand, pricing his lemonade at three cents a glass.

Sharp words were exchanged, then blows.

Deciding that was no way for civilized businessmen to act and it's too hot here in south Texas to fight anyway, the two decided to merge. They added ice cream cones and second-hand toys.

The next step was membership in the chamber of commerce. A letter of application asked if the "Chamber Commers" had any 25-cent memberships.

Chamber directors decided they did. A special directors meeting approved the application and chamber president Lloyd Glover delivered the membership card to the pair.

San Rafael Sanitary Tax May Rise 2 Cents

San Rafael Sanitation District tax rate may go up two cents for fiscal 1959-60, Deputy Auditor Mike Mitchell reported to the sanitation commissioners Thursday.

Mitchell said the assessed valuation for the San Rafael district was lower than expected, which means the tax rate may go up from last year's 37 cents to 39 cents per $100 assessed valuation. Eleven cents of that amount would go to bond redemption.

The district's budget adopted last month is $141,380. At that time, the commissioners hoped that the same tax rate could be maintained this year —26 cents for general fund and 11 cents for bonds. But the general fund tax may have to go up to 28 cents because the assessed values came in lower than expected, the deputy auditor explained.

The commissioners also decided that the two plant operators, Frank Keegan and John Berry, should get five per cent salary raises just like other city employees. Last month, both Keegan and Berry were given a raise from $465 to $480 per month. A five per cent raise would mean a new salary of $488.

Sausalito Trustees Set Budget

Trustees of the Sausalito School District Wednesday night approved a budget of $599,140 and forwarded it to the county superintendent of schools.

The budget proposed a year ago was $596,700, but actual expenditures were $529,555, reported Supt. Marcus F. Davis.

Major items in this year's budget include administration, $25,345; instruction, $353,774; auxiliary services, $12,950; school plant operation, $54,645; maintenance of plant, $55,160; fixed charges, $24,394; transportation, $12,210; food service, $10,000, and community services $2,000.

In addition, Davis said, a separate fund for capital expenditures estimated at $20,728 has been set up.

Bids Are Opened For Remodeling Of Capitol Annex

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — The state Division of Archictecture has opened a low bid of $117,395 for remodeling work in the state capitol's new annex which will provide 12 new four-room office suites for state senators and their staffs.

The space has been used by the state controller's office, mainly on the second floor of the annex which was built in 1951.

The assembly previously had taken over much of the state controller's space on its side of the building, the north section, to make room for more committee staffs.

The present alteration project involves some 12,000 square feet of floor space. Low bidder for the project was Affiliated Engineers-Contractors, Inc., Florin.

Efforts To Get Improved Airport Deserve Backing

Marin County still needs an airport.

We have been saying that from time-to-time for more than a decade.

We have said that in some respects an airport is to a city in the 20th century what a railroad was to a city in the 19th century. It puts you on the map. Or the absence of it leaves you off the map.

Since the Marin Development Foundation was formed several years ago, we have learned that the existence of an appropriate airport is essential to the kind of industrial growth which Marin needs in order to broaden our tax base.

In the past decade Marin has lost two airports of limited size—one at Santa Venetia and one at San Rafael—while gaining one new one, at Novato.

It has always seemed to us that the one at Novato is probably destined to meet the same fate as its predecessors at Santa Venetia and San Rafael.

All three were established on what might be described as marginal land; but the land on which two of them stood became too valuable to warrant continuation of its use by a privately operated airport.

We expect that the same thing will happen at Novato within the coming decade.

It will happen, that is, unless we do something about it.

Fortunately, our county authorities and our San Rafael authorities are not asleep. Our Development Foundation and our San Rafael Chamber of Commerce have kept the county and the city awake to this airport problem.

Monday night the city council gave some attention to the airport problem so it is in the discussion stage there.

Tuesday night the county airport committee came up with a plan for a county lease on the Novato airport.

Both the suggestion before the city and the one now before the county remain to be studied thoroughly. Some "bugs" will unquestionably appear. And they will have to be worked out.

But at least we are making a new start. Let us hope it results this time in getting an appropriate airport for Marin.

San Rafael Workers, Take Heart; All Day Parking Is Being Planned

IF YOU'RE a businessman or office worker in downtown San Rafael and need space for all day parking, you're not being forgotten entirely.

Thus far the city has put in three new lots for one and two-hour parking. A fourth lot is being purchased at Third and Cijos streets, also for hourly parking.

But after that, Councilman Joe Sauer and his parking committee want to put in a lot for all day parking. (The municipal parking lot near the Little League field is too far from center of town.)

Sauer says his committee is even thinking of double decking the new lot at Fifth avenue and C street.

DEER HUNTING by inexperienced archers is drawing fire from some Marin sportsmen. Too much wanton slaughter, they claim. With bow and arrow season only a few days old, sheriff's deputies have come across at least three bucks dead in the woods with arrows stuck in the carcasses. Veteran hunters claim that inexperienced archers do not hit the animal in the right place, then don't know how to track the wounded deer.

FRANK GARCIA JR. of Santa Venetia was born 19 years ago on July 19. He celebrates the occasion tomorrow at his home, 19 Tarrant court.

UNLESS SOMEONE comes up with a name for San Rafael's second high school on the Freitas Ranch, it's going to be called Terra Linda High School by default. We understand the school board is going to search the land grant records to see if they can come up with a snappy Spanish name.

It's not easy to pick a new school name. It must be appropriate to the geographic area, can't be too long, must be adaptable for use in a school yell, and not too difficult to pronounce.

SAUSALITO GAZETTE can be called a fighting newspaper. From its first issue, its editor is fighting a charge that he cut out a picture from a library book to use in the paper. And his right hand man is fighting a charge that he possessed marijuana.

YOU DON'T HAVE to go far for big fish. Sgt. Ed Mythaler of the sheriff's office hauled in a 31-pound striper off the rocks at San Quentin Point Tuesday night.

PROBABLY the happiest owner of a Bank of America credit card was Wishard K. Brown of San Rafael. He's only 10 years old. He was all set to go on a buying spree at the ice cream firms and toy stores when his Dad found out the error and called the bank.

MOTHER TAKES BLAME

Subway authorities in Manhattan declined $1.26 recently, even though they have had a hard time making ends meet of late.

The offer was made by the mother of a boy who accidentally caused one of the car windows to be broken when he pushed another youngster.

The conscientious mother added this note to her remittance: "I feel that the right thing for me to do is to pay for the installation of a new pane."

By volunteering so quickly to make amends for the playful mistake of her son, she doubtless taught him a lasting lesson.

The more parents show a responsibility for their children's behavior under all circumstances, the better for everybody concerned.

Young people need and usually accept the sympathetic training and disciplining of their parents. Fathers and mothers who devotedly instill in their children a reverence for God and the rights of others will be blessed for time and eternity.

"He that keepeth the law is a wise son." (Proverbs 28:7)

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Time To Call Right Names

EDITOR,
Independent-Journal:

I notice that you are paying some attention to the litter problem these days, on the editorial page and by giving away litter bags with vacation subscriptions.

This encourages me to believe you might be interested in this piece which we ran in our Regional News Service a couple of months ago.

"Litterbug" is a laugh and a tap on the wrist. The time has come to call these people what they are.

Some people are pigs. Are you? Do you drop cigarette, gum and candy wrappers, tissues and trash on sidewalks and streets? Do you throw papers, bottles, cans and trash from cars along streets and highways? Do you leave papers, bottles, cans and picnic refuse on beaches, in parks, at campgrounds? Do you allow papers and trash to blow from open trucks? Do you discard newspapers where the first breeze will blow them about?

If you do any of these things, chances are you qualify for the name, strong though it may seem.

The mountains of rubbish and miles of littered highways are accumulations of single pieces of paper, single cans, single bottles discarded by individuals. To discard one piece of paper, one can, one bottle seems in itself a trivial act and that is why so many people do it, thoughtlessly.

But when a thousand people discard a thousand scraps of paper, bottles and cans, or a million people discard a million scraps of paper, bottles and cans, the result is a vast unsightly mess which indicts every single individual who has contributed to it.

The key to cleaner, neater highway roadsides, city streets beaches, parks and campgrounds is the individual — the individual who carefully disposes of rubbish and trash. The key act in the individual's reformation is when he puts a piece of paper in his pocket instead of throwing it in the street, or who carefully puts aside bottles, cans and rubbish for proper disposal instead of throwing it along the highways.

Some people are pigs and always will be, probably, but you can make sure you are not in this class by carefully studying your own habits and reforming them, if necessary.

Russians Disguise Communism When Preparing It For Export

WASHINGTON — What do you think the English-speaking guides at the Soviet exhibit in New York are saying to the American visitors who ask them: "Where are your copies of Dr. Zhivago?"

The answer is: "Dr. Zhivago is where those pictures are that you were supposed to send to Moscow!"

Sounds fair, doesn't it? Almost clever, this tit-for-tat riposte which says in effect: "Yes, we Soviets repress artists the way you do!"

There is only one thing wrong with this Soviet retort. It is untrue.

The Soviet propagandists are seeking to divert attention from the suppression of Boris Pasternak's great novel by contending that the U.S. is not sending the paintings to our exhibit in Moscow which we first announced we would send. They are counting on their mis-statement to hold long enough so that their questioners won't press the point.

The facts are that the paintings by American artists, which some Americans criticize, have been sent to Moscow. They are going to be shown at the American exhibition there and, while President Eisenhower said there were some he wouldn't have selected, he was not going to act either as a critic or a censor of what would be exhibited as representative works of modern American art.

THE COMMUNISTS, of course, are having a field day playing around with the American criticism of the selection of paintings to be shown in Moscow and praticularly with the questions which Rep. Francis E. Walter (D., Pa.) has raised concerning the political background of some of the artists. One voice from Radio Moscow had its fun this way: "Red was the dominating color in certain canvasses depicting the sunset. In other cases artists were known to have painted with brushes made of imported hair. Now, isn't that certain proof that these (American) artists had contracts beyond the iron curtain?"

Well, that's harmless josh-ing among propagandists, but a serious question I want to raise is this:

Why do the Soviet Communists feel they have to picture Communism as something different than it is? Don't they believe in it? Don't they look upon repression and censorship as good things that ought to be praised rather than covered up?"

Bear in mind that this studied quip by the guides at the Soviet exhibit is being used over and over again. They all give exactly the same answer in the same words. "Dr. Zhivago is where those pictures are that you were supposed to send to Moscow."

EVEN IF THE U.S. Government had not chosen to send these particular paintings to Moscow — as it did — the gap between Communist society and a free society would be vast. The gap would be just this:

Pasternak's "Dr. Zhivago," which is less critical of Soviet life than much that has been written of American life by Upton Sinclair, John Steinbeck or Sinclair Lewis, cannot be bought, cannot be read, cannot be published in the Soviet Union.

A basic ingredient of a free society is not whether a government chooses a particular work of art to praise or to exhibit; it is whether a government acts to prevent the artist to publish or to exhibit his work.

There is only official Art in the Soviet Union.

There is no official art in America.

The fact that the U.S. government, in its Moscow exhibit, is showing pictures which arouse controversy is the best possible proof that creative freedom in America is alive and real. Nothing could show more clearly that no one in America tells the artist what or how he must paint, compose or write.

But why shouldn't the Soviet guides at the Soviet exhibit candidly say: "We are proud that 'Zhivago' is not published in Russia. We think everybody is better off where nothing is said, written, printed or composed which the government doesn't approve."

They suggest that the only way to export Communism is to disguise it.

JAMES MARLOW'S COLUMN

Is Time Coming When U. S. A. Must Ban Steel Industry Strike?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Each time a strike occurs in an essential industry affecting the whole economy — as now in steel — this question comes up:

Are we reaching a point where the government — meaning a majority of the people — can no longer permit and must forbid a strike in such an industry?

A STRIKE IN any industry was pretty much a private affair years ago when the government's revenue needs were smaller and the various people, plants and industries were far less interdependent than now.

But the American society is now highly complex and interdependent. A strike in one big industry can send out waves that splash thousands of workers, hundreds of businesses, and maybe drown many of them.

For example: This steel strike comes at a time when the nation is recovering from last year's slump. If it's short, it won't do much damage. It will do a lot if it lasts long.

If the strike continues long enough, other industries will use up their steel supplies and have to close, throwing many thousands out of work.

As their income — and the profits of their shut-down plants — are cut off, the national Treasury will suffer from loss of income tax revenue just when it is badly needed.

THUS A STEEL strike — unlike a strike in any industry in years past — is no longer truly private. It already affects and, if it lasts long enough, could paralyze a broad part of the national economy.

But individual rights — the right of employees to quit a job and of an employer to shut down his plant — and the right of both sides to work out their wages and profits must be balanced against the general welfare.

Thus the question: Is the President in the near future likely to propose or Congress to approve a law forbidding a strike in an essential industry? Very likely not.

It would be political dynamite. Both unions and employers want a minimum of government interference. If the government through law could forbid a strike, it would almost certainly then impose compulsory arbitration.

THIS MEANS that arbitrators appointed by the government would listen to both sides and give an opinion both sides would have to accept. If the government did that, out of justice it probably would have to do more.

In the end it would probably have to step in and regulate both wages and prices, which would mean regulating profits too. That would be true governmental control. Eventually it might have to take over the industry.

In 1947 Congress foresaw the national danger of a big strike some day when it passed the Taft-Hartley Act. But still, while providing machinery for stalling off a strike, Congress stopped short of forbidding it altogether.

That law lets the President prevent a strike for 80 days while efforts are made to get both sides to reach agreement. But, after the enforced delay, the strike can go on.

Brown Keeps Promise To Provide More Work For Prisoners To Do

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — The office of Gov. Edmund G. Brown last week announced acceleration of the program voted in the 1959 legislature to put more prisoners to work, instead of keeping them caged in expensive state prisons.

There is nothing new in this program, except the fact that Richard McGee, director of the Department of Corrections, and a hold-over director at that, let it slip during the administration of former Gov. Goodwin J. Knight.

IT WAS SLIPPING so bad, in fact, that it obtained the attention of the Senate Interim Committee on Governmental Administration, headed by Sen. George Miller (D-Martinez). Miller's assistant on the committee, Earl Waters, former newspaperman, had made extensive studies of the prison administration in California, and some years ago came up with the idea that more attention should be paid to keeping convicts busy, rather than providing expensive prisons for them to spend their time in idleness.

This, Waters pointed out, would cut down costs of prison construction and as well, fulfill a need to maintain some occupation for those convicts who could be trusted in camps.

BEFORE THE BROWN administration took over, however, Senator Miller and Waters, as the saying goes, "got no place" with promoting the idea. While some convicts were maintained in camps, McGee made little or no effort to provide more camps and thus release the prison facilities.

This, however, was not in line with Brown's thinking. Forced by some political maneuvering to keep McGee on the job, the new governor nevertheless called the director into his office, it was reported here, and laid down the law about the conservation camps. In fact, Brown announced on a Sacramento television program long before he was elected, that he intended to proceed with vigor on extending the camps when and if he became governor.

He kept this promise by providing more than eight million dollars in his 1959-60 fiscal year budget for the project. And upon signing the budget, one of the first things the governor did was to announce that the funds are now available, and that the program would go ahead full speed.

HE CONTENDED it would obviate the necessity of constructing new and expensive prisons, and in addition assist the prisoner himself.

"There is nothing worse we can do to a human being," the governor said, "than cage him in a cell in enforced idleness. Under the program, prisoners who are non-violent will have the opportunity to keep busy and at the same time work at a constructive program for the public benefit."

The governor explained that the work the convicts will be doing is non-competitive, and would not be done, at least by the state, if the prisoners didn't perform the work.

The work will consist of development of recreational area access roads, forest improvement, stream clearance, forest fire fighting, fish conservation and improvements in state parks. And by January 1, it is expected that some 1,800 prisoners will be employed in the camps.

TRY AND STOP ME

BENNETT CERF

A young actor with a name five syllables long got a big part in a new movie and promptly had his name changed to Flash Upton. The picture was a smash, and the actor won rave notices and a new contract. Ensconced in his new 14-room penthouse, he gave a great housewarming party, and thoughtfully named his elderly mother the guest of honor.

Everybody showed up but mamma, and the actor was frantic with worry. Finally he went to the lobby to speak to the doorman. "You didn't see a little old lady come in here at any time?" he asked anxiously. "There was one," recalled the doorman. "She's been sitting patiently over in that corner for about three hours now."

She was his mother all right. "Mamma," he cried, "you've had me in a state! Why didn't you come up to my apartment?"

"I wanted to, my son," she told him with tears in her eyes, "but I couldn't remember your new name!"

Seating Of Races Together In School Approved

Novato Presbyterian Church members who would not object to the seating of Negro and caucasian students together in classrooms far outnumber those who would object to such seating.

HOUSING LAST WEEK

Another part of the survey—on housing—was released last week. A majority of those answering said they would not welcome Negroes to their neighborhood.

To that question there were 83 "yes" answers, 104 "nos" and 14 who chose not to answer.

In the questionnaire on education, the questions with the number of "yes answers first, the "no" answer total second, and the number who chose not to answer, third, were:

Do you object to Negro and caucasian students being seated side by side in the same classroom?—19, 176, 55; Do you object to Negro and caucasian students participating together in athletics?—9, 187, 5; Would you welcome Negro parents in your P-TA?—171, 20, 10; Do you favor the employment of qualified Negro teachers in our schools only on the basis of the number of Negro students enrolled?—138, 51, 12.

Do you favor the employment of the best qualified teachers in our schools even if they are Negroes and there are no Negro students enrolled? — 138, 51, 12; Would you object to your child's friendship with a Negro of the same sex? 37, 154, 10; Would you object to Negro and caucasian students participating together in social clubs, school dances, etc. — 53, 134, 14; Would you object to your child's friendship with a Negro of the opposite sex?—113, 79, 9; Would you object to your child dating a Negro?—166, 25, 10.

GOOD RESPONSE

Novato School Supt William J. J. Smith, an elder of the church, said: "The nine questions . . . are fairly typical and drew a reasonably heavy percentage" of yes and no answers."

He said the first two questions "indicate a high acceptance of the practices generally found in most California schools as far as classroom and athletic participation are concerned."

Commenting on the third, fourth, fifth and sixth questions, Smith said they "would indicate that the responding group favors participation of everyone in these activities on the basis of their willingness and ability rather than on some other standards."

He noted that "hesitancy about employment of Negro teachers" is shown in the response. Smith added the answers showed little objection to "free association of children on the basis of their own choice of friends."

KESSEL PLEASED

Dr. Kessel said, "I am particularly pleased to note the overwhelming approval to question number 5. Most people here in Novato want their children to have the advantage of the most capable teachers, even if these teachers happen to be Negroes.

"Our community has made real progress toward racial equality acceptance in this important respect. As for the last two questions in this education section of the questionnaire, because they relate to the emotional subjects of sex and dating, they are closely concerned with the section on personal relations."

Church Asks Use Permit At New Site

Mill Valley's Christian Science Church, for many years located at Lovell and Olive avenues, has made an application to the city planning commission for a use permit to locate a new edifice on the west side of Camino Alto some 500 feet north of its intersection with the East Blithedale intersection.

Mrs. Gustaf Wolf, church clerk, said it was a "future action" and that no plans have yet been drawn for a new church that would replace the present structure.

The application is scheduled to come before the planners at their July 28 meeting.

Religious Leaders Visiting Israel

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The Roman Catholic, Protestant and Jewish directors of religious affairs at Temple University are visiting Israel to meet leaders of the three faiths in the Middle East with a view toward furthering better understanding.

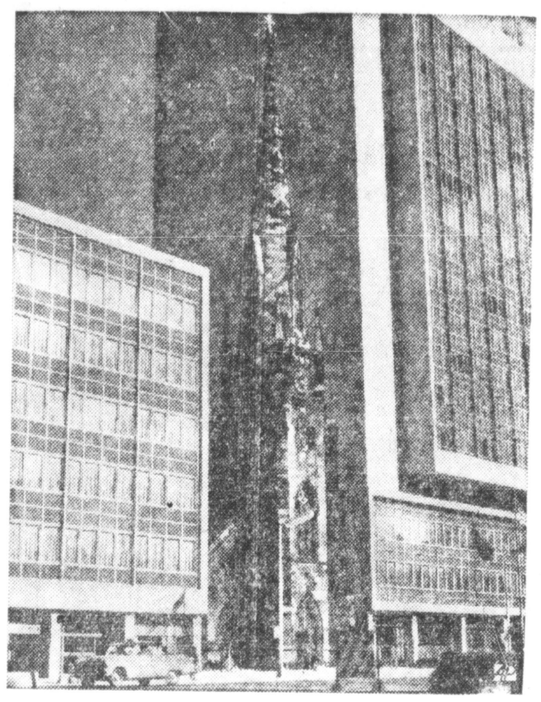
Jewish Growth

NEW YORK (AP)—Jewish population in the United States is five times what it was 50 years ago, the current American Year Book reports. It gives the total today as 5,260,000, compared to a million in 1899.



AN OLD-TIMER NOW

Way back in 1859 the North Reformed Church was a newcomer to Broad Street in Newark, N.J. With new buildings around, it's now an old-timer. But it is still a handsome structure.

Science's Compatibility With Religion Stressed

By JACK STILLMAN

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP)—Will man's first flight into space cast doubt on the existence of God?

Two men closely associated with American space projects have taken special pains to answer that question.

Their interpreted conclusion: No.

The men are Maj. Gen. J. B. Medaris, commander of the Army Ordnance Missile Command, and Dr. Wernher von Braun, the Army's leading civilian scientist. Both are stationed at Redstone Arsenal.

Medaris and Von Braun, like many other scientists, measure their words carefully when they try to explain why they believe man's flight into space will not refute religious dogma.

In speeches, both have tried to show the relation between religion and the scientific and technological revolution, hinging their remarks on the 10 Commandments as man's guideposts.

Says Episcopalian Medaris: "The 10 Commandments have guided men and brought them safely through the upheavals of the past. They should be the rock of decision today and through all our tomorrows."

Von Braun, a Lutheran in his native Germany who attends an Episcopal church in Huntsville, says: "I think it is a fair assumption that the 10 Commandments are entirely adequate, without amendments, to cope with all the problems the technological revolution not only has brought up but will bring up in the future."

Medaris says he believes scientific advance has been made with the grace of God. He told a recent meeting of Army chaplains: "It is my own belief . . . that the door would have closed in our faces if what we are attempting contravened God's design."

"Our first steps into the vacuum of space," he says, "have re-emphasized the beauty and order of creation . . . and have verified the natural laws which govern all existence."

Von Braun, stressing the compatability of religion and science, says he thinks God will always be evident to man, no matter what scientific wonders are unfolded.

New Mission Slated For Mill Valley

A new Southern Baptist mission to be located in Mill Valley will hold its first service tomorrow in the Mill Valley Masonic Temple opposite the city hall, it was announced this week by Rev. R. Y. Gerrard, the new pastor.

The new mission is being sponsored by the First Baptist Church of Novato and the church missions committee, it was announced by Rev. Ted Lindwall of Novato and William Porter, missions chairman.

Rev. Gerrard, former pastor in Covington, Tenn., is a graduate of Mississippi Baptist College in Clinton. He also attended the Southern Baptist Seminary at Louisville, Ky.

He and his wife, Mary Lou, have two children, Nancy Lou, 11, and Robert, 8. The family plans to live in Mill Valley as soon as they can locate a suitable home.

Rev. Gerrard announced that Sunday school will begin at 9:45 a.m. and the morning service at 11 a.m. Training union will be at 7 p.m. and the evening service at 8 p.m.

Too Much Praise, Ministers Told

WATERLOO, Ont. (AP) — Church members praise their pastors abundantly, but seldom give them the kind of constructive criticism they need, Rev. Dr. Gerald E. Lenski, a Washington, D. C., theologian, told a meeting of clergymen here.

"The old ladies in the congregation," he said, "are the worst offenders."

Jordan Extends Recognition To Another Church

JERUSALEM, Jordan (AP) — The 1,300-member Evangelical Lutheran Church in Jordan has been granted state recognition as one of the "non-Mohammedan religious communities."

Others so recognized by the government of Moslem Jordan are the Anglican, Roman Catholic and Orthodox Churches.

About 12 per cent of Jordan's population is Christian.

Debit Fails In Bid For Trans-Pac Win

HONOLULU, (UPI) —TransPacific Yacht Race officials estimate that the 38-foot Stockton sloop Debit will not arrive in Honolulu before late today — meaning that Balboa's Nalu II appears assured of certain victory.

The Debit would have had to cross the Diamond Head line early today to win the race. However, she was not expected before 4 p.m. (HST)

The 46-foot Nalu II crossed the finish line early yesterday for a handicap time of nine days, five hours, 50 minutes and 27 seconds. The Debit was the only boat that still had a chance to overtake Nalu, but the wind turned against her.

Meanwhile, another yacht—the 47-foot cutter Patronilla out of Portland, Ore.—crossed the finish line last night at 8:09 p.m. Her elapsed time for the voyage was nine days, 23 hours, 17 minutes and 17 seconds.

The St. Francis Yacht Club sloop Tasco II also crossed the finish line at 10:08 last night, showing an elapsed time of 13 days, 13 hours, 8 minutes and 25 seconds.

Honolulu's No Hu Hu was due in early today, followed by the yawl Tiare from the Kaneohe Yacht Club.

Race officials said they still have had no word on the location of Janie, a Portland sloop which they at first expected to arrive yesterday.

However, no concern was felt for the craft. The Janie has been silent since July 9, when her radio communication evidently broke down.

NOVATO STAR TO ATTEND OREGON STATE

George Gnoss, outsanding guard on Novato High School's football squad last season, has decided to accept a scholarship to Oregon State College, he informed OSC Head Football Coach Tommy Prothro this week.

Prothro, a Marin County visitors this week, said: "We are tremendously pleased with his decision to attend Oregon State. Our staff has viewed more than 1,000 films of last season's high school games and we rate George as one of the best linemen this side of the rockies."

Prothro also noted that Gnoss scored unusually high on the college board examination, "So we don't expect any problems from him academically."

Gnoss won All-Marin County and All-North Bay League honors last fall. He recently graduated from Novato.

Big Turnout Expected For Small Boat Regatta Sunday

More than 200 Bay Area skippers are expected to invade southern Marin County tomorrow when the defending champion Sausalito Yacht Club plays host to the annual Small Boat Racing Assn. Regatta.

As in the past, one of the biggest turnouts of yachts is anticipated for this annual regatta. There will be two sets of races, one at 10:30 a.m. and the other at 2 p.m. All courses are within the confines of Richardson Bay, giving the spectator a veritable three-ring circus and at not to distant range.

SAN FRANCISCO Y.C. also is staging a wind blown affair tomorrow, but quite dissimilar in that it is a handicap race and open only to keel boats listed on the club's yacht roster. It is the annual Peter Mitchell Memorial Perpetual Trophy race and will be contested over a course from Belvedere Cove to and around Southampton Shoal Lighthouse and return to starting line.

Any keel boat is eligible, whether it be an 18-foot Mercury or 65-foot ocean racer. It should prove highly interesting and a tough problem for the Race Committee to figure out equitable handicaps.

The event is held in memoriam of the late Mrs. Bernon Mitchell, an indefatigable worker for the club and, in particular, the juniors and lesser small fry. Known by all as "Peter," a nickname she had carried from childhood, she was christened Mary Francis.

THE INTERNATIONAL Mercury Championship Regatta will be held in Marin waters the week of July 27, with races every day through Friday, save Wednesday. The event will be sponsored by the three southern Marin clubs, San Francisco, Sausalito and Corinthian. The last year's winner was A. B. Smith of San Pedro and the local hotshots have strong hopes of bringing the trophy back to this area; the birthplace of the class as created by Nunes Brothers of Sausalito.

Littler Blazes Way to Big Lead In Insurance Open

Littler has scored rounds of 64-66-130 for 36 holes, a blistering pace, over the par 71 Wethersfield Country Club's 6,548-yard course.

His brilliant putting and pinpointed drives have shot him five strokes ahead of his nearest challengers, Bruce Crampton of Sydney, Australia, and Bob Goalby of Crystal River, Fla.

He has used only 58 putts, 28 each day. He has missed only two greens and only one putt.

In addition to Crampton and Goalby, others ready to cash in on any lapses include Al Besselink, Grossinger, N.Y.; and Fred Hawkins, El Paso, Tex., 136s.

Mrs. Kobil Wins M. V. Golf Trophy

Mrs. John Kobil shot an 89-23—66 for low net to win the Sabella Trophy for July at the Mill Valley Women's Golf Club medal play tournament yesterday.

Mrs. George Prydz took low gross honors with an 82.

Class A—Mrs. Edward Abramson, 88-21—67; Mrs. H. C. Leggett, 90-22—68; Mrs. Richard Finn, 86-17—69.

Class B—Mrs. Henry Seagle, 96-29—67; Mrs. Walter Goldman, 101-34—67; Mrs. Howard Kemper, 99-29—70; Mrs. Lester Calender, 100-29—71.

AAU MEET

Ruuska, Cone Smash World Swim Marks

REDDING, (AP) — Teenagers continued to dominate the National AAU Women's Swimming Championships today after a pair of them raced to world records in the 220-yard backstroke and 440-yard medley.

Shapely Carin beat defending champion Chris von Saltza in the backstroke and went the distance in 2 minutes 27.9 seconds to erase the world mark of 2:38.5 by L. De Nijs of Holland in 1957.

Then came 17-year-old Sylvia and the greatest performance ever in the 440-yard medley in which the racers swim one lap each of breaststroke, backstroke, butterfly and freestyle.

Miss Ruuska, a senior at Berkeley High School, went the distance in 5 minutes 40.2 seconds. The International Swimming Federation last year in setting up the event for world competition had set 5:52 or better for recognition as records.

Miss Cone, from Ridgewood, N. J., and swimming for the Houston Shamrocks since she's a sophomore at the University of Houston, was swimming the 220 as a final long race conditioner for the 100-meter backstroke in this summer's Pan-American Games.

AMERICAN RECORD

Other winners yesterday included: Miss von Saltza of Saratoga, Calif., with 1:04.8, and American citizen's record, in the 110-yard freestyle.

Ann Warner, 14-year-old from the Santa Clara Club with an American record of 3:02.4 for the 220-yard breaststroke.

Fans Boo Decision For Calhoun After Dull Video Fight

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (AP) — Sleepy-eyed Rory Calhoun, winner of a 10-round split decision, said today he had to chase Dick Tiger to make the fight.

Most of last night's crowd of 1,320 thought differently. They howled and tossed refuse into the ring after Judges Dick Fazio and Harold McGrath awarded the last three rounds to Calhoun and a 6-4 margin.

Referee Joe Palmer saw the middleweight scrap 5-3-2 for Tiger. So did AP.

Calhoun, 24, and five years younger than Tiger, showed more aggressiveness toward the end. This probably impressed Fazio and McGrath.

The win boosted Calhoun's record to 40-7-2. Tiger, the British Empire middleweight champion, now is 32-9-2.

Giants Enjoy Best Lead Of Year

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The San Francisco Giants, riding along on the most successful one-two pitching punch in the majors, today boasted their biggest lead of the season.

Sam Jones tossed a neat seven-hitter last night to beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 4-1 and put the Giants two games ahead of the second-place Los Angeles Dodgers.

Jones' 13th win, following Johnny Antonelli's 14th victory Thursday night, gave Manager Bill Rigney the opportunity to manipulate the rest of his pitching staff to maximum advantage.

The Milwaukee Braves, beaten 4-3 by the St. Louis Cardinals, dropped three games off the pace. That's the farthest back that the Braves have been since July 10, 1957.

One of the most notable examples was the Boston Braves in 1948 when Johnny Sain and Warren Spahn did practically all of the pitching in the run for the pennant. A jingle sung in those days went:

"Two days rest and two days rain.

"Sain and Spahn. Spahn and Sain."

And the Giants, when they won the pennant in 1951, did it almost entirely behind Larry Jansen and Sal Maglie.

The Pirates evened it in the second with Don Hoak singling to left, stealing second and scoring on Bob Clemente's single.

Ronnie Kline, lifted for a pinch-hitter, was replaced by Elroy Face on the mound in the eighth. The Giants touched Face, the league's best fireman, for their last two runs.

Cepeda singled, stole second and third and came home on a squeeze play as Pirate first sacker Dick Stuart bobbled Hobie Landrith's bunt. Jackie Brandt, who had walked, scored on Bressoud's single — Eddie's third hit in four trips.

Sixto's Foe To Arrive Here July 25

Light heavyweight contender Jesse Bowdry has informed the San Francisco Boxing Club that he will arrive in San Francisco next Saturday, for his 10-round boxing match at the Civic Auditorium Thursday, July 30, against Sixto Rodriguez of San Anselmo.

The hard-hitting St. Louis fighter, whose decisive victory over Tony Anthony recently moved him up the ladder as a threat for Archie Moore's 175-pound title, will be accompanied to the West Coast by co-managers Bernard Glickman and Eddie Yawitz. He'll wind up training locally at Billy Newman's Gym.

Going into the bout with a 22-1 mark, Rodriguez will have the opportunity to gain national prominence if he can trim the Midwesterner.

Tickets for the scrap, on sale at the San Francisco Boxing Club, 472 Ellis Street, San Francisco Boxing Club, 472 Ellis Street, San Francisco, are scaled at $2.50, $5.00 and $7.50.

Homers Pace Harry's To Junior Loop Win

Braves At Lowest Spot Since 1957

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Joey Jay lost one, then Carl Willey, then Lew Burdette. Now Warren Spahn. That's how the Milwaukee Braves, favored for pitching, have lost four in a row for the first time this season and have skidded to third, three games behind in the National League race — their largest deficit in two years.

Not since July 10, 1957, have the Braves been that far off the pennant pace. Then they were second to St. Louis, finally overhauling the Cards and running off with their first title.

Friday night it was a sixth-place St. Louis, usually a soft touch for Spahn, that beat the southpaw ace with a two-out rally in the eighth inning for a 4-3 victory.

San Francisco's first place Giants picked up their largest lead of the year by rapping Pittsburgh 4-1 while second place Los Angeles lost 3-2 at Philadelphia.

CHISOX NIP N.Y.

In the American League, the Chicago White Sox were hitless for eight innings but beat New York 2-0 as Early Wynn defeated Ralph Terry in a double two-hit duel. Cleveland remained within a game of Chicago with an 8-7 victory at Boston. Baltimore defeated Detroit 3-2 and Kansas City beat Washington 7-4.

Spahn (11-10), who has won more games from St. Louis than any other club, gave up an unearned run on his own error in the third inning but still had a 3-2 lead until the eighth. Ken Boyer singled and scored the tying run on Joe Cunningham's double. Then rookie Gene Oliver, who had hit in a double-play, popped up and fanned, singled home the winner.

Lindy McDaniel (8-10) won it in relief, allowing one hit and striking out four in his two innings.

The last place Phillies had only four hits off Roger Craig, who lost his first after winning four. Jim Owens went all the way for his fifth victory against eight defeats.

Ceccarelli, an American League castoff after losing his last seven decisions with Kansas City and Baltimore, won his second without defeat for the Cubs. The 29-year-old lefty also scored the run, coming across on a fielder's choice in the fifth against Bob Purkey (8-10).

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

Q J N A S Q S B I X U N J L N L I B X Z G U N J A, J B W N I F U S L N P X N Z L Z B M I T — X O S Q - Q S U J.

ALMANAC

Today is Saturday, July 18, the 199th day of the year, with 166 more days in 1959.

The moon is approaching its full phase.

The evening stars are Jupiter, Saturn, Venus and Mars.

On this date in history:

In 1914, the U. S. Army created an aviation section within the Signal Corps.

In 1932, the United States and Canada signed a treaty to develop the St. Lawrence seaway.

In 1938, Douglas Corrigan arrived in Dublin, Ireland, from New York ostensibly on a flight to California and was immediately nicknamed by fellow Americans "Wrong Way Corrigan."

In 1940, President Franklin Delano Roosevelt was nominated unanimously to run for a third term.

In 1951, Joseph "Jersey Joe" Walcott knocked out Ezzard Charles in the seventh round to win the world heavyweight boxing championship in Pittsburgh.

A thought for today: Franklin D. Roosevelt said, "There is no indispensable man."

Hayward Plant Hit By Walkout

HAYWARD (UPI) — The Hunt Food and Industries Corp. plant was shut down here yesterday by a strike of 500 teamster cannery and clerical workers.

The 420 striking cannery workers walked out Wednesday afternoon after negotiators and federal mediators failed to produce a contract. Eighty clerical workers, recently organized by the teamsters, followed yesterday morning. The union is asking a 30-cent hourly pay raise.

Couple Feted For 50 Years Of Marriage

Four children, a dozen grand-children, and half a dozen great-grandchildren of Moses and Mary Durbin are with the couple today in Woodacre for their golden wedding.

Married in Llano, Tex., on July 18,1909, the Durbins have lived in Marin since 1942.

"I was making $4 a day as a blacksmith when we were married," Durbin recalls. Since then he has worked as a machinist and mechanic and is still active as an off-and-on carpenter at the age of 73. His wife will be 70 on April 5, 1960.

The Durbins live with their eldest daughter, Mrs. Edward Gerhardt, at whose Woodacre home the fiftieth anniversary festivities will take place.

Their other children are Moses Durbin Jr., 7 Hillview avenue, San Rafael; Eugene Durbin, Grand Junction, Colo., and Eugene's twin sister, Mrs. Edward Conaway, Jasper, Ore.

Durbin retired at 65 but found he "just couldn't quit." Today, besides carpentering whenever he runs into a job, he and his wife enjoy picnics, fishing and, above all, dancing.

Reading Speed Aim Of Class

Evening classes designed to increase reading speed are scheduled to start in San Rafael July 29 it was announced today by Donald R. Kogut, head of the Rapid Reading Co.

Classes will be held at the company office, 508-A Fourth street, on Monday, Wednesday and Thursday at 7:30 p.m.

Kogut, former instructor at Michigan State University, says the average adult should double his reading speed by the end of the initial five-week course.

Quorum Lacking

Because of lack of a quorum there was no meeting of the Marin City Community Services District board Thursday night, according to Mrs. Juanita S. Cobb, secretary.

BODIES DISMEMBERED

Farm Woman Tells Of Slaying Two Men

ANNISTON, Ala (UPI)—A tall, heavy-set farmer's daughter calmly related yesterday how she killed her boy friend and his brother during a drinking bout, then dismembered their bodies with an ax and scattered the remains along a highway.

"I feel better after telling my story," Miss Viola Hyatt, 30, told police yesterday after she admitted the slayings.

State public safety director Floyd Mann said Miss Hyatt admitted killing the brothers because they drank too heavily, abused her, and abused her 75-year-old father.

Officers continued to search for arms and legs which Miss Hyatt admitted lopping off after she shot her sweetheart, Lee Harper, and his brother, Emmett.

The torsos of the two brothers were found June 28 and June 29 near an abandoned farm house about 40 miles from the scene of the crime.

Beach Plan Approved

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The California Park Commission today approved "in principle" a plan to acquire Palm Beach on Monterey Bay near Watsonville.

Opera Singer Will Appear At Meadows

Nadine Conner, Metropolitan Opera Co. soprano, will give her first recital under Marin Music Chest auspices at 3 p.m. tomorrow in Forest Meadows, San Rafael, with Galen Lurwick as accompanist.

The program will include Handel, Richard Strauss, Puccini, Canteloupe, Obradors, Massenet, and Dvorak.

Taxi service will be available from San Rafael Greyhound Bus depot to the Meadows. Gates will open at 1:30 p.m., with no reserved seats. Concert tickets will be available at the box office.

19 VERY SPECIAL TOMORROW FOR THIS YOUTH

For Frank Garcia Jr. the number 19 tomorrow will have special significance.

On that day, July 19, 1959, he will be 19.

He lives at 19 Tarrant court, San Rafael.

Frank Sr. says there probably will be a party—a barbecue for the family. But not with 19 guests.

Brown Signs Bill

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A bill signed by Gov. Edmund G. Brown make it a misdemeanor to stop at the scene of a disaster if the effect is to impede rescue efforts. Newsmen are exempted.

UNDERWATER DIVING

Swim Pool Builders Offer New Service

If you lose a motor or sink a boat in deep water and need some help to recover them, there is an underwater diving firm right in San Rafael that is ready to go to work for you.

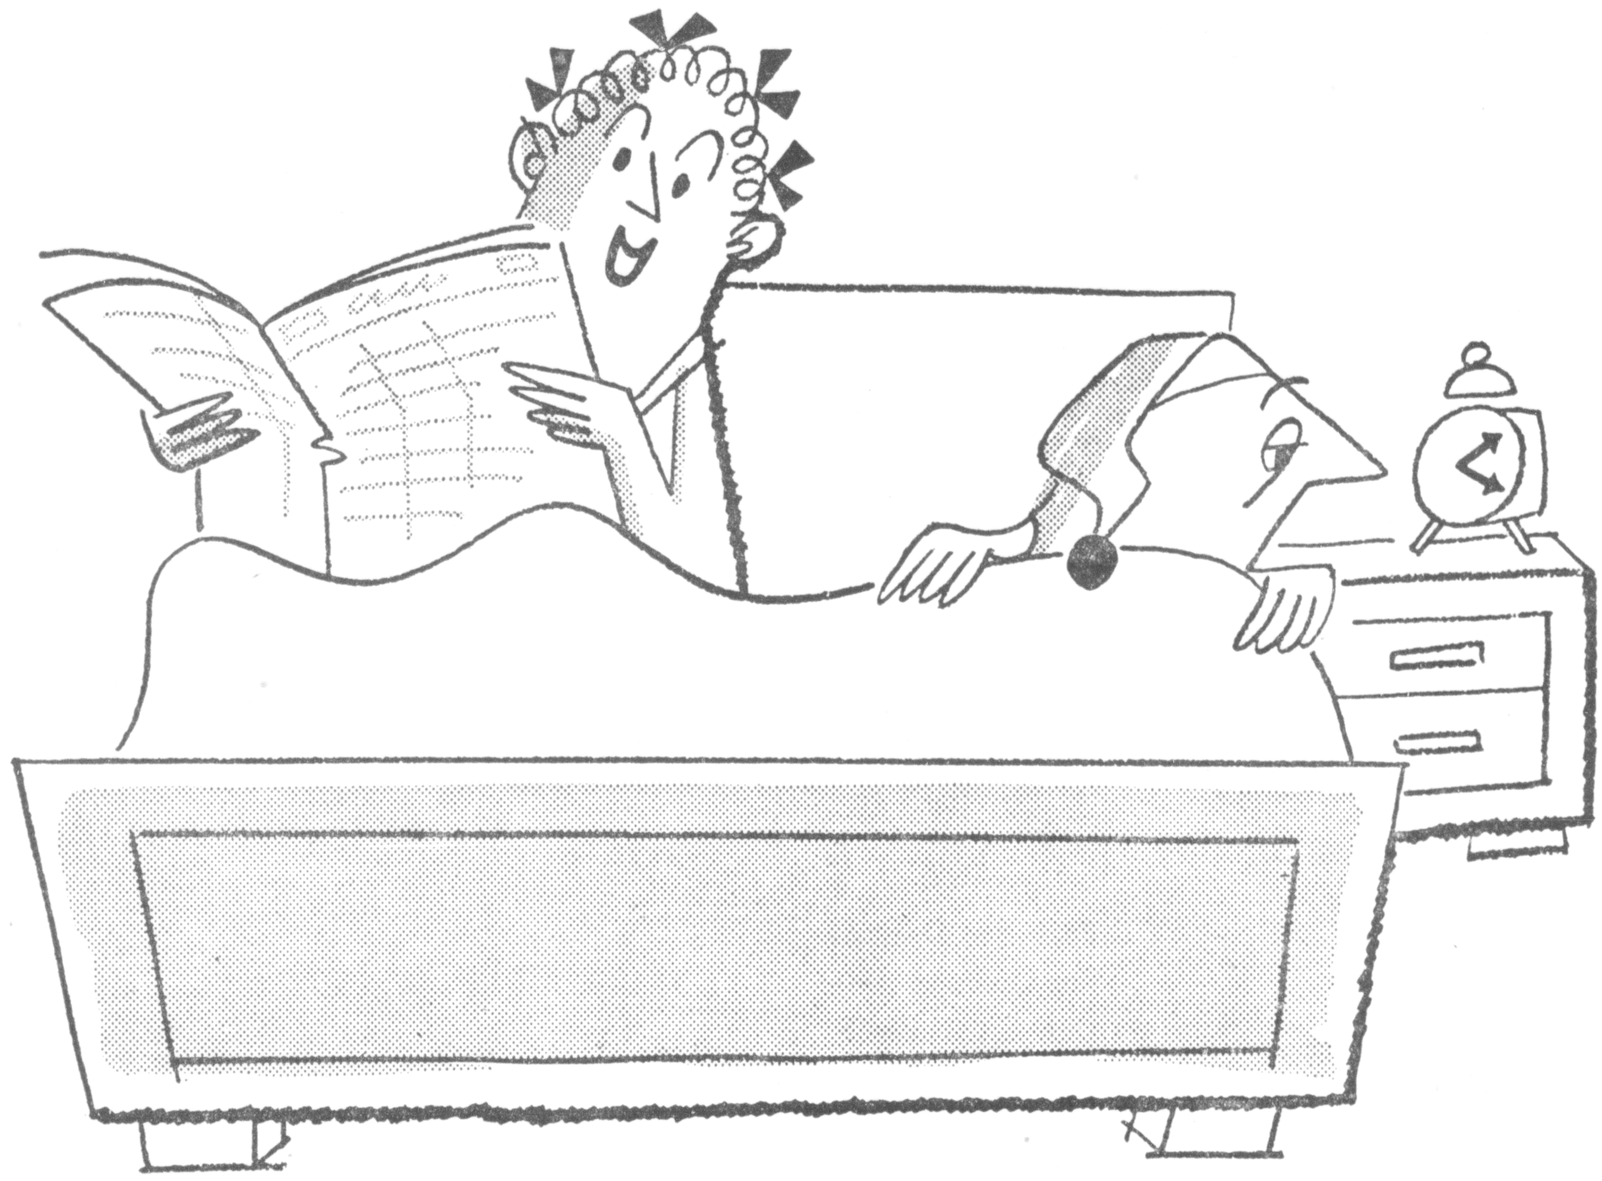
Larry Wright and Associates of 90 Louise street, San Rafael, has added underwater diving and repair to its regular job of swimming pool building.

Wright announced he has good divers who will dive in ocean, bay, rivers, pools and tanks to make repairs or salvage sunken ships, planes or valuables. Here are some of the wide variety of jobs that can be handled by Wright and Associates:

Recovering lost outboard motors, sunken boats and planes, cutting of pilings or repairing pilings below the water level, underwater boat repair without drydocking, repairing swimming pool leaks without draining water, sanding down plaster inside a filled pool, recovery of missing bodies, and other underwater activity.

Meeting Cancelled

The regular Wednesday night meeting of the Tiburon Peninsula Coordinating Council has been canceled, according to Chairman Peter Macgowan.



"Don't bother me . . . I'm doing tomorrow's shopping with the I-J ads!"

MRS. MARIN carefully studies the ads in the daily Independent-Journal. In more than 26,000 homes* she (and Mr. Marin too) is alert to every offering of stores, shops and professional services. Prices and values are compared, and the Marin family disburses an average yearly income of $7,445, a rate that tops every county in the state except one (first by a slight margin: San Mateo County).

No other community in the west gives the advertiser such waste-free, concentrated coverage of high-income buyers at such low cost per family. Nearly 100 per cent of the I-J's circulation is home delivered —right on the doorsteps of 5 out of 7 Marin householders. This is paid-for and wanted circulation—no throwaways or free copies are included.

If you are in business and want to do more than a neighborhood trade in Marin, there is only one sure way to build and grow—follow the example of practically every successful Marin enterprise and advertise in the daily Independent-Journal!

Teen-Age Son Is Poor Worker When Employed By His Father

Mr. E.C. "I own a store. I hired my teenage son to work in it during the summer vacation. He was a poor worker. I was about to fire him when I heard one of my friend complain that his boy was the same way. He had hired his son just as I had hired mine. He had had equally bad results. We decided to have our boys trade jobs. They were glad to do it. Now my son is doing well working for my friend. His son has a good record working for me. Why wouldn't those boys settle down and work for their fathers?"

Reply. Probably the reason is the resentment teenage boys feel toward their fathers. If they work for their dads they carry the same feelings over to their jobs. They may fight back, and resent simple directions. They may be lazy. But often the same boys will feel only admiration for another boss. They may work their heads off for them. It's good you thought of having them trade jobs.

Mr. E.N. "Should the father be the one to punish the children? I'm bigger and stronger than my wife. We have four sons and one daughter. I think my wife should wait until I get home from work, and then have me do the spankings. Instead she goes ahead and whips them when they are bad. The result is that they respect her more than they do me. Is she right? Or am I?"

Reply. Sorry to disagree, but I think you are both wrong. My feeling is that parents should share equally the responsibility for disciplining their children. It shouldn't be the exclusive job of either the mother or the father. Do you and your wife apply the same standards to your children? Are you equally strict? Do you always try to use the mildest punishment that will teach the needed lesson? Do you use rewards and praise? Do you use corporal punishment sparingly? Do your children know you love and respect them? If so they'll have the same respect and love for each of you.

Ike Not Cool About Bohlen

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower has taken steps to correct the impression that he is cool to the idea of bringing Ambassador Charles E. (Chip) Bohlen back to Washington as an expert on the Soviet Union.

Eisenhower authorized his press secretary, James C. Hagerty, to announce yesterday that nothing could be farther from the truth than reports that the President lacks confidence in Bohlen. He said he has a great deal of confidence in him. The President was reported dismayed that references by him to Bohlen at the presidential news conference Wednesday had been misinterpreted.

TIGHT SWEATER TABOO IN STATE VEHICLE OFFICE

SACRAMENTO (AP) —Peek-a-boo blouses and tight sweaters have been outlawed for Sacramento employees of the state Department of Motor Vehicles by Al Veglia, registrar of vehicles, on grounds "they do not make for efficiency in government."

This also goes for women's skin-tight abbreviated slacks and men who have been working without benefit of shoes, sox, shirt or undershirt.

Sailor Arrested Following Chase

Raymond Dennis Crews, 19, was in jail charged with reckless driving and resisting arrest following a 100-mph chase starting in Sausalito and winding up in the hills of Greenbrae at approximately 3 a.m. today.

Crews, a sailor of 68 Greenbrae boardwalk, Larkspur, was handcuffed by Larkspur patrolman John Cottle and Special Officer Oakley Dexter in the 300 block of Almenor drive where he was found in his vehicle, apparently asleep.

The chase involved units from Sausalito, Corte Madera and Larkspur. Crews' car struck a "keep right" sign on Highway 101 at the Greenbrae turnoff, police said. The vehicle was identified by matching paint on the fender.

Catholic Girl Quits Contest

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—There'll be no Miss Omaha in the Miss Nebraska contest because 18-year-old Mary Jean Belitz isn't going to jeopardize her Catholic college education.

The blue-eyed blonde quit the state contest after, she said, she was told that if she competed she would not be permitted to re-enter Duchesne College in Omaha next fall. She will be a sophomore.

Mary Jean said the chief objection of the church school officials was the bathing suit competition part of the contest.

Fairfax Trustees To Discuss Taxes

A report on proposed higher taxes will be made at a meeting of the Fairfax School District Board at 7:45 p.m. Tuesday in the Manor School multiuse room.

Discussion will center on a report of plans for independent operation during 1960-61. A subject that Supt. Harold R. DePue said he hopes to have explored thoroughly by next Jan. 1. The amount of tax increase required is a key consideration.

Modifications or corrections of an administrative handbook given to the board in June will be considered.

They were passengers in a car driven by Delbert Eugene Saunders, 29, of 285 Scenic drive, Fairfax, that collided with the stopped car of Mrs. Alta May Gray, 51, of 208 Beach drive, Belvedere, the CHP said. Alice Lon, Welk Part After Tiff

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Singer Alice Lon's long association with Lawrence Welk's orchestra has ended, the Mirror News said today.

The question of whether she quit or was fired was up in the air.

LAWRENCE CHANGED

"I just couldn't take it any longer. Lawrence has changed. It isn't the same happy family it used to be when I joined him six years ago."

The newspaper story said Miss Lon and Welk had a disagreement over an undisclosed subject before the band went on vacation last month.

"I was mad and told him I was quitting, but he didn't say anything," Miss Lon was quoted. "A few days later I received a letter from his manager telling me that my resignation had been accepted."

MISSES REHEARSAL

Miss Lon was reported to have been absent from rehearsal yesterday for tonight's resumption of the Welk television show over the ABC network.

The Mirror News reported Welk said she had quit "without talking things over."

BUILDINGS ORDERED VACATED

It's Deadline Time Again For Sausalito Dwellings

By RANDALL GOULD

Sausalito's ancient problem of even more ancient arks and dwellings faced another of its many deadlines today. Prospects were that this deadline would be as ineffectual and frustrating as the many that have gone before.

By order of Marin Superior Court three buildings owned by Donlon Arques at Marinship, elegantly termed "apartments" but otherwise identified as Ways 1, 2 and 3, were to be vacated by today. Failure to bring this about is supposed to result of contempt proceedings.

But the order is directed at Arques as owner whereas the residents, to an unknown number, flit in and out with no apparent interest in such legalities. Thus the general skepticism as to their moving out.

Next big day in the lives of Sausalito's numerous dwellers on antique arks and barges will be Monday, July 27, according to John B. Ehlen, Sausalito city attorney. On that date proceedings may start against a considerable number of such residents provided the authorities have been able by then to serve legal papers on them—a problem which has proved vexatious over a period of several years of sporadic efforts.

The chief hassle about ark residence is that raw sewage is discharged directly into the bay from the vessels. Four of the dwellers against whom orders had been served to make sewer connections or leave their floating homes were originally up against today as deadline, but they now have until a week from today, Saturday, July 25—two days before proceedings are due to come up against others to a possible total of around 30.

The four affected by a May ruling by Judge Thomas F. Keating are all on underwater Mono street. It was the court's wish that they apply to the city council for permission to tie in with a sewer but the council denied such permission lest affirmative action countenance obstruction of a public street. Next, it is indicated, will be an effort to dissolve the court order.

Other old-boat dwellers are scattered here and there elsewhere, including the Marinship area, living in abandoned craft which the authorities declare to be true homes with no prospect of ever navigating again. Ehlen supports the council's attitude of refusing sewer hookups and hopes for specific legislation to outlaw this kind of residence.

"But finding these people is like looking for a needle in a haystack," said Ehlen on a basis of many months of wrangling, plot and counterplot.

The problem is said to be about as old as Sausalito but it has been a matter of active though indecisive battle for two years.

Bridges Says Story Of Deals 'Fantastic'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Harry Bridges called "fantastic" the testimony of a "once prominent New York lawyer" before the Senate Racket Committee in Washington.

Bridges did not once identify the witness in his column in the Friday issue of the Dispatcher, publication of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union.

Bridges said the man was put on the stand "to rattle through a story about deals within deals."

Bartley C. Crum, New York attorney, told the committee Monday that Bridges had approached him in an alleged scheme to buy off one of the court-appointed monitors for James Hoffa's Teamster Union. Crum said the long-run aim was a merger of the Bridges and Hoffa unions.

In his article, Bridges denied that any such merger was planned.

"Such matters have never been the subject of discussion between the ILWU and the Teamsters at any time," Bridges wrote.

Bridges contended the rackets committee sought to create an impression "from our few discussions" that the two unions were "up to something evil, subversive and illegal."

Hoffa told the committee the ILWU and Teamsters had held discussions over jurisdictions and organizing programs in Hawaii.

Bridges and Hoffa also have talked together on common problems resulting from increased automation on loading docks with a threat of idling workers.

Kistler Asks Jail Sentence Be Dropped

Donald D. Kistler, 35, former San Rafael newstand operator convicted of having lewd films in his shop, is scheduled to appear in Marin Municipal Court Monday afternoon to face a jail sentence.

His sentence had been stayed since October of last year while he appealed the conviction. Then sentence imposed at that time was three year's probation on condition he serve 90 days in jail or pay $375 fine and serve 45 days in jail.

Kistler's attorney, Albert Bendich, told Dist. Atty. William O. Weissich his client asked the court to relieve him of the jail sentence. Kistler is now working for the Look Magazine sales department in San Jose, according to Bendich.

Weissich, who prosecuted the case, said he will demand that the jail sentence be carried out.

Drunken Drivers Given Penalties

One drunken driver drew a jail term plus a fine, while another got off with a fine yesterday in Marin Municipal Court.

Judge Harold J. Haley ordered George Andrew Kitt, 51, of 1 Summit avenue, San Anselmo, to spend five days in jail and pay a $250 fine for his second offense. Kitt was caught on Second street in San Rafael last July 2. He had a prior conviction.

A first offender, who got off with $200 fine, was Thomas Jay Wilson, 62, of 519 Mission avenue, San Rafael. San Rafael police arrested him on Mission avenue last Monday.

The judge put Wilson on one year probation on condition he pay the fine, not drink for six months, and drive only for work and necessary family errands for the next six months and only between 6 a.m. and 6 p.m.

A base spokesman said no report had been received today as to when the officer will arrive. He is to be hospitalized at Hamilton.

Cattle Set Record; Beef No Cheaper

SACRAMENTO (AP)—A record number of cattle were being fattened for California's markets July 1, but it isn't likely to make beef any cheaper.

The state Agricultural Department reported this week that the state had a record 648,000 calves and cattle on feed when the month opened. The cattle go on feed a few months prior to being shipped to market.

Long range economic forecasts say there probably won't be any break in the price of beef, however.

Pupils Guests At Presido

More than 30 handicapped children from the Marindale School in San Anselmo were given an all-day tour of aspects of both the historic and modern U. S. army yesterday.

The group had army chow at the Honor Guard Company Mess and then visited points of historic interest in the Presidio. Finally, they visited Ft. Cronkhite and saws one of the army's Nike sites.

Patrol Steps Up Trucker Arrests

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Statistics from the California Highway Patrol indicate that patrolmen are cracking down harder this year on truckers than they did last.

During the first five months of 1958, officers stopped and checked 742,000 trucks. During the same period this year they had upped the number nearly 40,000.

Total arrests, mostly for speeding or driving overweight vehicles, went up 4 per cent, from 66,000 to nearly 69,000.

Expert Will Study Famed Gold Area

Steel Strike Hits Defense Output

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The four-day-old steel strike, currently pinching the nation's economy, is beginning to put a dent in national defense work.

The strike has already snarled plans for the completion of three Atlas missile launching sites near Cheyenne, Wyo., according to construction officials.

The first site, scheduled for completion on Sept. 20, will be finished in time. But high pressure tanks for the other sites are not expected to be delivered in time for the November completion date because of the strike, the officials said.

As for the economic situation, the nation's steel production losses continue to mount. Production losses are estimated at 300 million dollars a week. Wage losses are running close to 70 million dollars a week.

The strike, which began at Tuesday midnight, has idled some 500,000 members of the United Steelworkers and some 35,000 workers in allied industries, such as railroads, coal mines and transportation.

Negotiations are stalemated. Federal mediation commissioners have slated separate talks with both sides for Monday in New York.

President Eisenhower and James P. Mitchell, secretary of labor, conferred on the situation in Washington yesterday. Details of the conference were not released. In Indianapolis, Sen. Vance Hartke (D-Ind.) charged that President Eisenhower should have tried harder to avert the steel strike.

"He could have called these people together," Hartke told newsmen Friday at the Young Democrats state convention. "He should have shown some leadership."

In Detroit, Walter P. Reuther, head of the United Auto Workers, pledged the UAW's organizational, moral and financial support to the Steelworkers in a telegram to USW President David J. McDonald.

Warren Is Home

The former Republican governor began a brief California vacation yesterday in Sacramento where he visited friends he had known while heading the state from 1942 to 1953, including Gov. Edmund G. Brown, a Democrat.

Churchill Says No

LONDON (AP) — Sir Winston Churchill was reported today to have turned down an American film company's plans to make a movie of his life.

The Daily Herald said the former prime minister rejected the proposal by Metro Goldwyn Mayer because he did not approve of the screen play. The paper said the film was to have starred either Orson Welles or Peter Ustinov as Churchill, who will be 85 next November.

Chickens Are Down

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The agricultural department reported today that the chicken population is going down.

Commercial hatcheries produced 1,992,840,000 chicks in June, 12 per cent below the production of a year earlier but 28 per cent above the 1953-57 average for the month.

The department said fewer hatches were expected in July than a year ago.

Sounds Better Now

BREVARD, N.C. (AP)—"What's stuffed in your instrument?" a Transylvania music camp instructor asked a student of the bass horn.

"Nothing," the boy replied, "I've been playing it all year and it's always sounded like this."

The teacher insisted the horn be washed out and, shortly thereafter, the red-faced boy returned holding a pair of girl's pants. Both agreed the horn now sounds better.

Vaccine Hopes High

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—A Soviet scientist yesterday said he had high hopes for a live polio vaccine developed in the Soviet Union.

Dr. Valentine D. Soloviev said about four million Soviet children have been vaccinated with the serum. He said it is too early to tell whether it is a success.

Queen To Yukon

VICTORIA, Canada (UPI) — Queen Elizabeth heads north for the Yukon and northwest territories today on a "voyage of discovery" into the land of "Dangerous Dan McGrew" and "The Lady That's Known As Lou."

Whistle Bait

LONG BEACH (AP)—For the fellows who like to whistle at girls, this seaside city—crowded with Miss Universe beauties—is the best spot to start.

Seventy-six lovelies from all over the world are on hand for the annual international beauty pageant. At least three more are expected to check in by Monday.

The pageant begins officially tonight.

Whites Acquit Negro

PENSACOLA, Fla. (UPI)— An all-white jury yesterday found Negro Raymond Nash, 29, innocent of murder in the waterfront slaying of a prominent Pensacola white businessman.

The all-male jury deliberated only 45 minutes before freeing Nash in the January slaying of Maurice Finman, 52, owner of the Pensacola Rug and Shade Co. Finman was found shot to death in a deserted waterfront area near a Negro swimming pool the night of Jan. 31.

Fire Claims Life

KERNVILLE (UPI)— Complete control of the week-old lightning-caused Sequoia National Forest fire which has claimed one life is predicted for this afternoon.

The death occurred yesterday when James E. Bastady, a forest service trail crewman, died in a San Francisco hospital of burns suffered Sunday. He was burned along with Robert Knudsen of Kernville when they were trapped in a wind-caused flareup.

Knudsen remains in critical condition in a Bakersfield hospital.

School Vote Breather

SACRAMENTO (AP)—California will get a breather from school board elections until April, 1961. The only exceptions will be in new districts formed prior to next Feb. 1.

A bill signed by Gov. Brown provides that school elections shall be held every two year, and that board members shall be elected for four-year terms. The elections will be held in odd-numbered years. The old law provided for annual elections for three-year terms.

New UCLA Head

BERKELEY (AP) — A 65-year-old acoustical physicist will take over as chancellor of UCLA on Sept. 1.

Dr. Vern O. Knudsen was appointed by the University of California regents yesterday to succeed Dr. Raymond B. Allen. Dr. Knudsen has been a member of the UCLA faculty since 1922.

Foreign Aid Fight Shifts To House

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress' annual battle over foreign aid spending shifted to the House today following conference committee approval of a $3,556,200,000 authorization measure.

The compromise bill, voted out late yesterday by House-Senate conferees, may reach the House floor as early as next Wednesday. The measure appeared certain of passage there and later in the Senate.

But the foreign aid fight was far from over.

Economy advocates hope to cut the program when congress considers another bill carrying the actual cash authorized by yesterday's measure.

Chairman Otto E. Passman (D-La.) of the House Foreign Aid Appropriations Subcommittee noted that in past years congress has appropriated "several hundred million dollars" less than the ceiling fixed by the authorization bill.

"We hope to keep the batting average up this year, too," Passman said today. "We expect to work the fat out of the bill and give the President what he needs, not what he wants."

Jensen Addresses Sausalito Rotary

The process of budgeting county expenditures is now keyed to "performance" rather than a fixed future amount, Donald A. Jensen, Marin County administrator, told the Sausalito Rotary Club this week.

As an illustration, Jensen explained that the budget might contemplate a certain number of sanitary inspections or a specified number of car miles, rather than setting up a fixed amount of money. He said it is a principle advocated by the Hoover report on federal procedures.

The Sausalito club also welcomed a visiting Rotarian from South America: Angel Gargarello of Berazategui, Argentina.

VISITING ROTARIAN—Walter J. Hamilton of San Carlos, governor of California's northwest Rotary district, will speak before the San Rafael Rotary Club Monday and confer with local officials on administration and service problems. The visiting official was elected governor of this district at Rotary's 50th annual convention in New York last June.

Fairfax Woman Sues For Hurts

Kathryn C. Hall, 58, of 42 Meadow way, Fairfax, seeks $75,000 damages in Marin Superior Court for injuries suffered last December when a car hit her in front of St. Rita's Church in Fairfax.

She filed the suit yesterday against Robert and Kathleen Harwood of 66 Vendola drive, Santa Venetia. The suit was originally filed in San Francisco, but it was transferred to the Marin court because both parties live in Marin County.

Mrs. Hall alleges she was walking in a pedestrian lane across Sir Francis Drake boulevard Dec. 7 when a car driven by Harwood struck her. She claims injuries to her pelvis, body, limbs, and head plus internal hurts and severe shock.

Dave Phillips Now Heads 20-30 Club

Dave Phillips has been installed as president of the San Rafael 20-30 Club.

Phillips and other officers were in stalled at a special "Hawaiian Night" meeting Saturday at Rickey's Rancho Rafael, where the club meets regularly at 7:30 p.m. Mondays.

Ray Manges, a past district governor from Vallejo, installed the officers.

Also installed were James Robichaud, first vice president; Don Miller, second vice president, and David Goetlieb, secretary. Vern Silva was re-installed as treasurer. Richard Peterson, Robert Kant, Goetlieb and Silva were installed as directors. Tom Cowles was named publicity chairman.

Play Commission Postpones Meet

Thursday's regular meeting of the Sausalito Recreation Commission was postponed until July 23 at 7:30 p.m., when members plan a field trip of the city's park and recreation facilities, according to Commission Chairman John Minton.

At that time, all of the city's present recreation facilities, including park sites, will be inspected in addition to school playgrounds. Minton said the commission also plans to inspect potential recreation locations.

Unions, Business Split On Merits Of House Labor Reform Measure

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Union and business leaders split today over relative merits of the House Labor Committee's newly completed labor reform bill.

Another battle looms Wednesday, when the bitterly divided committee is scheduled to take a formal vote on its version of the Senate-approved Kennedy-Ervin Bill.

The AFL-CIO and U.S. Chamber of Commerce withheld official comment on the House measure until they could examine it closely for possible hidden defects.

But union officials generally were agreeably surprised by the committee's action yesterday and said the House bill would be far "easier to live with" than the Senate measure.

Business spokesmen and conservative congressmen, however, contended that the 100-plus amendments adopted by the 30-member House group pulled the teeth from the Senate's proposals.

AFL-CIO sources said the elimination of criminal penalties—jail terms and fines—for union officials violating the "bill of rights" provisions in the House measure made it more acceptible to labor. Some also cheered the reduction in investigatory powers for the secretary of labor as provided in the House bill.

Rep. Edgar W. Heistand (R-Calif.) served notice he will make another effort Wednesday to get the House group to approve a tougher bill. If he carries out this threat, pro-labor Democrats planned to counter by proposing an even-milder substitute.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A memorial service will be held next Tuesday for Eugene Meyer, chairman of the board of the Washington Post Co., who died yesterday afternoon at the age of 83.

Japanese Tea Ritual Has Nothing On My Barbecuing

THE COMPLICATED RITUAL of the ancient Japanese tea ceremony Cha-No-Yu has nothing on my formal rites of Smo-Kinyu-Rize in barbecuing.

They have been handed down in my family from one season to another ever since I first got spliters in my palms rubbing two sticks together.

None of your skimpy charcoal braziers for me—I'd as soon toast a hotdog over my cigarette lighter. Our hibachi is a primitive monstrosity of cement, bricks and mortar weighing two tons. Its aesthetic value lies in starting everything from scratch.

The scene is usually set on a Saturday or Sunday with a careful selection of props — empty milk cartons, old newspapers and contents of the wastebasket. These are scattered reverently in the blackened sacrificial pit over the remains of yesterweek's embers which I purposely had not removed, hoping a good stiff breeze would do it for me.

Next step consists of gathering other highly combustible material which has been undergoing a special drying-out process in various parts of the yard — leaves, twigs and tree prunings. It must be used sparingly at first, lest the fire whistles toot 551 and several helmeted gentlemen appear in answer to calls from nervous neighbors.

Third stage is the laying of luscious chunks of oak and bay which have seasoned through several summers. They are the meat and body of the pyrotechnics to follow.

Touch of the lucifer is usually applied according to what programs are on TV, what is to be cooked and when. It would never do to conflict with Perry Mason on Saturday night, nor Ed Sullivan on Sunday. The video is too heavy to move to the patio and the barbecue will never budge from its moorings except by a direct bomb hit.

The trick is to reduce the raw materials to glowing charcoal at just the right moment, supervising same before or after the program or during the commercials.

Preliminary rites are performed amid muttered incantations, coughing and billowing smoke which engulfs the patio and can be seen from Tamalpais. The purpose of this is to discourage yellow jackets and anyone else who may be thinking of joining us for dinner.

Sheets of flame follow almost immediately. They scorch everything within a five foot radius—walnut tree, climbing roses and eyebrows. I am not sure but I think this is caused by the poor draft in the chimney.

They don't last too long and usually go out entirely or burn the wood down to ashes before we are ready to cook. This requires repeating steps 2 and 3. Again the sparks fly as I try to make up for lost time.

"Smells good," Celia calls from her patio next door. "What are you cooking?"

"I haven't started yet," I yell back. "That was my thumb. I burned it on the hot poker."

It has now gotten dark and I am able to see that what I thought were ashes are live coals after all. If I wait for all the new wood to burn it means another hour so I push it to the sides of the pit where it smolders spiteful clouds of hydrocarbons.

My wife brings out the meat and I throw it on the grill. She says it is chicken but there is really no way of telling until the smoke clears away. By then it is so charred only its mother would recognize it.

We don't drink the tea.

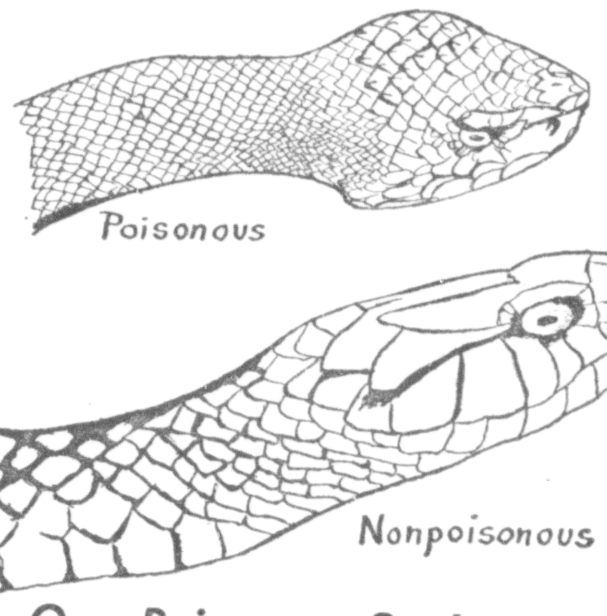
NATURE NOTES



Only One Poisonous Snake Found Within Marin County

By S. THOMPSON WALKER
Director

Marin county is fortunate in having only one poisonous snake. This is the Pacific rattlesnake which averages three feet in length. Like all the rattlesnakes it is easy to identify once you become familiar with its distinctive form.

Rattlesnakes have a broad, trangular or V-shaped head with a very definite thinner neck area behind the head. The tail will be blunt and stubby due to the presence of the rattles. The non-poisonous snakes will be seen to be much more streamlined. The head and neck are not as distinct and the tail is long and thin in normal specimens.

Snakes as a whole are beneficial and should be treated in an intelligent manner. Most of the snakes that will be observed in Marin County are harmless.

The California king snake is probably the most distinctive. Its black body with vivid white bands circling the upper part provides an easy mark of identification. This snake eats other snakes, rattlers included, which in itself should make it popular.

The other common snakes are the garter snakes and the gopher snake. The garter snakes are generally greenish-gray with two or three longitudinal stripes of a yellowish or red color. They feed on cold-blooded prey such as fish and frogs. The gopher snake is the one that is most commonly mistaken for the rattlesnake. They are generally stout, strong-bodied snakes with a yellowish body hue and brown blotches. They are very beneficial because they feed almost entirely on small rodents.

A good rule for everyone would be to leave all snakes alone if there is any question as to what kind they are, or what they do to aid man.

'Pushbutton War A Lot Of Hooey'

'But Conflict With Russia Looks To Be Unavoidable'

By WILLIAM L. EARLE

Joseph Cumming Thomas had a tougher time enlisting in the Army than he did becoming mayor of Larkspur.

It took him four tries before he was finally accepted for a military career in 1901. Thirty-nine years later, on his first try, he won election to the Larkspur City Council; and two years after that, his council colleagues elevated him to the office of mayor.

Thomas, now 80, enlisted as a buck private and rose to the rank of major during more than 30 years of soldiering. He served in the Army, the Philippine Constabulary, the famed Philippine Scouts and, once again, the Army.

In 1937, five years after retiring from the service, he bought a comfortable hillside house at 263 West Baltimore avenue, Larkspur, where he lives with his wife, Violet, and their son, James, 35. The Army interrupted his retirement (and his local political career) in 1942, recalling him to active duty for three years of World War II service in Utah.

AS AN OLD FOOTSOLDIER Major Thomas dismisses the idea of a "pushbutton" war as "a lot of hooey."

"You've got to have a man on the ground to take a piece of ground and hold it," he says with emphasis.

He thinks the U. S. eventually will be drawn into war with Russia, "although everyone is trying to head it off as long as possible. I don't know how we are going to avoid it."

The youngest of seven children, Thomas was born Jan. 22, 1879, in the village of Summerville, Ga., which later was to lose its identiy by annexing to Augusta. His father was a Richmond County judge.

Thomas attended Sewanee Military Academy and the University of the South, both at Sewanee, Tenn. The latter gave him what he calls "a liberal-classical education with a good dose of mathematics."

When the Spanish-American War broke out in 1898, Thomas and a group of college friends who had also been to military school decided to enlist as a volunteer battalion.

His age (19), plus a War Department announcement that entire units no longer were being accepted, brought Thomas his first rejection for military service.

"LATE IN the same year," he said, "a bunch of us slipped down to Tampa, Fla., hoping to enlist there and go to Cuba. But one morning they called out our names and told us to go back home. So, back to school we went."

His third rebuff came the next year, when he "dashed over to Atlanta" to enlist in the 7th U. S. Infantry, a Regular Army regiment. He was told he would need his parents' consent, and that's where he failed.

"Within several days my mother and my sister showed up at Ft. Oglethorpe and took me away by the ear," Thomas remembers with a grin. "But I didn't give up!"

YOUTHFUL EXUBERANCE paid off in 1901, when Thomas, then 22, was enlisted in Augusta for the 12th U. S. Cavalry, then being organized at Ft. Sam Houston, Tex.

He was a sergeant when his outfit relieved the 1st Cavalry two years later in the Philippine Islands.

The Philippine Insurrection was in progress, but Thomas said his regiment saw little fighting aside from "several raids and a few little troubles we had to go and straighten out."

Thomas was discharged at the end of his three-year enlistment, but he returned to the islands in 1905 after accepting appointment to the Philippine Constabulary, a military and civil force. Its enlisted men were Filipinos, while its officer corps was composed of U. S. Army officers and ex-officers.

Thomas entered the constabulary as a third lieutenant and rose to first lieutenant. At the start, he underwent six months of rigorous training at Santa Lucia, an old Spanish garrison in Manila.

"During those four years," he recalls, "we went up and down the islands fighting bands of insurrectionists. Much of it was rough hand-to-hand combat. I had a very close call one time when a bullet ricocheted and put a dent in my head."

It was during this period that Thomas gained lasting respect for the Filipino as a human fighting machine.

"I DON'T know of, and I've never heard of, any better fighters than the Filipinos," he said. "And I haven't seen a Filipino outfit I wouldn't be willing to serve with."

Citing an example of their fierce loyalty, Thomas tells of one pro-American Filipino who, without hesitation, killed his insurrectionist brother to save the life of his commanding officer, an American.

While on leave in the States in June of 1906, Thomas married the former Violet Sawyer of San Francisco, who was to share many more of his years in the Philippines. Their wedding was on a Friday the 13th, which Thomas says was "very lucky, because we are still married after 53 years."

In 1910, he resigned from the constabulary to accept appointment as a second lieutenant in the Philippine Scouts, a battle-hardened band of trouble shooters organized under the U. S. Army. Its enlisted men all were Filipinos.

Thomas participated in the Scouts' final 1915-16 expedition to Mindanao, "where some Moros got hostile and had to be calmed down."

"We wanted to go to France in 1917 and '18," he said, "but they froze us out and we sat in the Philippines all through the war.

WHEN THE SCOUTS became part of the Regular Army under a 1920 reorganization program, Thomas, then a major, was assigned to the 31st Infantry in Manila with the same rank. The next year, with other veterans of Philippine service, he was sent back to the States. By that time the Army was a skeleton organization.

Thomas' peacetime assignments took him to Camp Sherman, Ohio; Ft. Knox, Ky.; the command and general staff school at Ft. Leavenworth, Kan., and Ft. Douglas, Utah.

In 1927, he was sent to Montana as National Guard inspector for a two-week Guard encampment. The two weeks stretched into five years.

"They took kind of a liking to me," he recalls modestly, "and through the governor, I was detailed as senior instructor of the Montana National Guard, with headquarters at Helena."

By 1932, Thomas was ready to leave the Army. He retired that November.

"When I first enlisted for military service," he said, "I promised myself I would get out after 30 years while I was still young enough to settle down in civilian life. I had seen too many who stayed in too long. They couldn't organize their lives when they got out, and many died within a few years."

TWO YEARS after settling in Larkspur, ex-soldier Thomas opened a real estate and insurance office on Magnolia avenue. He is a charter member of the Larkspur Lions Club, organized in 1938.

Politics was "the last thing I was interested in" when some friends suggested he run for the city council in 1940. They were persistent and circulated a petition in his name before he finally yielded to pressure.

As it turned out, he thoroughly enjoyed being a councilman and, ultimately, mayor.

Thomas had always preferred Army troop duty to supply work. But he was destined to get a taste of the very thing he disliked. In September, 1942, the Army recalled him for service at a huge supply depot near Ogden, Utah.

FORCED TO resign from the council, he took the World War II assignment "much against my wishes, because I had hoped to go to a troop staging area near Seattle."

After the war he returned to Larkspur and, until two years ago, operated his insurance business from his Baltimore Canyon home. He never reopened the real estate office.

His second venture into Larkspur politics was as successful as the first. Elected to the council again in 1946, he became mayor three years later, retiring at the end of his term in 1950.

ONE ISSUE stands out in Thomas' mind as the highlight of his years on the council. It was the big fight over annexation to Larkspur of Greenbrae's Bon Air Apartment area. Annexation opponents finally took the battle to court, and lost.

Thomas was active in the American Legion's Twin Cities Post 313 during the post-war decade. He was a leader of the post's successful campaign to build its own hall at 2 Ward street in Larkspur.

Volunteer labor went into the building program, with a big assist from members of the Larkspur Grove of Druids. Lumber purchases were made in the late 1940s at surplus sales of Treasure Island stocks which the Navy had sold to private operators.

"There are some pretty heavy timbers in that building," Thomas said. "It would take TNT to blow them out of there."

Completed in 1949, the hall was built alongside the former Northwestern Pacific Railroad section foreman's house, which had served as Legion headquarters for two years before its conversion to a clubroom and kitchen.

Thomas was as determined to retire from the city council in 1950 as he had been to leave the Army in 1932. If 30 years in the military were enough for one man, so were two terms in the political arena.

"I'm like Calvin Coolidge," he says. "I don't believe a man should stay in public office too long."

Looking over his many mementoes of Philippine days, Thomas has no regrets about the course he charted for himself.

He's an Old Soldier now, but his handsome eyes still register the enthusiasm of the young Georgia boy who tried so desperately to enlist more than 60 years ago.

Ark Dwellers Cherish Water, Sky

They Choose To Trim Their Walls With Driftwood, Not Pushbuttons

By DOROTHY SLATTERY

There are not many places left to live in this maturing frontier of ours where a family can reside in close contact with the elements of nature. Not many places where its members can use the driftwood from the beaches, the stones of the soil to fashion comfortable homes as the California pioneers a hundred years ago were doing.

One such place is the Sausalito waterfront.

It's a sprawling labyrinth of jutting docks, decaying shipyards and sinking piers; the homestead of teredo eaten hulls, sleek racing yachts, sturdy fishing boats, powerful cruisers and 70 controversial homesites — 35 arks and 38 floating houseboats.

ALTHOUGH MOST of the residents have a creative approach to living and an artistic outlook, the houseboat colony is not entirely the "left bank Bohemia" it might be imagined to be. Instead one can find family after family realistically approaching the business of living . . . drawing the utmost from the beauties around them. As a whole they are not interested in the chrome plated, push-button existence that is mushrooming on the land near by.

Living on a houseboat makes a person depend on initiative and imagination. The Thad Thomases living at Marinship can vouch for this.

Thad and Beverly purchased an ammunition barge over a year ago, and without any prior experience in carpentry, set about converting it into a home. They walled the barge into rooms and when it came time to lay the roof, 30 neighbors pitched in and had a whale of a time finishing the exterior.

This "barn raising" attitude of the houseboat dwellers has been nicknamed the "Sausalito Waterfront Mutual Aid Association." Neighbors help one another construct walls, paint walls, move barges, the women make curtains for their friends.

JERRY WALTERS has been an active member of the "mutual aid association" for ten years. He transformed a 32 foot landing craft into a creative home with a 'butterfly roof' that, besides being visually unique cuts the Bay's severe winds. A sculptor with a studio close to his home, he summed up his feelings about houseboat living.

"You don't find creative life in a package . . . a home should express the people living in it."

On the south side of the ferry "San Rafael," Architect Donald Batchelder lives with his wife and three little girls, Gina 5, Lynn 3½, and Maria 2.

THE PARENTS don't worry about the girls playing in traffic. They have taught their children about the constant danger of the water that is the frontyard. The backyard, the Sausalito shore, is a wonderland of ships and space where Gina, Lynn and Maria can find a new jungle jim every day.

The Batchelders find they have more time for family life and the stimulating effects of the world around them than many persons with greater investments who can't manage the time.

A neighbor of the Batchelder family, Tashi Monroe is a vibrant woman who has a wide circle of friends including outstanding artists and show people.

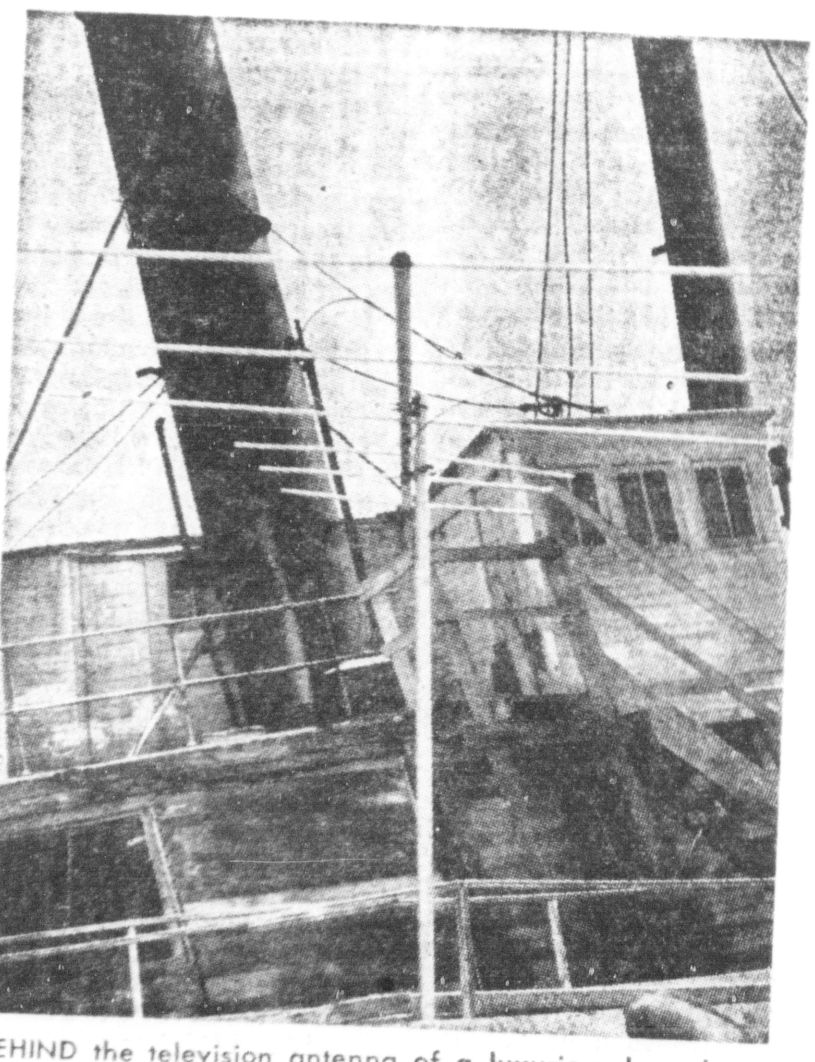
PAT AND BILL Black water the garden on their houseboat moored at Sausalito Yacht Harbor. The Blacks barbecue and sun bathe on the decks. The cabin-like structure on the deck is a skylight for the kitchen below. Bill uses bilges area for storage in place of a hall closet.



BEHIND the television antenna of a luxurious houseboat the old vessel "Lassen" is slowly sinking beneath the waters of Richardson Bay. Nearby families inhabit 35 arks and 38 floating houseboats, a controversial subject in Marin for several years. Living on these waterfront dwellings are artists, architects, teachers, craftsmen, students and San Francisco businessmen. Great believers in the do-it-yourself credo, the families enjoy building walls and furniture to make the barges home. Often the ark and barge neighbors pitch in to help on the big chores.

AT HOME in her houseboat Mrs. Thad Thomas relaxes, finds she is "learning patience from the tides." Beverly and Thad Thomas are in process of finishing walls and plan to replace oil drum stove with fireplace. Drum was set up temporarily for party. The houseboat, moored at Marinship, features diesel Air Force surplus stove. It lacks thermostat so Beverly cooks with a thermometer. The couple plans to finish their kitchen bar-top in mosaic.

SCULPTOR Barney West chisels a bit on a friend on the pier at Sausalito. The sculptor has his studio in the rowing hull of the Lassen, but at certain tides the water creeps up and forces him to evacuate for several hours.

Bay, Mrs. Monroe remembered last summer when, her twin daughters, then 15, brought at least 10 teen-agers home with them every day.

"They swam, sailed, waterskied and played chess by the hour . . . the children have always had something to occupy them . . . maybe this is why there hasn't been any juvenile delinquency on the waterfront . . .," she said.

Mrs. Monroe, a third generation Sausalitan, moved from the hills to her houseboat in 1947.

The Left Bank of Paris has always been called the colorful, flamboyant center of the artistic world. The Sausalito waterfront also enjoys distinction as being an artistic center.

Jean Varda, world famous painter, has transformed part of the ferryboat "Vallejo" into an imaginative studio-apartment. Using inexpensive materials, he has created a home filled with byzantine elegance. There is a stone fireplace inlaid with glass bottles wired for light, authentic sailor cubboards, a bar made from a discarded winch, and government surplus bunks the artist refers to as "Venetian Gothic." One of his latest projects is designing an ensign for his fellow houseboaters to fly. It will feature an eye centered in a field. The eye, Mr. Varda explained, is the symbol for vision. In explaining the development of his own apartment and those of other house boats, Mr. Varda compared the owner-builders to alchemists changing lead to gold.

All the Sausalito houseboats reflect the personalities and tastes of the people living aboard.

THE BLACKS, Bill and Pat, both high school teachers, transferred their living quarters from San Francisco to a 60 foot metal houseboat a year and a half ago. They wanted an individual home and were discouraged by the sameness of tract houses. Since they enjoy the outdoors they decided on the Sausalito waterfront.

The Blacks go boating, swimming and fishing in their spare time. They caught a leopard shark off of Belvedere brought it home and dined on shark steaks. They like to barbecue on their deck and enjoy all the advantages of suburban living.

Pat has used her skill as a home economist in the decorating of her houseboat. She designed bamboo and beaded partitions that allow light and air to circulate throughout the three rooms. This decorative device prevents dampness and milldew from attacking the clothing and furniture.

Bill who is a jack of all trades finds the maintenance of a houseboat a full time job. As he aptly put it, "If you own a houseboat, you'd better take care of it or you'll sink."

Houseboaters enjoy a manner of living that has been slowly vanishing from the Bay Area. And they thrive on the proximity of the winds, the tides in their backyard.

Apply Coat First

Nail holes or other blemishes in Douglas fir finish lumber should be filled after the first coat of finishing material has been applied.

ROOF, BLUE WATERS, golden hills and light blue skies make up vista for the ark and houseboat dweller of Sausalito. Here Peggy Bashoff, a guest at a luxury houseboat docked at the Yacht Harbor, attempts to keep her mind on her book while taking the sun. Houseboat families find the water scene always changing and restful at the same time.

ASTONISHING—Lawrence Steese, a carpenter at Gate 5, Marinship looks in wonder at the small remains of a 90 foot barge that was eaten by teredos, a hazard to all boat owners. The boats must be hauled out of the water each year to be scraped and repainted with copper compound to discourage this marine pest. Steese enjoys life along the waterfront and finds the nearby sailboats the most graceful and yet useful things built by man.

WHAT SHALL I WEAR TODAY

When Sis gets up at morn,
And before she goes away,
We hear in a voice forlorn
What dress shall I wear today!

I don't like the blue,
I won't wear it!
I never did like the grey!
I don't like the tan,
I can't bear it!
What dress shall I wear today.

Now Sis is on vacation
With nothing to do but play,
And we miss the old exclamation,
What dress shall I wear today!

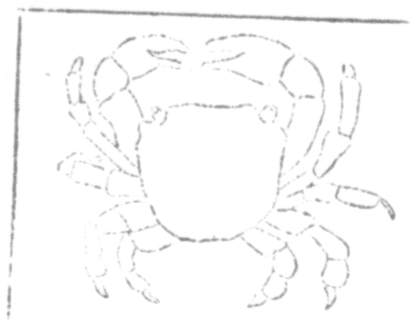
One of the nicest things about wood paneled walls is that so much can be hidden behind them. Step into a lovely, contemporary home and note the profusion of prestige wood paneling, often west coast hemlock or western red cedar, and then try pushing lightly against the wall paneling. Oftentimes, it will open out to reveal linen closets, a dining room buffet, or even laundry equipment.



STRIPED SHORE CRAB (Pachygraphsus crassipes — The Striped Shore Crab or Rock Crab is the most common crab along the California coast. It may be seen scurrying among the rocks, running sideways over the sand, or gathered about a dead fish. It can remain out of water for a considerable time. Stripes and markings vary from red to green to dark purple, and the body may be as much as 1¾ in. across. The female crab carries the eggs about attached to her body. After hatching, they go through a series of changes before transforming into miniatures of the adult. Thereafter crabs cast off their hard covering at intervals, then grow considerably before the new covering hardens. (From "Out-of-Doors in Marin, copyrighted by M. F. Austin.)

Life By Transfusion

Rare Disease Of Bone Marrow Creates Shortage Of Red Cells

By KAY NOAH

Living on borrowed blood since 1954 is Mrs. Ann (J.L.) Winkelman of San Anselmo. She has a rare disease called myelofibrosis which means that her bone marrow is so affected that red cells are not being produced.

No cause has definitely been established for this disease which is so rare that there are no reliable statistics to set a definite pattern. Mrs. Winkelman must face the fact that for the rest of her life, unless some miracle cure is discovered, she will be kept alive through blood replacement. The cells she makes are not as strong as normal red cells and are destroyed faster in the liver and spleen.

MRS. WINKELMAN was held prisoner by the Japanese during World War II, as was her husband although they were in different camps. Her two children were interned with her during her four-year imprisonment. The daughter is now a doctor, Dr. June Summers DeVinney who is a fellow in psychiatry at Stanford, and her son, Wallen Summers, is second of his class at West Point when he graduated in 1957.

Mrs. Winkelman, who is in her late 50s, first became aware of this disease when she came for a yearly checkup in 1954. At first her red count did not fall so far that transfusions were necessary. The detective work on her blood was made by the Donner Radiation Laboratory in Berkeley, who determined exactly how much blood was being made and destroyed in Mrs. Winkelman's body.

The actual transfusions were started in 1956 and it was soon discovered that she required about two units of blood transfusions per month given by her physician, at Marin General Hospital, to maintain a normal blood count. During that year she took six weeks off and went on a trip to Tahiti. At that time her blood was down to 40 per cent of the normal body capacity. When she came back her blood count was much less and since that time she has used up 86 units of blood which were spread over the period of the past three years.

BY MID 1958 there was such a breakdown in her blood cells that it was necessary to administer cortisone - like drugs to block the rate of cell destruction. Because some of the side effects were bad for Mrs. Winkelman, this treatment was stopped to determine the system's general reaction. However, without cortisone, the rate of red blood cell destruction became so rapid that transfusion of two units of blood did not elevate her blood count.

Ten transfusions were required in one week to return the blood to normal and she had to be put back on cortisone.

The latest development is blood transfusions will be of great help to Mrs. Winkelman. She began to have severe reactions with fever to 104 degrees due to antibodies she had developed against the donor's white blood cells. She will have the new units of blood put out by the Irwin Memorial Blood Bank.

It is called "white cell free, washed red cell mass." This blood is processed by washing the cells of the donor's blood with a saline solution and centrifuging the blood. The white cells rise to the top and then can be siphoned off so only the whole red cells remain and are then used to replace blood in the patient. Some of the red cells in the donor's blood are also lost in the process and, in fact, it takes 1½ to 2 units of the new blood to equal the former whole blood when given in transfusion.

Naturally the supply of blood that Mrs. Winkelman will receive is a terrific drain on the financial resources and while there have been many voluntary donations from individuals and friends, members of the Marin County Real Estate Board, inasmuch as Mrs. Winkelman served as a real estate salesman for many years here in the county, and from employees of Schoonmaker Co. of Sausalito where her husband is also an employe, she has been able to afford using the blood. A permanent account setup for Mrs. Winkelman is the aim of Walter Jacobs, who is in charge of blood bank activities at Marin General Hospital for the Irwin Memorial Blood Bank.

Changing San Rafael Canal

Hay Barges Plied Its Waters To Load At D Street Wharves

The San Rafael Canal dates back to the days when hay was what made the wheels of transportation go 'round. Seventy years later, one of its functions still is as a terminal for transportation fuel — now petroleum products.

A few are still around who remember when hay barges chugged up San Rafael Creek to wharves located roughly where the 711 D Street medical center now stands. Nearby, fashionable San Rafael Baths was a summer mecca for swimmers.

Boating on the creek-canal has always been in vogue. Since rowboats were the rage, San Rafael Canal has become anchorage to some 1,000 boats of 18 feet or over, for a taxable value of some $5 millions.

Records on when the canal first was dug are hazy. Originally it followed the course of San Rafael creek, winding westward along what is now Highway 101, under what is now Mac Department Store. Francisco boulevard was a toll road and the hay barges would wend across the marsh to tie up at the D street wharves, according to Clifford Cornwall of the San Rafael City Clerk's office. Himself a newcomer (1924), Cornwall has gathered notes from his father-in-law, Henry Jepson.

Maps of 1899 show the canal in more or less its present course. Dredging was done by the U.S. Corps of Engineers.

THE PROPERTY of the canal and its borders, according to Cornwall, did not come into the City of San Rafael's ownership, however, until 1920. Belatedly recorded were deeds for the property granted to the city by the James L. Flood, Cheda and San Rafael Development Co. interests, among others. Originally the property was owned by railroad baron William Coleman.

At that time, most of the merchandise sold in Marin stores arrived by express freight service barge from San Francisco, to be unloaded at the Irwin Street wharf.

THE BIG changes in the canal, however, have come in the past 10 years. Photos of only 10 years ago show bleak banks on the canal. Today, the same stretches are bordered by commercial yacht anchorages, two yacht clubs, yacht sales service establishments, marina-type housing developments and oil storage facilities One of the big reasons for the canal's being is that it allows shipment of inflammable cargo by tanker directly from the refineries.

Canal development means a big boost to the tax base. Consider the yacht clubs, for instance, with about 200 boats apiece. One popular make of yacht retails at $30,000. Marin Vista, first of several such developments, has 30 units estimated at $1½ million. Going up across the canal are Newport Beach, to boast 35 homes of like caliber and an apartment development where value will be even greater per square foot.

In anticipation of commercial development, the East San Rafael Assessment district was formed and $1,300,000 worth of utilities and roads installed over 122 acres. The pressure of residential development, however, has caused a change of plans.

San Rafael Canal-70 Years Growth

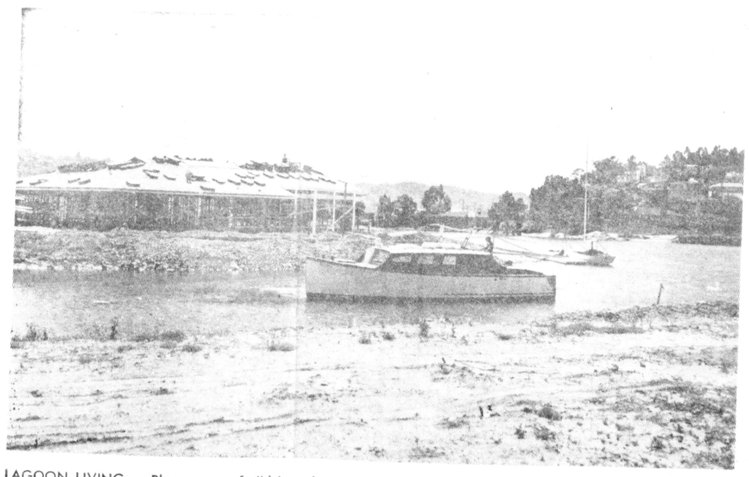
THE CANAL'S small-craft advantages are the same as those for marina-type home development: proximity to San Francisco, equi-distance to both Carquinez Straits and the Golden Gate, protected anchorage, guaranteed depth of channel (8 feet below mean low water) and moderate tide fluctuation (maximum, 7 feet; minimum, 3 feet).

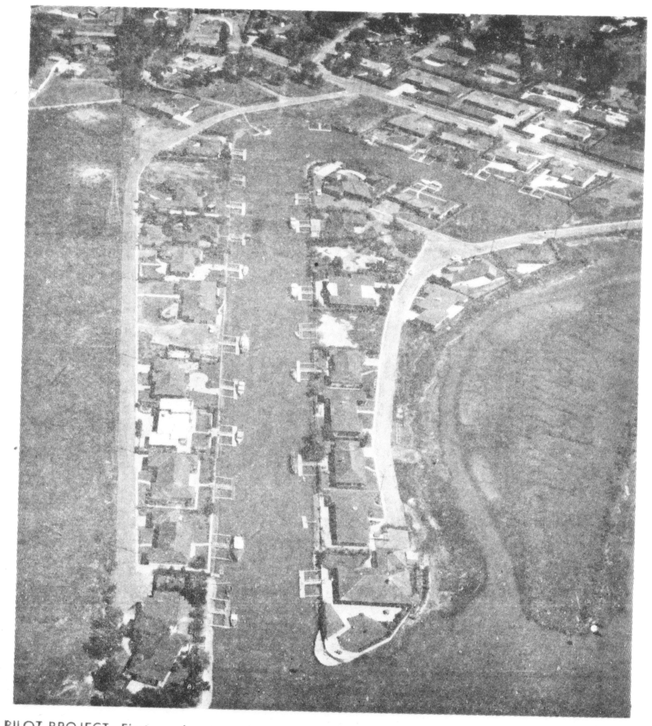
Growth has brought regulation. San Rafael ordinances restrict building beyond a certain line. Boats are limited to speeds of 5 miles per hour within 200 feet of any moored vessel.

Not only the canal proper, but the bay outside its mouth is either earmarked for development or is already enjoying it.

MORE A-BUILDING — Construction is underway on second marina-type development (Newport Beach) which will add 35 homes. Anxious owner of this one already has boat anchored at float.



LAGOON LIVING — Pleasure craft "drives home" after cruise on bay. Canal affords homeside anchorage with 20 minutes' cruising time ot Marin Islands.



PILOT PROJECT—First marina-type development on San Rafael Canal is Marina Vista, which couples dry land access to back-door boating. Mud banks of canal are "buildable," but do not make good beach. Anchorages are protected from high winds and high seas. Channel depth of 7 feet takes all except largest boats.

Music & Drama

NADINE CONNER, opera and concert soprano, will replace Elisabeth Schwarzkopf, who cancelled her summer concert tour because of illness. Miss Conner has long been a star at the "Met" in New York.

Nadine Conner Here To Sing Tomrrow

The petite soprano star, Nadine Conner of the Metropolitan Opera, who has sung for concert, radio and TV audiences all over the country, will make her first appearance here under Marin Music Chest auspices, tomorrow afternoon. The concert will begin at 3 o'clock in Forest Meadows, Dominican College, San Rafael.

Miss Conner is replacing Elisabeth Schwarzkopf, who, because of illness has cancelled all summer engagements.

Miss Conner has long been a favorite at the "Met." She was recently chosen to sing the leading feminine role in the Metropolitan Opera's much heralded revival of Debussy's "Pelleas et Melisande."

In recital and as soloist with leading symphony orchestras, Miss Conner has received cross-country acclaim in this country, Canada, Hawaii and the West Indies. She visited Europe for the first time in the summer of 1953 where she was guest star at the Holland Festival, singing in six performances the role of Susanna in "Figaro."

The following summer she sang in the first opera performances at the University of Puerto Rico in San Juan.

Programmed for tomorrow afternoon is "Die Nachtigall" and "Im Zimmer" by Alban Berg; two songs by Richard Strauss, "Winterweihe and Zueignung; three operatic arias, "Gavotte" from Massenet's "Manon"; "Tanto Amore Segreto" and "Tu Che Di Gel Sie Cinta" from Puccini's "Turandot"; two songs by Joseph Canteloube, "Mulurous Qu'o Uno Fenno" and "Bailero"; two songs by Fernando Obradors, "Del Cabello Mas Sutil" and "El Vito"; and a group of songs by Dvorak, "Free Is The Gypsy," "Songs My Mother Taught Me," "Play Gypsy," and aria: "Song To The Moon" from "Russalka."

Galen Lurwick will be at the piano. Gates of Forest Meadows open at 1:30 o'clock and there are no reserved seats.

Harrison Return

He is to portray a quixotic French general in "L'Hurluberlu" ("The Scatter-Brain") by Jean Anouilh.

As daring as staking a homestead, riskier than the gambling tables of the Mother Lode, with bigger returns than most of the early day prospectors ever realized. Such is the suspense in one of America's most exciting pioneer episodes — the search for oil.

From its geologic jacket design (enough to intrigue the scientific) the book moves swiftly into the real-life saga which matches any of Wyatt Earp's escapades for suspense.

The story begins 100 years ago, when a bearded man in a stovepipe hat sat on a log listing to the sound of an iron tool pounding a hole through rock. Thus Edwin L. Drake saw waiting for the opening of a saga which reached its pitch in the heart of Texas and Oklahoma in the 1930's.

Among those who rose and fell with fantastic deals was persistent Dad Joiner, who would patiently gather hosts of small stockholders to drill another dream. It was one well drilled just to keep from disappointing a widow that turned his luck — well almost. Lawsuits were filled faster than the derricks went up. A kindly judge prevented his unbelievable good fortune from going into receivership.

The heroes of the oil story are not all gamblers. Earnest young scientists played a key role.

"Prospecting is like gin rummy," remarked Everette DeGolyear, "Luck enough will win but not skill alone . . ."

Live From The Devil, by Wyatt Blassingame; Doubleday; 488 pp., $4.50.

A fine quick reading novel about an older Florida — the Florida of cattle in the 1800's. Told with sympathy and pace by Wyatt Blassingame, more well-known as a short story writer than novelist.

Blassingame sets up a grab-bag full of strong and forceful characters, places them against a backdrop of a rough frontier, laces in a storm, a king sized knife-and-gun fight. He tosses in a wise madam and tops off the whole affair wtih a raging flood scene that is a hummer — to bring about a book that opens up a new vista and insight into Florida.

It is a rare treat to read a historical novel so well written. The author has done a fine job of using recent historic events, places and people in weaving a dramatic, hard-hitting story of the Jewish people in their struggle to establish their own nation, Israel.

Any person who has warm feelings towards his fellow man will surely enjoy this work and have those feelings enhanced.

Without rancor and with a stubborn, honest eye, the author delineates the heroic struggle the pint-sized Haganah and Maccabee armies stage in resisting the enemies of the Arab world on all of their borders and the back-stabbing of the British within those borders.

Interwoven with the never dull, often exciting actual history is the tender, robust love story of two strong personalities Ari Ben Cannon and Kitty Fremont, an attractive American widow and nurse.

CONVERSATIONS WITH IGOR STRAVINSKY, by Igor Stravinsky and Robert Craft; Doubleday & Co.; 162 pp., $4.00.

Casual, everyday observations characterize the memoirs of Stravinsky — known by most as the greatest composer of our time. Stravinsky's recollections include his association with the colorful Rachmaninoff:

"He was a 6½ ft. tall scowl. — an awesome man."

Of Claude Debussy — "the musicians of my generation and I myself owe the most to Debussy."

Robert Craft, as the questioner, has achieved perfect liason between composer — musician and the layman, permitting the latter to enjoy a thorough understanding of an artistic mind coupled with actual experience and unusual candor.

The student will find Conversations a valuable reference. It belongs in every library — a brilliant condensation of Stravinsky's life in the world of music, accented by a humor seldom found in this kind of reading.

The struggles and aspirations of a young pianist are depicted in dull style. Russia's unanimous approval of Cliburn's achievements in the world of music are outlined. The story itself, is a much-told tale of American ingenuity and talent with the ultimate rise to success.

STEREO HI-FI

By C. J. Catania

FOUR-TRACK TAPE. In accordance with our practice of keeping the public informed of the latest developments in the stereo Hi-Fi field, we will bring you up to date on the pre-recorded stereo tape developments.

With the advent of the stereo disc, the pre-recorded stereo tape sales, because of their comparative high price, took a slump. During the 18-month slump, some of the producers of pre-recorded tape even discontinued the release of new tapes. During this slump period, there has been much talk about the 4-track tapes. The tape recorder manufacturers and the pre-recorded tape producers have been in a quandary as to a standard speed and type of taped music holder, standard reels or cartridges.

As early as May 1958, RCA displayed a new cartridge-loaded tape player at one of the audio shows. It incorporated an automatically loaded cartridge-type tape spool that had 4 tracks and used the 3¾ inches per second speed. As yet, these recorders have not been placed on the market.

The manufacturers and connoisseurs of true high fidelity sound have been against the 3¾ ips speed because it down-grades the quality of the recorded material. The use of the slower 3¾ ips speed coupled with the four tracks of recorded material on a ¼" wide standard tape when played back on conventional home-type recorders will not produce sound with as much fidelity as a good stereo disc.

The Magnetic Recording Industry Association, after much study, has recommended and backed the use of FOUR-TRACK, 7½ ips, REEL TO REEL prerecorded stereo tape. According to Mr. Herbert Brown, newly-elected president of MRIA, this recommendation is based on the fact that 7½ ips maintains high fidelity quality and the four track system, while it does drop signal to noise ratio 3 decibels, a barely perceptible noise change, doubles the amount of playing time on the reel. This brings the cost of tape, minute for minute, close to the price range of the stereo disc.

Many of the producers of pre-recorded tape have enthusiastically announced that they are coming back with complete 7½ ips 4-track libraries and have already started production.

Visit Catania Sound for a demonstration of these new 4-track 7½ ips tapes. Already we have several large shipments on the way. To reduce our inventory of the standard stereo tapes we are offering large savings. Come in now and stock up.

Summer Is Time To Take Stock Of What's In Garden

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

Midsummer, when those who aren't prepared to be profligate with water are likely to be unhappy about the lawn, when the sun rides high and hot, is a good time for taking stock of the garden.

So far — and for reasons which I cannot quite understand—my garden has been peculiarly free of slugs this year.

It was late June before I spotted by first one, and the poison bait I usually use to dispatch them has remained on the shelf all season. However, I dusted and sprayed with greater devotion to schedule than usual this year and I wonder if some of these new chemical formulae have some effect on those destructive, slimy pests.

On the other hand. I've never had a finer nor more persistent assortment of aphids. Each spraying—and I stuck to rotonone and nicotine sulphate—dispatched them, but in a short time a new batch were on everything from their beloved lupines and roses to the mint.

Perennials are such satisfactory, work-saving plants that sometimes there is a temptation to overlook some of the delightful but more demanding annuals and biennials — particularly the biennials. But my canterbury bells this year were such a joy, lasted so long, and made such a lively centerpiece when some stems were cut, that I shall never be without them again.

My favorite biennial—forget-me-not — is easier to handle: I just shake the seed of this year's plants where I want bloom next year and then am careful about my weeding in those spots.

A reader, harking to my complaint about the unsightliness of withering tulips, writes that Dutch tulip growers handle the problem by digging the bulbs when they have finished blooming and heeling bunches of them in the ground in an unobtrusive spot where they may mature for next year's bloom.

This is a fine space-saving idea—but one of the principal advantages of tulips is that you don't have to dig them up and replant them every year — a tiring job if you have enough tulips to make a showing.

CHECKLIST GARDENER'S

- Rumpled growth and buds that "blast" and never open properly usually a sure sign of thrips in roses. Use a spray that is recommended for the critters.
- It's not too late for that first feeding of camellias, azaleas and other acid-loving plants, but time's a wasting. Use the special acid-type fertilizers that are available at your C.A.N. nursery.
- Keep an eye to Tuberous Begonias for the first sign of mildew as June advances. If it shows up, use a spray that's especially prepared for begonias.
- Bedding plants for late summer color should go in now. Zinnias top the list, but don't plant them unless you can give them a warm, sunny location.
- Mulch around moisture-loving plants with peat or steer manure. Don't skimp. Put a layer two to three inches thick around each shrub to conserve moisture in dry summer weather.

Rose Villains Sneak Up Stem And Make Meal Unless Sprayed

Despite a popular notion that growing roses is a difficult task, a few simple rules can assure every gardener of healthy beautiful roses.

Roses must have care if the gardener wants healthy plants and spotless blooms. This care is not difficult if you follow a regular program of spraying, feeding and watering.

Spraying or dusting is first on the list so that destructive insect pests and foliage spoiling diseases are controlled and prevented.

The first insects to be seen on roses early in the season are aphids and thrips. Aphids are easily recognized as small, soft bodied insects greenish, pinkish or reddish in color. Thrips are tiny, slender and hairy . . . yellowish, brownish or greenish in color. When left unmolested they will defoliate and even destroy a complete rose bush. Aphids and thrips are easily kept under control by weekly applications of a nicotine sulphate solution.

DUSTING OR spray mixtures both have been effective when aphids and thrips are a nuisance. To be effective, the spray or dust should contact the insect therefore making it important that both surfaces of the leaf be covered by the spray or dust. Nicotine sulphate solutions also kill the insects with their fumes in a "gassing" type action.

Chewing insects, of which the Japanese Beetle is the most common, must be controlled constantly with a form of insecticide that serves as a stomach poison to the insect. All purpose rose dusts or sprays containing DDT or Malathion are most effective for this type of control.

Where spider mites are a problem, Malathion is recommended. These tiny insects are only about 1/50 of an inch long but can be most destructive since they suck leaf juices from the undersurfaces of the leaves where they spin their webs.

Black spot is probably the most serious of all rose diseases since it spreads rapidly and can defoliate a plant in only a few days. Once Black Spot gets underway it cannot be cured. However, Black Spot can be prevented if the gardener dusts regularly with a rose leaf floral dust. Proper insect control is also necessary to prevent Black Spot.

Infested leaves should be removed and burned to prevent the further spread of insects or diseases.

THE NEXT step toward healthier more beautiful roses is proper feeding. An excellent fertilizing formula is one with a ratio of 4-12-4. It has enough nitrogen and potash for growth, and ample phosphorous for flowering. When applying this fertilizer, work it well into the soil with a hand cultivator and water it in.

Use a handful of fertilizer to a plant, spreading around in a thin layer about 6 inches from the stems. This fertilizing should be repeated once or twice a month throughout the summer.

PROPER watering does four important things. It prevents the plant from wilting; it enables the soil organisms to break down organic matter into simpler forms so that they are available to the plant; it helps the soil acids to break down the insoluble mineral compounds; and replaces the water removed from the plant by transpiration.

Soak your soil with water once each week, giving the soil enough water to reach down into the root area. If watering in the evening, try to keep water off the foliage to prevent mildew.

A mulch will enable you to keep your watering down to a minimum.

Regular care of your roses including spraying, feeding and watering will pay dividends for you this summer with more beautiful, healthier roses.

Do-It-Yourself

Repeating Materials Outside Gives House Expanded Effect

Wall to wall living is disappearing from today's well-designed homes. Both custom and tract homes are making use of the indoor-outdoor living concept, which has had several important effects on home design and the use of building materials.

Glass walls and sliding glass doors are used to open up the inside of the house, to bring the garden—or at least the view of it — into the home. Protected patio areas are placed adjacent to the house and used as outdoor living rooms.

But it takes more than a patio and a sliding door to achieve the full value and comfort of the indoor-outdoor living concept. Architects and designers attempt to integrate indoor and outdoor areas by the skillful use of structural elements.

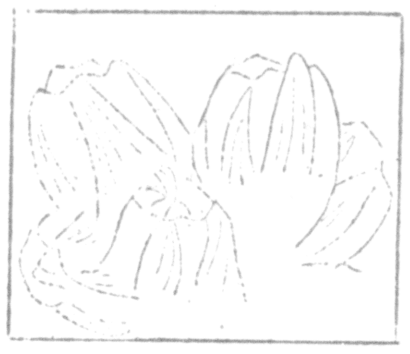
In other words, a good home design should not try to bring the outdoors inside, and vice versa, unless it belongs there. One way to make it belong is by the repetition of building materials and patterns.

If the exterior siding material is redwood applied in a vertical pattern, for example, use vertical paneling in the living room or family room areas to help integrate the indoors with the outdoors. Some designers make an interior wall appear to extend outside the house by the use of a baffle which repeats the wood paneling pattern. A baffle also may make the exterior of a house appear large. It may also serve as a parital enclosure for garden or patio area.

Redwood patio decks are used to give the patio area a feeling of belonging to the house (and they inhibit glare from the summer sun). A wood deck blends also with garden settings, acting as a bridge between indoor and outdoor living areas of the home.

The indoor-outdoor concept has also had its effect on furnishings. Attractively styled outdoor furniture can be kept outdoors during the mild days of spring and summer, and moved into the family room at night or during the cold and wet seasons.

Still in its early period of development, the indoor-outdoor concept is attempting to treat house and garden not as two separate and distinct areas, but as two parts of one integrated area that just happen to have a wall in between.



ACORN BARNACLE (Balanus sp.)—These gray-white, sessile (without a stalk) barnacles encrust rocks, piles, and floating wood, and are often found on the shells or hard, tough outer covering of living animals. Most of them are not more than an inch across. Sometimes you may see an old crab that has many barnacles on his shell. Barnacles do not injure their support, but they may cover a ship's bottom to the point where its speed is slowed unless they are scraped off. (From Out-of-Doors in Marin, copyrighted by M. F. Austin.)

Move All Projects To Outdoor Shop

But you can have your cake and eat it too with an outdoor workshop. Pick a convenient open spot in the back yard, gather your supplies and go to work.

Take, for instance, a four-door dresser. In every repainting job, and particularly when it involves children, remove the old paint first.

A new wash-away paint remover washes off paint, enamel, lacquer and varnish with ordinary water. No scraping or sanding surfaces.

Any fast-drying gloss enamel will give an attractive appearance and resistance to stains and dirt.

Another good outdoor workshop project is a lamp. Four wooden blocks of different sizes will do for base and stand. Try sizes of 5, 4, 3 and 2 inches on all sides.

Paint blocks in the same color as the dresser drawers if you're doing both jobs. Top them off with a shade that matches the body of the dresser.

Drill holes through the centers of the blocks and attach the lamp to them with a pipe. Drill another hole through the back of a bottom block for the wire. Align the blocks on one another, or angle them for a lighter playroom effect.

In the child's room you can paint a river of blue water with green banks, where a boy can launch his fleet on rainy days. Or you can paint stenciled nursery designs on his walls—or spatterdash the floor for a gay circus effect.

Use paint with no harmful ingredients and be sure it is washable.

Set Of Small Precautions Keeps A Power Mower Safe

Every homeowner wants an attractive lawn. This year nearby 12 million persons will use power mowers to cut down work in keeping grass neat and healthy.

But the man behind the mower needs to think before put-putting around the yard. He could get hurt.

Keep the lawn free of stones, debris or any hard objects. These damage the cutting blade and may be thrown by the blade with dangerous force, Power Products experts warn.

Never operate the mower unless all safety guards are in place. Keep hands and feet away from the blades or other moving parts.

Fuel should be stored and handled only in clean, safe metal containers. For two-cycle engines using premixed fuel, the easiest and best plan is to have the oil and gasoline mixed right at the filling station, using the force of the pump to get a good mix.

Always disconnect the spark plug wire before working on the engine or cutting blade. This will prevent an accidental start in case the flywheel magneto is revolved.

To operate at top efficiency, the mower should be kept clean and free of grass clippings and spilled gasoline or oil. Use an old whisk broom or stiff brush.

Galloping Grass Stopped By Edge

A plastic lawn edging has been developed to keep lawn borders straight. It halts ambitious greenery from invading the flower bed and spilling over sidewalks and driveways.

Four inches deep, the under ground portion is corrugated to graps the dirt.

Being flexible, it can be turned and twisted into various shapes to create designs in the gardens.

Fence For Privacy

When you live too close to the street for comfort, try erecting a tall fence to regain your privacy. Two-by-ten inch boards of western red cedar spaced two inches apart and set diagonally within a heavy frame break vision from both directions, while creating an interesting pattern and allowing breezes to pass through. Lovely, intimate courtyard can be created between fence and house.

Automatic Spray

A new automatic device dispenses insecticide spray automatically to keep the home free of flies, mosquitoes and gnats. The non-toxic insecticide is said to be harmless to adults, children and pets, and is sprayed into the air at regular 15-minute intervals.

TV's Best Can't Outdraw This Fan

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Wyatt Earp, Paladin and other television gunslingers don't know it — but they are regularly beaten to the draw by a tall-in-the-arm-chair varmint they have never seen.

Getting the drop on TV's best gunfighters is a hobby of Gordon Clark, a lanky 27-year old boat builder. And he never leaves his living room TV set.

About a year ago when Western fan Clark decided to test just how quick television's cowpokes really are. He bought a colt .44, loaded it with blanks and lashed it to his leg. Then he tuned in "Gunsmoke" and waited for Marshal Dillon to make his play.

"DILLON'S the fastest," said Clark, who since that first test has bitten the carpet many time before the marshal's whip-quick draw.

Clark's special clay pigeon is Paladin, the erudite knight errant of "Have Gun, Will Travel."

"I never worry about paladin with either his .44 or Derringer," Clark said. "You always know a second before he draws."

"HE'S NEVER beaten me with that screwy Mary's Leg," said Clark with a practiced curl of the lip. "I can't imagine any real gunfighter using a weapon like that."

KRON Will Cover Fashions In Color

Fall fashions designed and manufactured in the Bay Area will be televised in color on two special 30 minute shows to be seen next Thursday and Friday over KRON-TV (Channel 4). Both programs will be aired from 12:30 to 1 p.m.

Both will be remote telecasts from Union Square, where the San Francisco Fashion Industries Manufacturers and Wholesalers Assn. will be staging its fifth annual display of complete fall lines in America's only outdoor fashion preview.

Vaughn Monroe will be master of ceremonies. Special guests will be Ben Alexander, co-star of the "Dragnet" series, and Jeanne Cagney, currently fashion commentator of "Queen for a Day."

Union Square will discard its traditional appearance for this undertaking as a giant-size replica television set will be erected. This will provide dramatic staging for the appearance of the models as well as concealing necessary dressing rooms in its interior.

More than 30 professional models will step out of the giant TV set and make their way along a 345-foot runway.

Teacher Killed In Marin Head-On Car Collision

Wrong Side Driver Critically Injured

Her northbound car collided head-on with one headed south in the northbound lane. The accident happened at approximately 2:30 a.m. about seven-tenths of a mile north of the Black Point Cutoff on Highway 101.

Injuries also were sustained by six persons in two other accidents on Highway 101 during the last 24 hours.

Miss Irene Scott, 44, of 1924 Diamond court in Santa Rosa, died at 4:05 a.m. at Marin General Hospital.

TWO BADLY HURT

Miss Scott's two passengers were seriously injured. Miss Helen M. Valentine, 47, of 166 E. Foothill drive, Santa Rosa, was taken to San Rafael General Hospital with a fractured arm and internal injuries.

Miss Valentine's niece from Oregon, Karen Valentine, 19, suffered spinal injuries and was placed in neck traction at San Rafael General Hospital. Both she and her aunt were reported in good condition.

Driver of the car headed south on the wrong side of the highway was identified by the California Highway Patrol as M/Sgt. Rex Davis Bray, 40, of 637 Owens drive, Ignacio. He is attached to the 78th Installations Squadron at Hamilton Air Force Base.

He remained in critical condition at Letterman Army Hospital in San Francisco after undergoing surgery for multiple fractures of the left upper arm, pelvis, jaw and for internal injuries.

ON WRONG SIDE

CHP Officer J. E. Halligan said Bray had driven for two miles on the wrong side of Highway 101 with several cars trying to overtake him to warn him.

Miss Scott was driving in the left northbound lane. A driver in front of her saw Bray's approaching headlights and swerved to the right in front of a northbound pickup truck, Halligan said. Apparently Miss Scott was unable to avoid the collision, he said.

Novato firemen helped to extricate the two women from the front seat of the smashed car. The fatality injured woman weighed about 250 pounds, the CHP said. It took 20 minutes to remove the women from the car.

The 19-year-old girl, a summer student at College of Marin, was ejected from the car by the impact. She was a passenger in the back seat.

The two Valentine women had driven to San Francisco International Airport to meet Miss Scott when she arrived on a five-hours overdue jet flight from Chicago.

Deputy Coroner Harry M. Williams telephoned Sierra County Sheriff W. D. Johnson, who sent a deputy to notify Miss Scott's parents of her death. They live at a mine approximately 20 miles from Downieville.

Marin County had 11 traffic fatalities at the same time last year. Miss Scott became Marin's 11th traffic fatality of this year.

A 29-year-old Fairfax mother and her two sons were injured at 6:45 p.m. yesterday in a three car collision on Highway 101 on a rise south of the Greenbrae bridge.

Mrs. Patricia E. Saunders, and her sons, Bryant Fisher, 5, and William Fisher, 7, were taken to Marin General Hospital. William was sent home after emergency treatment. Mrs.

Little Known Cuban New President

Political Upheaval Places Castro At New Peak Of Power

HAVANA (UPI) — A man scarcely known outside of Cuba took the oath of office at Cuba's new president in the early hours today after a political upheavel which ousted President Manuel Urrutia Lleo and catapulted Fidel Castro to a new peak of power.

Castro announced he was withdrawing his own resignation as premier after a four-hour speech in which he accused Urrutia of near-treason.

Named to take Urrutia's place was Dr. Osvaldo Dorticos Torrado, cabinet members credited with drawing up the revolutionary regime's laws and decrees, including death penalties for counter-revolutionaries and those who opposed Castro's land reforms.

GIVEN ARMED GUARD

Urrutia was given an armed guard for his own protection and moved with his family into the home of his brother-in-law, Lincoln Ilaguno, in suburban Bauta.

Today it was learned that early this morning unidentified persons ransacked the $35,000 home Urrutia had purchased for himself in suburban Biltmore and which was described by Castro last night as the first source of conflict between the two.

Urrutia purchased the house after less than four months in office and furnished it through purchases from the government ministry charged with seizure of goods left by former dictator Fulgencia Batista.

RECEIVED $100,000

Urrutia as president received the same $100,000 annual pay as Batista, but Castro said last night he considered the purchase of the house "immoral."

After the explosive hours of last night, Havana returned to normal today.

GUST OF WIND FLOPS SEAPLANE; PILOTS PULLED FROM WATER

A strong gust of wind overturned a seaplane taxiing for a take-off from Richardson Bay at 6:50 p.m. yesterday and its two pilots were dumped into the bay waters near Strawberry Cove.

They climbed on the plane pontoons until rescued by the motor launch of Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Randall of 309 E. Strawberry drive, reported Sheriff's Deputy Fred Marcus who stood by. The Randalls were assisted in their rescue by Mr. and Mrs. Tom Storms of Chicago.

The two-seater Luscomb seaplane had taxied to a take-off when a gust of wind lifted one wing of the plane and flipped it over, dumping out the two licensed pilots, reported Deputy Marcus.

302 Protests Filed On Assessments

A total of 302 assessment protests were filed by yesterday afternoon's deadline, County Assessor Bert W. Broemmel said today.

The County Board of Supervisors, sitting as a board of equalization, has acted already on more than 200 protests and will meet at 9 a.m. Monday in an effort to wind up its equalization hearings on Monday.

The county's assessment roll as delivered to the supervisors on July 6 totalled $192,986,183, which included $11,560,623 on the unsecured roll. Since then the unsecured roll total has increased to $12,170,000, Broemmel said. He compared this figure to last year's unsecured roll of $9,278,000 and the 1957-58 unsecured roll of $6,773,000. The unsecured roll includes assessments on household effects and possessory interest.

Broemmel said that this year a new method of appraising household effects was applied throughout the county. He said that possibly 50 protests were filed because of higher personal property assessments. The total of 302 protests he described as heavier than a normal year. Last year with the county-wide property reappraisals reflected on the secured roll, the assessment protests totalled a record of 3,600.

Nuclear Plane Hearing Set

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate-House Atomic Subcommittee plans to air publicly for the first time next Thursday a long-smoldering controversy between Congress and the Pentagon over a nuclear-powered plane.

Rep. Melvin Price (D-Ill.), the chairman, told a reporter today high defense officials would be called to testify at the first open session ever held on the project.

The congressman said he and other long-time advocates of full speed ahead on development of such a plane had some hope two months ago that it was about to be given a high priority.

But that now has subsided, he said, into a feeling that the project has settled into another spell of relative quiet.

Hub Firehouse Finance Plan Advances Step

John C. Phillips yesterday gave his stamp of approval to the potential dummy corporation being set up for the purpose of financing the new San Anselmo fire house.

Phillips, a tree service manager of San Anselmo, said he would serve as director of the corporation following a meeting with City Atty. John G. Buresh, City Mgr. Arthur W. Brewer, and Lawrence E. Wright, San Anselmo attorney.

Also scheduled to serve as directors are Walter W. Carter attorney, and A. A. Nipper, realty broker.

The meeting, held to discuss the liabilities and responsibilities of the corporation, also explored possibilities of starting work on the building before the rainy season sets in.

"It appears doubtful that construction can start before next spring," Brewer said. "There is an outside chance but our consultants have indicated that it is not a good approach to begin construction until all legal and financial problems are ironed out."

The consultants are Hanauer and Co., an eastern firm who would act as brokers for bonds issued by the non-profit corporation.

U. S. Says Nikita Dropped All Reunification Pretense

GENEVA (UPI)—Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev has dropped all pretense of backing German reunification and openly seeks "perpetuation of the present division," the United States charged today.

U.S. Assistant Secretary of State Andrew Berding told newsmen the American delegation to the Big Four foreign ministers conference based the charge on the study of a key phrase used by Khrushchev in a speech yesterday in Stettin, Poland.

Berding said the United States was "interested" in the paragraph of Khrushchev's speech that said:

"The frontier which we will defend is now between East Germany and West Germany. This is the frontier which divides the world of socialism from the world of capitalism and we will defend this frontier with all our strength."

The Khrushchev statement was in keeping with the cloud of Russian toughness that has descended over the foreign ministers conference. Prospects of an early Berlin truce and a summit conference in September faded today as the Russians drew an increasingly harder line.

Accountant To Serve On Larkspur Council

A 40-year-old accountant and analytical expert has been named to the Larkspur city council to replace Paul W. Cane.

Named in a 3-0 vote was Arthur E. Storhaug of 99 Dartmouth drive in Hillview Gardens. Storhaug is manager of analytical reports for the Crown-Zellerbach Corp. of San Francisco.

A resident of Larkspur more than three years, Storhaug is a member of the Larkspur Dad's Club, and is past president of the Hillview Gardens Home Owners Assn. Also he served on the Larkspur Citizens Committee for Merger with Corte Madera.

Cane, the freshman member of the council, resigned earlier this month. Formerly a public relations representative for the Santa Fe Railway, he will go to work next month for Southern California Gas Co.

Storhaug is also a registered certified public accountant, but is not particularly active as one at this time.

Married and the father of two daughters, 13 and 11, and a boy, 6, he is a graduate of the University of North Dakota.

In other action, the council:

1. Awarded the Brown-Ely Co. of Corte Madera a $25,452 contract to build a 750-foot street from Magnolia avenue to the new elementary school. Neither the school nor the street was named. The job is supposed to be completed about the middle of September. Brown-Ely submitted the lowest of seven bids.

2. Adopted an ordinace annexing about six acres of Palm Hill containing five homes.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Two firemen were injured early today when a three-alarm fire destroyed the Moschetti Refrigeration Co. at 446 Fulton St.

DOGS AND CATS FOES? NOT SO SAYS FANCIER

She counted up the 33 members of the group and found 17 of them have one or more dogs living peacefully with their felines.

The Marin County Cat Fanciers is the former Marin County Cat Club. The recent name change "more fully explains the purpose of the group," said Mrs. Deeths.

The group is planning two events—a fund-raising style show in September and the annual cat show, tentatively set for Sausalito, on Halloween weekend.

Meeting On Saving Redwoods Scheduled

Staff members of the State Park Commission are to open conferences with the State Department of Finance and the Department of Natural Resources to check up on the cost of preventing further felling of large redwoods on the west slope of Mt. Tamalpais.

This action was decided on as result of a commission hearing yesterday. The trees are on the E. G. Brazil ranch in Kent Canyon, acquired recently for Tamalpais State Park but subject to lumbering contracts already exercised on 60 acres and requiring delivery of an additional 5½ million board feet of lumber.

To buy up these contracts would be costly, but Everett Powell, senior land agent for the commission, said it must be done if the logging is to be halted.

But "the value of the timber as logs is infinitesimal compared to its value as park property," the commission was told by Dr. Edgar Wayburn, vice president of the Sierra Club.

The commission has $1,100,000 with which it hopes to buy a total of 1,400 acres to be added to Mt. Tamalpais State Park. Its problem seems to be whether it should take part of this money to buy up the logging contracts or use the whole amount for additional land, some of which would lose some of its redwoods.

And just to make it perfect, the members and guests will be greeted by the president of the club, Frank Paganini, and his wife and the new Italian consul, Alessandro Savorgnon, and his wife.

The party will begin with cocktails and antipasto served around the pool while the roving Troubadors, "Scacciapensieri," entertain. Typically Italian is the menu for the dinner which will be served at 9.

A FAREWELL to Marin was the swimming and bridge party and buffet supper party Mr. and Mrs. G. Gordon Brown gave in the garden of their beautiful Kent Woodlands home on Sunday. With their five children, Lee and Gordon are moving to Denver. They left yesterday and are traveling by car going first to Western Canada.

The Warren Lawrences stopped in to say "goodbye" before Warren caught a jet for Washington, D. C. Among the other guests were Dr. and Mrs. Rafael Dufficy of San Rafael and Kent Woodlands neighbors; Dr. and Mrs. Henry Brainerd, the Ed Solinskys, William Woolstons, and Mrs. Richard French, John Gardiners and Mrs. Walter Zwieg. The Browns have sold their home on Goodhill road, to the Fredrick Talbots Jr., also of Kent Woodlands.

Honoring the Browns, the Henry Wagners of Kent Woodlands entertained at a cocktail party for 75 guests Wednesday night.

TRAVEL NEWS has come from several friends. Received a card from Mrs. Adolph L. Costa of San Anselmo. She sailed from San Francisco aboard the S. S. Orcades via the Panama Canal and for England and will arrive there on Monday. She and her traveling companion, Mrs. Elizabeth Bissinger, will tour the British Isles and the continent and will leave by plane for home the first of September. Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Knowles of Kentfield, who left some time ago for the Orient, are now in Japan and will be home in mid-August. Mrs. John MacPhail of Loch Lomond wrote from Ireland that she had kissed the Blarney Stone for me.

THE SOUTH PACIFIC is the goal of the David H. Walkers of Belvedere who are leaving tomorrow. They are flying first to Hawaii where they will join Dave's parents, the David Walkers of Bolinas, who are vacationing there. The Belvedere couple will then fly to Fiji and cruise around the island also taking the "Blue Lagoon Cruise." Next flight will be to Tahiti where the Walkers will spend three weeks. They'll fly back to Fiji and to San Francisco from there, ending a six week vacation. During their absence, Mrs. Walker's parents, the Henry R. Sanborns, will stay at their Madrona avenue home and take care of the Walkers' four children.

A bon voyage party was given for the Belvedere couple a week ago tonight by the B. F. Weavers of Belvedere. Bridge followed a barbecue. Guests in addition to the Walkers, were Mr. and Mrs. Dick DeBerry and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Berry.

BAY AREA FRIENDS are welcoming Mrs. Charles Lennihan who has come west for the summer and taken the James Thachers' house on Washington street in San Francisco. The Thatchers are vacationing in Sonoma. Mrs. Lennihan and her late husband lived for a number of years in what was the former Stephenson home on Lagunitas in Ross. Recently she has resided in Pennsylvania. On Monday Mrs. Harris Kirk honored Mrs. Lennihan at a luncheon at her Ross home. Guests were longtime friends, Mesdames Farwell Hill, Frank Burland, Douglas Dimond, and Albert J. Evers. Mrs. Dimond also entertained at a luncheon for the visitor in her San Francisco home. The two are going to Carmel for the Bach Festival. Mrs. Lennihan is also enjoying seeing her two sons, Charles Lennihan III of Belvedere and Danvid Lennihan of San Francisco, and their families

UP TAHOE WAY are a number of Marin residents. The A. Barlow Fergusons of Kent Woodlands with Linda and Trudi have left for Zephyr Cove where they'll spend two weeks. They will be joined by their son, "Boots," who has been at Skylake Camp in Tahoe Valley.

The Frank I. Fords Jr. of Loch Lomond with their five youngsters are vacationing for three weeks at his mother's place on the south end of Lake Tahoe. Spending the weekend with them are Mr. and Mrs. J. Kenneth Peters, their son, Jamie, and daughter, Jeannie.

Incidentally Jeannie celebrated her six and a half birthday on Wednesday at a picnic at Lake Lagunitas. Jeannie's natal anniversary is on Christmas Day and as her celebration is overshadowed by the holiday, she is always given a party in midsummer. Celebrating with Jeannie were Fred Greene, Joan and David Carson, Janie Wilsey, Hoyt Smith and Ellen and Barbara Drinkwater. Ellen and Barbara, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Fred John Drinkwater of Saratoga, left for home yesterday after spending a week with their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Seymour, next door neighbors of the Peters' in Ross.

HOUSEGUESTS of Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Williams of Sausalito have been their daughter-in-law, Mrs. John B. Williams, and her children, Michael, Stephen, Kenneth, and Robert, of San Marino. Previous to their visit in Sausalito they stayed with the children's maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Banker of Diablo.

Beauty Tips from ME to YOU
by Miss Opal of Walter's

No time like the present to explain the new makeup trend. Not many of us can remember the absence of heavy red, sensuous lips. In our efforts to glorify the mouth, which was, primarily, intended as an organ for speech and intake of food, we completely forgot the most important feature of the face. Namely, the windows of the soul, the eyes. Now, at long last our fashion designers have rediscovered the eyes and women will again be feminine and lovely. Play up your eyes, play down your mouth . . . and walk in beauty.

Marin Women

Beth Burchard Bride Of Ross W. Ashley

At St. Stephen's Episcopal Church in Belvedere, Ross Warren Ashley claimed Mrs. Beth MacVicar Burchard as his bride at an 11 o'clock ceremony this morning. She was given in marriage by her brother, William M. MacVicar of Pasadena, who only a week ago today was married to Miss Barbara Warriner.

The Rev. Charles Shrewsbury officiated at the wedding which was followed by a luncheon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lindsay, attended by the bridal party and family members.

The new Mrs. Ashley, daughter of Mrs. Guy MacVicar of Belvedere and the late Mr. MacVicar, has another sister, Mrs. George Hildreth of Mill Valley. She was news editor at the Independent-Journal until she left to complete wedding preparations. She has a seven-year-old son, Peter Burchard, by her first marriage. A graduate of Tamalpais High School and Stanford University, she was a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Cap and Gown and Theta Sigma Phi and belongs to Zonta Club of Marin.

The bridegroom, who has two sons, Kenneth 10, and Jeffrey, 9, is a member of the editorial staff of the Independent-Journal. A graduate of the University of Nevada, he attended Stanford Law School. His fraternity was Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

Carolyn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew C. Hall of San Rafael, has two brothers, Daniel and Edward Burke. Mrs. C. B. Earhart of Sebastopol is her grandmother.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Ryan of San Rafael are parents of the future benedict. He has one sister, Marilyn Ryan, and he is the grandson of Mrs. Arthur Shallock and Mrs. H. C. Leggett, both of Mill Valley. He will attend College of Marin. He and Carolyn have made no wedding plans.

Garland Family Having A Reunion In Cuernavaca

Leaving for Mexico City on Wednesday will be Patricia Garland, a sophomore at Sir Francis Drake High School. Miss Garland will take the Western Airline flight and will be met by relatives at Mexico City. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Garland of Hillsdale Park, will drive to Mexico, arriving two weeks later at Cuernavaca, where they will join their daughter. They will then spend another week in Mexico City prior to their return home at the end of August.

Bay Area Carpenters Have New Wage Scale

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) —Bay Area Carpenters began work under new wage scales yesterday with the ratification of a new three-year contract.

Chester R. Bartalini, secretary of the Bay Counties District Council of Carpenters, said that the Associated General Contractors have joined seven other employer groups in paying the scale. But, he added, court tests will determine whether the contractors will be bound by all the provisions.

The AGC rejected an earlier contract because of certain provisions.

The new hourly scales effective June 16 to 1959, 1960, and 1961 are $3.55, $3.725, and $3.95, respectively, for journeymen carpenters; $3.68, $3.865, and $4.10 for hardwood floor layers, shinglers, power saw operators, steel scaffold erectors and saw filers; $3.76, $3.945, and $4.18 for millwrights, and 50 cents additional for foremen as of last June 16, in addition to fringe benefits.

Test Borings Are Started At Sandspit

Test borings were begun yesterday for construction of a proposed restaurant and cocktail lounge on the Sausalito sandspit.

The project, to be built by Mac Marin, a firm headed by San Francisco State Sen. J. Eugene McAteer in collaboration with William E. McDonnell of San Francisco, has been a source of controversy. Some Sausalito residents sought to block the construction to retain the sandspit for recreational purposes.

Mac Marin has subleased the land from Madden and Lewis, which holds a longtime master lease from the city. An original minimum investment of $250,000 is required under the sublease.

Folsom Trustees To Lassen Camp

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Trustees from Folsom Prison will be transferred to a new camp in Lassen County soon to help fight fires in the area.

Fair Trade Act Money Bill Signed

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund G. Brown announced he has signed legislation appropriating $90,000 to the attorney general's office to enforce California's Unfair Trade Practices Act.

The governor told his news conference yesterday he also signed a bill providing treble damages for violations of the law.

The Unfair Trade Practices Act prohibits selling anything at less than cost for the purpose of injuring competition. Brown noted that as attorney general he never had enough money to enforce it.

California also has a Fair Trade Act which permits manufacturers to fix a resale price. The governor said the state, by law, does not enforce this act except for liquor.

Corte Madera Top Gainer In Retail Sales

Corte Madera with total resales of $3,321,000 in 1958 had a rise of 65.6 per cent over 1957, the largest increase of any city in the Bay Area, according to figures issued today by the San Francisco Bay Area Council.

The previous year's total sales were $2,006,000.

Ross led cities under 15,000 population, showing a 37.7 per cent rise. Sales in Ross totaled $157,000 for 1958, as compared with $114,000 during 1957.

San Rafael's retail sales last year totaled $50,181,000, as against $47,888,000 for 1957, a rise of 4.8 per cent. Sausalito was up 12.4 per cent, from $4,455,000 to $5,006,000.

Both Mill Valley and San Anselmo showed sales declines for the two years compared, Mill Valley being down 9.3 per cent with 1958 sales totaling $10,319,000, as compared with $11,373,000 for 1957. San Anselmo sales of $6,553,000 last year were off 4.4 per cent from the 1957 total of $6,854,000.

Combat Veterans Of Two Wars Get HAFB Posts

Two combat veterans of both World War II and the Korean War have been named to posts with the 78th Fighter Wing at Hamilton Air Force Base.

Lt. Col. Estes B. Sherrill, former assistant executive officer to the vice chief of staff at Air Force headquarters, Washington, D.C., and holder of the Distinguished Flying Cross, the Bronze Star and the Air Medal, has become director of operations with the 78th.

He succeeds Lt. Col. Edward H. Connor III, who is to attend the Air War College at Maxwell Air Force Base, Ala.

Maj. Paul H. Millikin, formerly with the 682nd Aircraft and Communications Squadron at New Almaden, has been named assistant military personnel officer with the 78th. He holds the Distinguished Flying Cross, Air Medal and Korean Presidential Citation.

Goldsmith Classic Set Tomorrow

The Oliver Goldsmith classic, "She Stoops To Conquer," will be presented as a play reading Sunday at 8 p.m. at the Sausalito Little Theater, according to Mrs. Alice Scarborough, activities chairman.

The lead romantic parts will be portrayed by John King and Lynne Ericksen. It will be directed by Penny Vieregge.

FISTS FLY, THEN BOYS MERGE BUSINESSES; SUCCESS FOLLOWS

PHARR, Tex. (AP)—A lesson in free enterprise:

Bruce Kolberg, 7, opened a five-cents-a-glass lemonade stand this week.

Then Kenneth Walter Jr., 7, opened a competing stand, pricing his lemonade at three cents a glass.

Sharp words were exchanged, then blows.

Deciding that was no way for civilized businessmen to act and it's too hot here in south Texas to fight anyway, the two decided to merge. They added ice cream cones and second-hand toys.

The next step was membership in the chamber of commerce. A letter of application asked if the "Chamber Commers" had any 25-cent memberships.

Chamber directors decided they did. A special directors meeting approved the application and chamber president Lloyd Glover delivered the membership card to the pair.

San Rafael Sanitary Tax May Rise 2 Cents

San Rafael Sanitation District tax rate may go up two cents for fiscal 1959-60, Deputy Auditor Mike Mitchell reported to the sanitation commissioners Thursday.

Mitchell said the assessed valuation for the San Rafael district was lower than expected, which means the tax rate may go up from last year's 37 cents to 39 cents per $100 assessed valuation. Eleven cents of that amount would go to bond redemption.

The district's budget adopted last month is $141,380. At that time, the commissioners hoped that the same tax rate could be maintained this year —26 cents for general fund and 11 cents for bonds. But the general fund tax may have to go up to 28 cents because the assessed values came in lower than expected, the deputy auditor explained.

The commissioners also decided that the two plant operators, Frank Keegan and John Berry, should get five per cent salary raises just like other city employees. Last month, both Keegan and Berry were given a raise from $465 to $480 per month. A five per cent raise would mean a new salary of $488.

Sausalito Trustees Set Budget

Trustees of the Sausalito School District Wednesday night approved a budget of $599,140 and forwarded it to the county superintendent of schools.

The budget proposed a year ago was $596,700, but actual expenditures were $529,555, reported Supt. Marcus F. Davis.

Major items in this year's budget include administration, $25,345; instruction, $353,774; auxiliary services, $12,950; school plant operation, $54,645; maintenance of plant, $55,160; fixed charges, $24,394; transportation, $12,210; food service, $10,000, and community services $2,000.

In addition, Davis said, a separate fund for capital expenditures estimated at $20,728 has been set up.

Bids Are Opened For Remodeling Of Capitol Annex

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — The state Division of Archictecture has opened a low bid of $117,395 for remodeling work in the state capitol's new annex which will provide 12 new four-room office suites for state senators and their staffs.

The space has been used by the state controller's office, mainly on the second floor of the annex which was built in 1951.

The assembly previously had taken over much of the state controller's space on its side of the building, the north section, to make room for more committee staffs.

The present alteration project involves some 12,000 square feet of floor space. Low bidder for the project was Affiliated Engineers-Contractors, Inc., Florin.

Efforts To Get Improved Airport Deserve Backing

Marin County still needs an airport.

We have been saying that from time-to-time for more than a decade.

We have said that in some respects an airport is to a city in the 20th century what a railroad was to a city in the 19th century. It puts you on the map. Or the absence of it leaves you off the map.

Since the Marin Development Foundation was formed several years ago, we have learned that the existence of an appropriate airport is essential to the kind of industrial growth which Marin needs in order to broaden our tax base.

In the past decade Marin has lost two airports of limited size—one at Santa Venetia and one at San Rafael—while gaining one new one, at Novato.

It has always seemed to us that the one at Novato is probably destined to meet the same fate as its predecessors at Santa Venetia and San Rafael.

All three were established on what might be described as marginal land; but the land on which two of them stood became too valuable to warrant continuation of its use by a privately operated airport.

We expect that the same thing will happen at Novato within the coming decade.

It will happen, that is, unless we do something about it.

Fortunately, our county authorities and our San Rafael authorities are not asleep. Our Development Foundation and our San Rafael Chamber of Commerce have kept the county and the city awake to this airport problem.

Monday night the city council gave some attention to the airport problem so it is in the discussion stage there.

Tuesday night the county airport committee came up with a plan for a county lease on the Novato airport.

Both the suggestion before the city and the one now before the county remain to be studied thoroughly. Some "bugs" will unquestionably appear. And they will have to be worked out.

But at least we are making a new start. Let us hope it results this time in getting an appropriate airport for Marin.

PICKETING OUR EXHIBIT BEFORE IT OPENS

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Time To Call Right Names

EDITOR,
Independent-Journal:

I notice that you are paying some attention to the litter problem these days, on the editorial page and by giving away litter bags with vacation subscriptions.

This encourages me to believe you might be interested in this piece which we ran in our Regional News Service a couple of months ago.

"Litterbug" is a laugh and a tap on the wrist. The time has come to call these people what they are.

Some people are pigs. Are you? Do you drop cigarette, gum and candy wrappers, tissues and trash on sidewalks and streets? Do you throw papers, bottles, cans and trash from cars along streets and highways? Do you leave papers, bottles, cans and picnic refuse on beaches, in parks, at campgrounds? Do you allow papers and trash to blow from open trucks? Do you discard newspapers where the first breeze will blow them about?

If you do any of these things, chances are you qualify for the name, strong though it may seem.

The mountains of rubbish and miles of littered highways are accumulations of single pieces of paper, single cans, single bottles discarded by individuals. To discard one piece of paper, one can, one bottle seems in itself a trivial act and that is why so many people do it, thoughtlessly.

But when a thousand people discard a thousand scraps of paper, bottles and cans, or a million people discard a million scraps of paper, bottles and cans, the result is a vast unsightly mess which indicts every single individual who has contributed to it.

The key to cleaner, neater highway roadsides, city streets beaches, parks and campgrounds is the individual — the individual who carefully disposes of rubbish and trash. The key act in the individual's reformation is when he puts a piece of paper in his pocket instead of throwing it in the street, or who carefully puts aside bottles, cans and rubbish for proper disposal instead of throwing it along the highways.

Some people are pigs and always will be, probably, but you can make sure you are not in this class by carefully studying your own habits and reforming them, if necessary.

THREE MINUTES A DAY

By JAMES KELLER

MOTHER TAKES BLAME

Subway authorities in Manhattan declined $1.26 recently, even though they have had a hard time making ends meet of late.

The offer was made by the mother of a boy who accidentally caused one of the car windows to be broken when he pushed another youngster.

The conscientious mother added this note to her remittance: "I feel that the right thing for me to do is to pay for the installation of a new pane."

By volunteering so quickly to make amends for the playful mistake of her son, she doubtless taught him a lasting lesson.

The more parents show a responsibility for their children's behavior under all circumstances, the better for everybody concerned.

Young people need and usually accept the sympathetic training and disciplining of their parents. Fathers and mothers who devotedly instill in their children a reverence for God and the rights of others will be blessed for time and eternity.

"He that keepeth the law is a wise son." (Proverbs 28:7)

Is Time Coming When U. S. A. Must Ban Steel Industry Strike?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Each time a strike occurs in an essential industry affecting the whole economy — as now in steel — this question comes up:

Are we reaching a point where the government — meaning a majority of the people — can no longer permit and must forbid a strike in such an industry?

A STRIKE IN any industry was pretty much a private affair years ago when the government's revenue needs were smaller and the various people, plants and industries were far less interdependent than now.

But the American society is now highly complex and interdependent. A strike in one big industry can send out waves that splash thousands of workers, hundreds of businesses, and maybe drown many of them.

For example: This steel strike comes at a time when the nation is recovering from last year's slump. If it's short, it won't do much damage. It will do a lot if it lasts long.

If the strike continues long enough, other industries will use up their steel supplies and have to close, throwing many thousands out of work.

As their income — and the profits of their shut-down plants — are cut off, the national Treasury will suffer from loss of income tax revenue just when it is badly needed.

THUS A STEEL strike — unlike a strike in any industry in years past — is no longer truly private. It already affects and, if it lasts long enough, could paralyze a broad part of the national economy.

But individual rights — the right of employees to quit a job and of an employer to shut down his plant — and the right of both sides to work out their wages and profits must be balanced against the general welfare.

Thus the question: Is the President in the near future likely to propose or Congress to approve a law forbidding a strike in an essential industry? Very likely not.

It would be political dynamite. Both unions and employers want a minimum of government interference. If the government through law could forbid a strike, it would almost certainly then impose compulsory arbitration.

THIS MEANS that arbitrators appointed by the government would listen to both sides and give an opinion both sides would have to accept. If the government did that, out of justice it probably would have to do more.

In the end it would probably have to step in and regulate both wages and prices, which would mean regulating profits too. That would be true governmental control. Eventually it might have to take over the industry.

In 1947 Congress foresaw the national danger of a big strike some day when it passed the Taft-Hartley Act. But still, while providing machinery for stalling off a strike, Congress stopped short of forbidding it altogether.

That law lets the President prevent a strike for 80 days while efforts are made to get both sides to reach agreement. But, after the enforced delay, the strike can go on.

Brown Keeps Promise To Provide More Work For Prisoners To Do

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — The office of Gov. Edmund G. Brown last week announced acceleration of the program voted in the 1959 legislature to put more prisoners to work, instead of keeping them caged in expensive state prisons.

There is nothing new in this program, except the fact that Richard McGee, director of the Department of Corrections, and a hold-over director at that, let it slip during the administration of former Gov. Goodwin J. Knight.

IT WAS SLIPPING so bad, in fact, that it obtained the attention of the Senate Interim Committee on Governmental Administration, headed by Sen. George Miller (D-Martinez). Miller's assistant on the committee, Earl Waters, former newspaperman, had made extensive studies of the prison administration in California, and some years ago came up with the idea that more attention should be paid to keeping convicts busy, rather than providing expensive prisons for them to spend their time in idleness.

This, Waters pointed out, would cut down costs of prison construction and as well, fulfill a need to maintain some occupation for those convicts who could be trusted in camps.

BEFORE THE BROWN administration took over, however, Senator Miller and Waters, as the saying goes, "got no place" with promoting the idea. While some convicts were maintained in camps, McGee made little or no effort to provide more camps and thus release the prison facilities.

This, however, was not in line with Brown's thinking. Forced by some political maneuvering to keep McGee on the job, the new governor nevertheless called the director into his office, it was reported here, and laid down the law about the conservation camps. In fact, Brown announced on a Sacramento television program long before he was elected, that he intended to proceed with vigor on extending the camps when and if he became governor.

He kept this promise by providing more than eight million dollars in his 1959-60 fiscal year budget for the project. And upon signing the budget, one of the first things the governor did was to announce that the funds are now available, and that the program would go ahead full speed.

HE CONTENDED it would obviate the necessity of constructing new and expensive prisons, and in addition assist the prisoner himself.

"There is nothing worse we can do to a human being," the governor said, "than cage him in a cell in enforced idleness. Under the program, prisoners who are non-violent will have the opportunity to keep busy and at the same time work at a constructive program for the public benefit."

The governor explained that the work the convicts will be doing is non-competitive, and would not be done, at least by the state, if the prisoners didn't perform the work.

The work will consist of development of recreational area access roads, forest improvement, stream clearance, forest fire fighting, fish conservation and improvements in state parks. And by January 1, it is expected that some 1,800 prisoners will be employed in the camps.

A young actor with a name five syllables long got a big part in a new movie and promptly had his name changed to Flash Upton. The picture was a smash, and the actor won rave notices and a new contract. Ensconced in his new 14-room penthouse, he gave a great housewarming party, and thoughtfully named his elderly mother the guest of honor.

Everybody showed up but mamma, and the actor was frantic with worry. Finally he went to the lobby to speak to the doorman. "You didn't see a little old lady come in here at any time?" he asked anxiously. "There was one," recalled the doorman. "She's been sitting patiently over in that corner for about three hours now."

She was his mother all right. "Mamma," he cried, "you've had me in a state! Why didn't you come up to my apartment?"

"I wanted to, my son," she told him with tears in her eyes, "but I couldn't remember your new name!"

San Rafael Workers, Take Heart; All Day Parking Is Being Planned

IF YOU'RE a businessman or office worker in downtown San Rafael and need space for all day parking, you're not being forgotten entirely.

Thus far the city has put in three new lots for one and two-hour parking. A fourth lot is being purchased at Third and Cijos streets, also for hourly parking.

But after that, Councilman Joe Sauer and his parking committee want to put in a lot for all day parking. (The municipal parking lot near the Little League field is too far from center of town.)

Sauer says his committee is even thinking of double decking the new lot at Fifth avenue and C street.

DEER HUNTING by inexperienced archers is drawing fire from some Marin sportsmen. Too much wanton slaughter, they claim. With bow and arrow season only a few days old, sheriff's deputies have come across at least three bucks dead in the woods with arrows stuck in the carcasses. Veteran hunters claim that inexperienced archers do not hit the animal in the right place, then don't know how to track the wounded deer.

UNLESS SOMEONE comes up with a name for San Rafael's second high school on the Freitas Ranch, it's going to be called Terra Linda High School by default. We understand the school board is going to search the land grant records to see if they can come up with a snappy Spanish name.

It's not easy to pick a new school name. It must be appropriate to the geographic area, can't be too long, must be adaptable for use in a school yell, and not too difficult to pronounce.

ROSCOE DRUMMOND

Russians Disguise Communism When Preparing It For Export

WASHINGTON — What do you think the English-speaking guides at the Soviet exhibit in New York are saying to the American visitors who ask them: "Where are your copies of Dr. Zhivago?"

The answer is: "Dr. Zhivago is where those pictures are that you were supposed to send to Moscow!"

Sounds fair, doesn't it? Almost clever, this tit-for-tat riposte which says in effect: "Yes, we Soviets repress artists the way you do!"

There is only one thing wrong with this Soviet retort. It is untrue.

The Soviet propagandists are seeking to divert attention from the suppression of Boris Pasternak's great novel by contending that the U.S. is not sending the paintings to our exhibit in Moscow which we first announced we would send. They are counting on their mis-statement to hold long enough so that their questioners won't press the point.

The facts are that the paintings by American artists, which some Americans criticize, have been sent to Moscow. They are going to be shown at the American exhibition there and, while President Eisenhower said there were some he wouldn't have selected, he was not going to act either as a critic or a censor of what would be exhibited as representative works of modern American art.

THE COMMUNISTS, of course, are having a field day playing around with the American criticism of the selection of paintings to be shown in Moscow and praticularly with the questions which Rep. Francis E. Walter (D., Pa.) has raised concerning the political background of some of the artists. One voice from Radio Moscow had its fun this way: "Red was the dominating color in certain canvasses depicting the sunset. In other cases artists were known to have painted with brushes made of imported hair. Now, isn't that certain proof that these (American) artists had contracts beyond the iron curtain?"

Well, that's harmless joshing among propagandists, but a serious question I want to raise is this:

Why do the Soviet Communists feel they have to picture Communism as something different than it is? Don't they believe in it? Don't they look upon repression and censorship as good things that ought to be praised rather than covered up?"

Bear in mind that this studied quip by the guides at the Soviet exhibit is being used over and over again. They all give exactly the same answer in the same words. "Dr. Zhivago is where those pictures are that you were supposed to send to Moscow."

EVEN IF THE U.S. Government had not chosen to send these particular paintings to Moscow — as it did — the gap between Communist society and a free society would be vast. The gap would be just this:

Pasternak's "Dr. Zhivago," which is less critical of Soviet life than much that has been written of American life by Upton Sinclair, John Steinbeck or Sinclair Lewis, cannot be bought, cannot be read, cannot be published in the Soviet Union.

A basic ingredient of a free society is not whether a government chooses a particular work of art to praise or to exhibit; it is whether a government acts to prevent the artist to publish or to exhibit his work.

There is only official Art in the Soviet Union.

There is no official art in America.

The fact that the U.S. government, in its Moscow exhibit, is showing pictures which arouse controversy is the best possible proof that creative freedom in America is alive and real. Nothing could show more clearly that no one in America tells the artist what or how he must paint, compose or write.

But why shouldn't the Soviet guides at the Soviet exhibit candidly say: "We are proud that 'Zhivago' is not published in Russia. We think everybody is better off where nothing is said, written, printed or composed which the government doesn't approve."

They suggest that the only way to export Communism is to disguise it.

Seating Of Races Together In School Approved

Novato Presbyterian Church members who would not object to the seating of Negro and caucasian students together in classrooms far outnumber those who would object to such seating.

HOUSING LAST WEEK

Another part of the survey—on housing—was released last week. A majority of those answering said they would not welcome Negroes to their neighborhood.

To that question there were 83 "yes" answers, 104 "nos" and 14 who chose not to answer.

In the questionnaire on education, the questions with the number of "yes answers first, the "no" answer total second, and the number who chose not to answer, third, were:

Do you object to Negro and caucasian students being seated side by side in the same classroom?—19, 176, 55; Do you object to Negro and caucasian students participating together in athletics?—9, 187, 5; Would you welcome Negro parents in your P-TA?—171, 20, 10; Do you favor the employment of qualified Negro teachers in our schools only on the basis of the number of Negro students enrolled?—138, 51, 12.

Do you favor the employment of the best qualified teachers in our schools even if they are Negroes and there are no Negro students enrolled? — 138, 51, 12; Would you object to your child's friendship with a Negro of the same sex? 37, 154, 10; Would you object to Negro and caucasian students participating together in social clubs, school dances, etc. — 53, 134, 14; Would you object to your child's friendship with a Negro of the opposite sex?—113, 79, 9; Would you object to your child dating a Negro?—166, 25, 10.

GOOD RESPONSE

Novato School Supt William J. J. Smith, an elder of the church, said: "The nine questions . . . are fairly typical and drew a reasonably heavy percentage" of yes and no answers."

He said the first two questions "indicate a high acceptance of the practices generally found in most California schools as far as classroom and athletic participation are concerned."

Commenting on the third, fourth, fifth and sixth questions, Smith said they "would indicate that the responding group favors participation of everyone in these activities on the basis of their willingness and ability rather than on some other standards."

He noted that "hesitancy about employment of Negro teachers" is shown in the response. Smith added the answers showed little objection to "free association of children on the basis of their own choice of friends."

KESSEL PLEASED

Dr. Kessel said, "I am particularly pleased to note the overwhelming approval to question number 5. Most people here in Novato want their children to have the advantage of the most capable teachers, even if these teachers happen to be Negroes.

"Our community has made real progress toward racial equality acceptance in this important respect. As for the last two questions in this education section of the questionnaire, because they relate to the emotional subjects of sex and dating, they are closely concerned with the section on personal relations."

Professors Will Conduct Services At Sleepy Hollow

For four successive Sundays beginning Aug. 2, services at the Sleepy Hollow Presbyterian Church will be conducted by professors of the San Francisco Theological Seminary of San Anselmo.

The guest pastors will conduct services in the absence of Rev. John C. Bruce who will be on vacation. Pending completion of the new Sleepy Hollow church building, regular Sunday worship will be held at the home of Dr. Jesse H. Baird, 25 Deer Hollow road.

Dr. Benjamin A. Reist, assistant professor of systematic theology, will preach on Aug. 2. Dr. Reist received his doctorate of theology from Princeton Theological Seminary.

Dr. Martin Anton Schmidt, who was educated in Germany and Switzerland, will be in the puplit Aug. 9 and Aug. 23. Dr. Schmidt serves as assistant professor of church history at the seminary.

Dr. Neil Q. Hamilton, assistant professor in New Testament and also a graduate of Princeton Theological Seminary, will preach on Aug. 16.

Church Asks Use Permit At New Site

Mill Valley's Christian Science Church, for many years located at Lovell and Olive avenues, has made an application to the city planning commission for a use permit to locate a new edifice on the west side of Camino Alto some 500 feet north of its intersection with the East Blithedale intersection.

Mrs. Gustaf Wolf, church clerk, said it was a "future action" and that no plans have yet been drawn for a new church that would replace the present structure.

The application is scheduled to come before the planners at their July 28 meeting.

Science's Compatibility With Religion Stressed

By JACK STILLMAN

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP)—Will man's first flight into space cast doubt on the existence of God?

Two men closely associated with American space projects have taken special pains to answer that question.

Their interpreted conclusion: No.

The men are Maj. Gen. J. B. Medaris, commander of the Army Ordnance Missile Command, and Dr. Wernher von Braun, the Army's leading civilian scientist. Both are stationed at Redstone Arsenal.

Medaris and Von Braun, like many other scientists, measure their words carefully when they try to explain why they believe man's flight into space will not refute religious dogma.

In speeches, both have tried to show the relation between religion and the scientific and technological revolution, hinging their remarks on the 10 Commandments as man's guideposts.

Says Episcopalian Medaris: "The 10 Commandments have guided men and brought them safely through the upheavals of the past. They should be the rock of decision today and through all our tomorrows."

Von Braun, a Lutheran in his native Germany who attends an Episcopal church in Huntsville, says: "I think it is a fair assumption that the 10 Commandments are entirely adequate, without amendments, to cope with all the problems the technological revolution not only has brought up but will bring up in the future."

Medaris says he believes scientific advance has been made with the grace of God. He told a recent meeting of Army chaplains: "It is my own belief . . . that the door would have closed in our faces if what we are attempting contravened God's design."

"Our first steps into the vacuum of space," he says, "have re-emphasized the beauty and order of creation . . . and have verified the natural laws which govern all existence."

Von Braun, stressing the compatability of religion and science, says he thinks God will always be evident to man, no matter what scientific wonders are unfolded.

New Mission Slated For Mill Valley

A new Southern Baptist mission to be located in Mill Valley will hold its first service tomorrow in the Mill Valley Masonic Temple opposite the city hall, it was announced this week by Rev. R. Y. Gerrard, the new pastor.

The new mission is being sponsored by the First Baptist Church of Novato and the church missions committee, it was announced by Rev. Ted Lindwall of Novato and William Porter, missions chairman.

Rev. Gerrard, former pastor in Covington, Tenn., is a graduate of Mississippi Baptist College in Clinton. He also attended the Southern Baptist Seminary at Louisville, Ky.

He and his wife, Mary Lou, have two children, Nancy Lou, 11, and Robert, 8. The family plans to live in Mill Valley as soon as they can locate a suitable home.

Rev. Gerrard announced that Sunday school will begin at 9:45 a.m. and the morning service at 11 a.m. Training union will be at 7 p.m. and the evening service at 8 p.m.

Too Much Praise, Ministers Told

"The old ladies in the congregation," he said, "are the worst offenders."

Jordan Extends Recognition To Another Church

JERUSALEM, Jordan (AP) — The 1,300-member Evangelical Lutheran Church in Jordan has been granted state recognition as one of the "non-Mohammedan religious communities."

Others so recognized by the government of Moslem Jordan are the Anglican, Roman Catholic and Orthodox Churches.

About 12 per cent of Jordan's population is Christian.

Methodist Birthday

BALTIMORE (AP)—The Methodist Church in America observes its 175th anniversary next December. The church in the United States was organized in 1784 at Lovely Lane Chapel in Baltimore.

SYDNEY, Mont. (AP) — Rev. Dr. William Larsen of Blair, Neb., will be the last president of the 67,000-member United Evangelical Lutheran Church.

He has served one three-year term and will continue in office for the next 18 months until Jan. 1, 1961, when the UELC merges with the Evangelical Lutheran Church and the American Lutheran Church.

Debit Fails In Bid For Trans-Pac Win

HONOLULU, (UPI) —TransPacific Yacht Race officials estimate that the 38-foot Stockton sloop Debit will not arrive in Honolulu before late today — meaning that Balboa's Nalu II appears assured of certain victory.

The Debit would have had to cross the Diamond Head line early today to win the race. However, she was not expected before 4 p.m. (HST)

The 46-foot Nalu II crossed the finish line early yesterday for a handicap time of nine days, five hours, 50 minutes and 27 seconds. The Debit was the only boat that still had a chance to overtake Nalu, but the wind turned against her.

Meanwhile, another yacht—the 47-foot cutter Patronilla out of Portland, Ore.—crossed the finish line last night at 8:09 p.m. Her elapsed time for the voyage was nine days, 23 hours, 17 minutes and 17 seconds.

The St. Francis Yacht Club sloop Tasco II also crossed the finish line at 10:08 last night, showing an elapsed time of 13 days, 13 hours, 8 minutes and 25 seconds.

Honolulu's No Hu Hu was due in early today, followed by the yawl Tiare from the Kaneohe Yacht Club.

Race officials said they still have had no word on the location of Janie, a Portland sloop which they at first expected to arrive yesterday.

However, no concern was felt for the craft. The Janie has been silent since July 9, when her radio communication evidently broke down.

NOVATO STAR TO ATTEND OREGON STATE

George Gnoss, outsanding guard on Novato High School's football squad last season, has decided to accept a scholarship to Oregon State College, he informed OSC Head Football Coach Tommy Prothro this week.

Prothro, a Marin County visitors this week, said: "We are tremendously pleased with his decision to attend Oregon State. Our staff has viewed more than 1,000 films of last season's high school games and we rate George as one of the best linemen this side of the rockies."

Prothro also noted that Gnoss scored unusually high on the college board examination, "So we don't expect any problems from him academically."

Gnoss won All-Marin County and All-North Bay League honors last fall. He recently graduated from Novato.

Big Turnout Expected For Small Boat Regatta Sunday

More than 200 Bay Area skippers are expected to invade southern Marin County tomorrow when the defending champion Sausalito Yacht Club plays host to the annual Small Boat Racing Assn. Regatta.

As in the past, one of the biggest turnouts of yachts is anticipated for this annual regatta. There will be two sets of races, one at 10:30 a.m. and the other at 2 p.m. All courses are within the confines of Richardson Bay, giving the spectator a veritable three-ring circus and at not to distant range.

SAN FRANCISCO Y.C. also is staging a wind blown affair tomorrow, but quite dissimilar in that it is a handicap race and open only to keel boats listed on the club's yacht roster. It is the annual Peter Mitchell Memorial Perpetual Trophy race and will be contested over a course from Belvedere Cove to and around Southampton Shoal Lighthouse and return to starting line.

Any keel boat is eligible, whether it be an 18-foot Mercury or 65-foot ocean racer. It should prove highly interesting and a tough problem for the Race Committee to figure out equitable handicaps.

The event is held in memoriam of the late Mrs. Bernon Mitchell, an indefatigable worker for the club and, in particular, the juniors and lesser small fry. Known by all as "Peter," a nickname she had carried from childhood, she was christened Mary Francis.

THE INTERNATIONAL Mercury Championship Regatta will be held in Marin waters the week of July 27, with races every day through Friday, save Wednesday. The event will be sponsored by the three southern Marin clubs, San Francisco, Sausalito and Corinthian. The last year's winner was A. B. Smith of San Pedro and the local hotshots have strong hopes of bringing the trophy back to this area; the birthplace of the class as created by Nunes Brothers of Sausalito.

Littler Blazes Way to Big Lead In Insurance Open

Littler has scored rounds of 64-66-130 for 36 holes, a blistering pace, over the par 71 Wethersfield Country Club's 6,548-yard course.

His brilliant putting and pinpointed drives have shot him five strokes ahead of his nearest challengers, Bruce Crampton of Sydney, Australia, and Bob Goalby of Crystal River, Fla.

He has used only 58 putts, 28 each day. He has missed only two greens and only one putt.

As the third round shaped up today, the field had been reduced from 155 to 88.

In addition to Crampton and Goalby, others ready to cash in on any lapses include Al Besselink, Grossinger, N.Y.; and Fred Hawkins, El Paso, Tex., 136s.

Mrs. Kobil Wins M. V. Golf Trophy

Mrs. John Kobil shot an 89-23—66 for low net to win the Sabella Trophy for July at the Mill Valley Women's Golf Club medal play tournament yesterday.

Class B—Mrs. Henry Seagle, 96-29—67; Mrs. Walter Goldman, 101-34—67; Mrs. Howard Kemper, 99-29—70; Mrs. Lester Calender, 100-29—71.

AAU MEET

Ruuska, Cone Smash World Swim Marks

REDDING, (AP) — Teenagers continued to dominate the National AAU Women's Swimming Championships today after a pair of them raced to world records in the 220-yard backstroke and 440-yard medley.

Shapely Carin beat defending champion Chris von Saltza in the backstroke and went the distance in 2 minutes 27.9 seconds to erase the world mark of 2:38.5 by L. De Nijs of Holland in 1957.

Then came 17-year-old Sylvia and the greatest performance ever in the 440-yard medley in which the racers swim one lap each of breaststroke, backstroke, butterfly and freestyle.

Miss Ruuska, a senior at Berkeley High School, went the distance in 5 minutes 40.2 seconds. The International Swimming Federation last year in setting up the event for world competition had set 5:52 or better for recognition as records.

Miss Cone, from Ridgewood, N. J., and swimming for the Houston Shamrocks since she's a sophomore at the University of Houston, was swimming the 220 as a final long race conditioner for the 100-meter backstroke in this summer's Pan-American Games.

AMERICAN RECORD

Other winners yesterday included: Miss von Saltza of Saratoga, Calif., with 1:04.8, and American citizen's record, in the 110-yard freestyle.

Ann Warner, 14-year-old from the Santa Clara Club with an American record of 3:02.4 for the 220-yard breaststroke.

Fans Boo Decision For Calhoun After Dull Video Fight

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (AP) — Sleepy-eyed Rory Calhoun, winner of a 10-round split decision, said today he had to chase Dick Tiger to make the fight.

Most of last night's crowd of 1,320 thought differently. They howled and tossed refuse into the ring after Judges Dick Fazio and Harold McGrath awarded the last three rounds to Calhoun and a 6-4 margin.

Referee Joe Palmer saw the middleweight scrap 5-3-2 for Tiger. So did AP.

Calhoun, 24, and five years younger than Tiger, showed more aggressiveness toward the end. This probably impressed Fazio and McGrath.

The win boosted Calhoun's record to 40-7-2. Tiger, the British Empire middleweight champion, now is 32-9-2.

Giants Enjoy Best Lead Of Year

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The San Francisco Giants, riding along on the most successful one-two pitching punch in the majors, today boasted their biggest lead of the season.

Sam Jones tossed a neat seven-hitter last night to beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 4-1 and put the Giants two games ahead of the second-place Los Angeles Dodgers.

Jones' 13th win, following Johnny Antonelli's 14th victory Thursday night, gave Manager Bill Rigney the opportunity to manipulate the rest of his pitching staff to maximum advantage.

The Milwaukee Braves, beaten 4-3 by the St. Louis Cardinals, dropped three games off the pace. That's the farthest back that the Braves have been since July 10, 1957.

One of the most notable examples was the Boston Braves in 1948 when Johnny Sain and Warren Spahn did practically all of the pitching in the run for the pennant. A jingle sung in those days went:

"Two days rest and two days rain.

"Sain and Spahn. Spahn and Sain."

And the Giants, when they won the pennant in 1951, did it almost entirely behind Larry Jansen and Sal Maglie.

Ronnie Kline, lifted for a pinch-hitter, was replaced by Elroy Face on the mound in the eighth. The Giants touched Face, the league's best fireman, for their last two runs.

Cepeda singled, stole second and third and came home on a squeeze play as Pirate first sacker Dick Stuart bobbled Hobie Landrith's bunt. Jackie Brandt, who had walked, scored on Bressoud's single — Eddie's third hit in four trips.

Sixto's Foe To Arrive Here July 25

Light heavyweight contender Jesse Bowdry has informed the San Francisco Boxing Club that he will arrive in San Francisco next Saturday, for his 10-round boxing match at the Civic Auditorium Thursday, July 30, against Sixto Rodriguez of San Anselmo.

The hard-hitting St. Louis fighter, whose decisive victory over Tony Anthony recently moved him up the ladder as a threat for Archie Moore's 175-pound title, will be accompanied to the West Coast by co-managers Bernard Glickman and Eddie Yawitz. He'll wind up training locally at Billy Newman's Gym.

Going into the bout with a 22-1 mark, Rodriguez will have the opportunity to gain national prominence if he can trim the Midwesterner.

Tickets for the scrap, on sale at the San Francisco Boxing Club, 472 Ellis Street, San Francisco Boxing Club, 472 Ellis Street, San Francisco, are scaled at $2.50, $5.00 and $7.50.

Homers Pace Harry's To Junior Loop Win

Braves At Lowest Spot Since 1957

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Joey Jay lost one, then Carl Willey, then Lew Burdette. Now Warren Spahn. That's how the Milwaukee Braves, favored for pitching, have lost four in a row for the first time this season and have skidded to third, three games behind in the National League race — their largest deficit in two years.

Not since July 10, 1957, have the Braves been that far off the pennant pace. Then they were second to St. Louis, finally overhauling the Cards and running off with their first title.

Friday night it was a sixth-place St. Louis, usually a soft touch for Spahn, that beat the southpaw ace with a two-out rally in the eighth inning for a 4-3 victory.

San Francisco's first place Giants picked up their largest lead of the year by rapping Pittsburgh 4-1 while second place Los Angeles lost 3-2 at Philadelphia.

CHISOX NIP N.Y.

In the American League, the Chicago White Sox were hitless for eight innings but beat New York 2-0 as Early Wynn defeated Ralph Terry in a double two-hit duel. Cleveland remained within a game of Chicago with an 8-7 victory at Boston. Baltimore defeated Detroit 3-2 and Kansas City beat Washington 7-4.

Spahn (11-10), who has won more games from St. Louis than any other club, gave up an unearned run on his own error in the third inning but still had a 3-2 lead until the eighth. Ken Boyer singled and scored the tying run on Joe Cunningham's double. Then rookie Gene Oliver, who had hit in a double-play, popped up and fanned, singled home the winner.

Lindy McDaniel (8-10) won it in relief, allowing one hit and striking out four in his two innings.

The last place Phillies had only four hits off Roger Craig, who lost his first after winning four. Jim Owens went all the way for his fifth victory against eight defeats.

Ceccarelli, an American League castoff after losing his last seven decisions with Kansas City and Baltimore, won his second without defeat for the Cubs. The 29-year-old lefty also scored the run, coming across on a fielder's choice in the fifth against Bob Purkey (8-10).

ALMANAC

Today is Saturday, July 18, the 199th day of the year, with 166 more days in 1959.

The moon is approaching its full phase.

The evening stars are Jupiter, Saturn, Venus and Mars.

On this date in history:

In 64 A.D. Rome burned; Nero fiddled.

In 1932, the United States and Canada signed a treaty to develop the St. Lawrence seaway.

In 1938, Douglas Corrigan arrived in Dublin, Ireland, from New York ostensibly on a flight to California and was immediately nicknamed by fellow Americans "Wrong Way Corrigan."

In 1940, President Franklin Delano Roosevelt was nominated unanimously to run for a third term.

In 1951, Joseph "Jersey Joe" Walcott knocked out Ezzard Charles in the seventh round to win the world heavyweight boxing championship in Pittsburgh.

A thought for today: Franklin D. Roosevelt said, "There is no indispensable man."

Hayward Plant Hit By Walkout

HAYWARD (UPI) — The Hunt Food and Industries Corp. plant was shut down here yesterday by a strike of 500 teamster cannery and clerical workers.

The 420 striking cannery workers walked out Wednesday afternoon after negotiators and federal mediators failed to produce a contract. Eighty clerical workers, recently organized by the teamsters, followed yesterday morning. The union is asking a 30-cent hourly pay raise.

Couple Feted For 50 Years Of Marriage

Four children, a dozen grand-children, and half a dozen great-grandchildren of Moses and Mary Durbin are with the couple today in Woodacre for their golden wedding.

Married in Llano, Tex., on July 18,1909, the Durbins have lived in Marin since 1942.

"I was making $4 a day as a blacksmith when we were married," Durbin recalls. Since then he has worked as a machinist and mechanic and is still active as an off-and-on carpenter at the age of 73. His wife will be 70 on April 5, 1960.

The Durbins live with their eldest daughter, Mrs. Edward Gerhardt, at whose Woodacre home the fiftieth anniversary festivities will take place.

Their other children are Moses Durbin Jr., 7 Hillview avenue, San Rafael; Eugene Durbin, Grand Junction, Colo., and Eugene's twin sister, Mrs. Edward Conaway, Jasper, Ore.

Durbin retired at 65 but found he "just couldn't quit." Today, besides carpentering whenever he runs into a job, he and his wife enjoy picnics, fishing and, above all, dancing.

Farm Woman Tells Of Slaying Two Men

ANNISTON, Ala (UPI)—A tall, heavy-set farmer's daughter calmly related yesterday how she killed her boy friend and his brother during a drinking bout, then dismembered their bodies with an ax and scattered the remains along a highway.

"I feel better after telling my story," Miss Viola Hyatt, 30, told police yesterday after she admitted the slayings.

State public safety director Floyd Mann said Miss Hyatt admitted killing the brothers because they drank too heavily, abused her, and abused her 75-year-old father.

The torsos of the two brothers were found June 28 and June 29 near an abandoned farm house about 40 miles from the scene of the crime.

UNDERWATER DIVING

Swim Pool Builders Offer New Service

If you lose a motor or sink a boat in deep water and need some help to recover them, there is an underwater diving firm right in San Rafael that is ready to go to work for you.

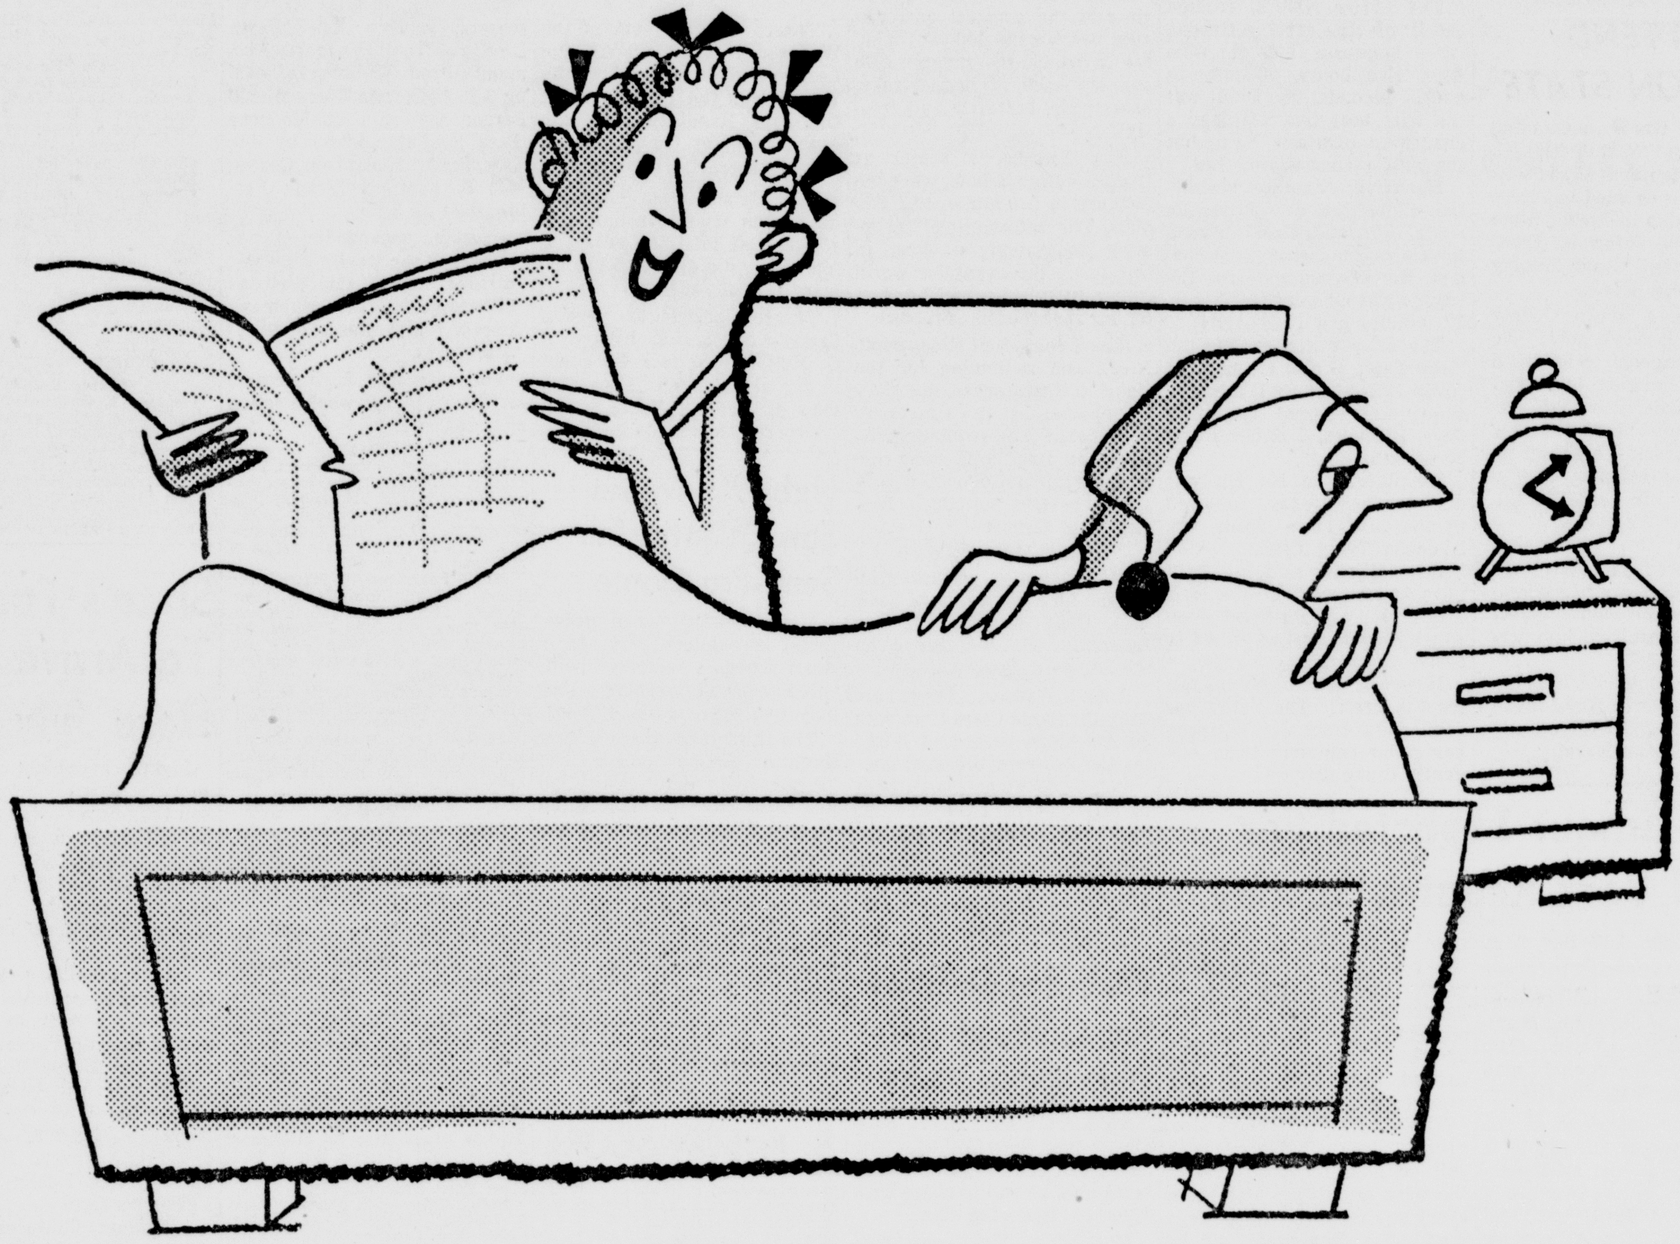
Larry Wright and Associates of 90 Louise street, San Rafael, has added underwater diving and repair to its regular job of swimming pool building.

Wright announced he has good divers who will dive in ocean, bay, rivers, pools and tanks to make repairs or salvage sunken ships, planes or valuables. Here are some of the wide variety of jobs that can be handled by Wright and Associates:

Recovering lost outboard motors, sunken boats and planes, cutting of pilings or repairing pilings below the water level, underwater boat repair without drydocking, repairing swimming pool leaks without draining water, sanding down plaster inside a filled pool, recovery of missing bodies, and other underwater activity.

Meeting Cancelled

The regular Wednesday night meeting of the Tiburon Peninsula Coordinating Council has been canceled, according to Chairman Peter Macgowan.



"Don't bother me . . . I'm doing tomorrow's shopping with the I-J ads!"

MRS. MARIN carefully studies the ads in the daily Independent-Journal. In more than 26,000 homes* she (and Mr. Marin too) is alert to every offering of stores, shops and professional services. Prices and values are compared, and the Marin family disburses an average yearly income of $7,445, a rate that tops every county in the state except one (first by a slight margin: San Mateo County).

No other community in the west gives the advertiser such waste-free, concentrated coverage of high-income buyers at such low cost per family. Nearly 100 per cent of the I-J's circulation is home delivered —right on the doorsteps of 5 out of 7 Marin householders. This is paid-for and wanted circulation—no throwaways or free copies are included.

If you are in business and want to do more than a neighborhood trade in Marin, there is only one sure way to build and grow—follow the example of practically every successful Marin enterprise and advertise in the daily Independent-Journal!

Teen-Age Son Is Poor Worker When Employed By His Father

Mr. E.C. "I own a store. I hired my teenage son to work in it during the summer vacation. He was a poor worker. I was about to fire him when I heard one of my friend complain that his boy was the same way. He had hired his son just as I had hired mine. He had had equally bad results. We decided to have our boys trade jobs. They were glad to do it. Now my son is doing well working for my friend. His son has a good record working for me. Why wouldn't those boys settle down and work for their fathers?"

Reply. Probably the reason is the resentment teenage boys feel toward their fathers. If they work for their dads they carry the same feelings over to their jobs. They may fight back, and resent simple directions. They may be lazy. But often the same boys will feel only admiration for another boss. They may work their heads off for them. It's good you thought of having them trade jobs.

Mr. E.N. "Should the father be the one to punish the children? I'm bigger and stronger than my wife. We have four sons and one daughter. I think my wife should wait until I get home from work, and then have me do the spankings. Instead she goes ahead and whips them when they are bad. The result is that they respect her more than they do me. Is she right? Or am I?"

Reply. Sorry to disagree, but I think you are both wrong. My feeling is that parents should share equally the responsibility for disciplining their children. It shouldn't be the exclusive job of either the mother or the father. Do you and your wife apply the same standards to your children? Are you equally strict? Do you always try to use the mildest punishment that will teach the needed lesson? Do you use rewards and praise? Do you use corporal punishment sparingly? Do your children know you love and respect them? If so they'll have the same respect and love for each of you.

Ike Not Cool About Bohlen

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower has taken steps to correct the impression that he is cool to the idea of bringing Ambassador Charles E. (Chip) Bohlen back to Washington as an expert on the Soviet Union.

Eisenhower authorized his press secretary, James C. Hagerty, to announce yesterday that nothing could be farther from the truth than reports that the President lacks confidence in Bohlen. He said he has a great deal of confidence in him. The President was reported dismayed that references by him to Bohlen at the presidential news conference Wednesday had been misinterpreted.

TIGHT SWEATER TABOO IN STATE VEHICLE OFFICE

SACRAMENTO (AP) —Peek-a-boo blouses and tight sweaters have been outlawed for Sacramento employees of the state Department of Motor Vehicles by Al Veglia, registrar of vehicles, on grounds "they do not make for efficiency in government."

This also goes for women's skin-tight abbreviated slacks and men who have been working without benefit of shoes, sox, shirt or undershirt.

Sailor Arrested Following Chase

Raymond Dennis Crews, 19, was in jail charged with reckless driving and resisting arrest following a 100-mph chase starting in Sausalito and winding up in the hills of Greenbrae at approximately 3 a.m. today.

Crews, a sailor of 68 Greenbrae boardwalk, Larkspur, was handcuffed by Larkspur patrolman John Cottle and Special Officer Oakley Dexter in the 300 block of Almenor drive where he was found in his vehicle, apparently asleep.

The chase involved units from Sausalito, Corte Madera and Larkspur. Crews' car struck a "keep right" sign on Highway 101 at the Greenbrae turnoff, police said. The vehicle was identified by matching paint on the fender.

Catholic Girl Quits Contest

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—There'll be no Miss Omaha in the Miss Nebraska contest because 18-year-old Mary Jean Belitz isn't going to jeopardize her Catholic college education.

The blue-eyed blonde quit the state contest after, she said, she was told that if she competed she would not be permitted to re-enter Duchesne College in Omaha next fall. She will be a sophomore.

Mary Jean said the chief objection of the church school officials was the bathing suit competition part of the contest.

Fairfax Trustees To Discuss Taxes

A report on proposed higher taxes will be made at a meeting of the Fairfax School District Board at 7:45 p.m. Tuesday in the Manor School multi-use room.

Discussion will center on a report of plans for independent operation during 1960-61. A subject that Supt. Harold R. DePue said he hopes to have explored thoroughly by next Jan. 1. The amount of tax increase required is a key consideration.

Modifications or corrections of an administrative handbook given to the board in June will be considered.

Alice Lon, Welk Part After Tiff

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Singer Alice Lon's long association with Lawrence Welk's orchestra has ended, the Mirror News said today.

The question of whether she quit or was fired was up in the air.

LAWRENCE CHANGED

"I just couldn't take it any longer. Lawrence has changed. It isn't the same happy family it used to be when I joined him six years ago."

The newspaper story said Miss Lon and Welk had a disagreement over an undisclosed subject before the band went on vacation last month.

"I was mad and told him I was quitting, but he didn't say anything," Miss Lon was quoted. "A few days later I received a letter from his manager telling me that my resignation had been accepted."

MISSES REHEARSAL

Miss Lon was reported to have been absent from rehearsal yesterday for tonight's resumption of the Welk television show over the ABC network.

The Mirror News reported Welk said she had quit "without talking things over."

BUILDINGS ORDERED VACATED

It's Deadline Time Again For Sausalito Dwellings

By RANDALL GOULD

Sausalito's ancient problem of even more ancient arks and dwellings faced another of its many deadlines today. Prospects were that this deadline would be as ineffectual and frustrating as the many that have gone before.

By order of Marin Superior Court three buildings owned by Donlon Arques at Marinship, elegantly termed "apartments" but otherwise identified as Ways 1, 2 and 3, were to be vacated by today. Failure to bring this about is supposed to result of contempt proceedings.

But the order is directed at Arques as owner whereas the residents, to an unknown number, flit in and out with no apparent interest in such legalities. Thus the general skepticism as to their moving out.

Next big day in the lives of Sausalito's numerous dwellers on antique arks and barges will be Monday, July 27, according to John B. Ehlen, Sausalito city attorney. On that date proceedings may start against a considerable number of such residents provided the authorities have been able by then to serve legal papers on them—a problem which has proved vexatious over a period of several years of sporadic efforts.

The chief hassle about ark residence is that raw sewage is discharged directly into the bay from the vessels. Four of the dwellers against whom orders had been served to make sewer connections or leave their floating homes were originally up against today as deadline, but they now have until a week from today, Saturday, July 25—two days before proceedings are due to come up against others to a possible total of around 30.

The four affected by a May ruling by Judge Thomas F. Keating are all on underwater Mono street. It was the court's wish that they apply to the city council for permission to tie in with a sewer but the council denied such permission lest affirmative action countenance obstruction of a public street. Next, it is indicated, will be an effort to dissolve the court order.

Other old-boat dwellers are scattered here and there elsewhere, including the Marinship area, living in abandoned craft which the authorities declare to be true homes with no prospect of ever navigating again. Ehlen supports the council's attitude of refusing sewer hookups and hopes for specific legislation to outlaw this kind of residence.

"But finding these people is like looking for a needle in a haystack," said Ehlen on a basis of many months of wrangling, plot and counterplot.

The problem is said to be about as old as Sausalito but it has been a matter of active though indecisive battle for two years.

Bridges Says Story Of Deals 'Fantastic'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Harry Bridges called "fantastic" the testimony of a "once prominent New York lawyer" before the Senate Racket Committee in Washington.

Bridges did not once identify the witness in his column in the Friday issue of the Dispatcher, publication of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union.

Bridges said the man was put on the stand "to rattle through a story about deals within deals."

Bartley C. Crum, New York attorney, told the committee Monday that Bridges had approached him in an alleged scheme to buy off one of the court-appointed monitors for James Hoffa's Teamster Union. Crum said the long-run aim was a merger of the Bridges and Hoffa unions.

In his article, Bridges denied that any such merger was planned.

"Such matters have never been the subject of discussion between the ILWU and the Teamsters at any time," Bridges wrote.

Bridges contended the rackets committee sought to create an impression "from our few discussions" that the two unions were "up to something evil, subversive and illegal."

Hoffa told the committee the ILWU and Teamsters had held discussions over jurisdictions and organizing programs in Hawaii.

Bridges and Hoffa also have talked together on common problems resulting from increased automation on loading docks with a threat of idling workers.

Kistler Asks Jail Sentence Be Dropped

Donald D. Kistler, 35, former San Rafael newstand operator convicted of having lewd films in his shop, is scheduled to appear in Marin Municipal Court Monday afternoon to face a jail sentence.

His sentence had been stayed since October of last year while he appealed the conviction. Then sentence imposed at that time was three year's probation on condition he serve 90 days in jail or pay $375 fine and serve 45 days in jail.

Kistler's attorney, Albert Bendich, told Dist. Atty. William O. Weissich his client asked the court to relieve him of the jail sentence. Kistler is now working for the Look Magazine sales department in San Jose, according to Bendich.

Weissich, who prosecuted the case, said he will demand that the jail sentence be carried out.

Drunken Drivers Given Penalties

One drunken driver drew a jail term plus a fine, while another got off with a fine yesterday in Marin Municipal Court.

Judge Harold J. Haley ordered George Andrew Kitt, 51, of 1 Summit avenue, San Anselmo, to spend five days in jail and pay a $250 fine for his second offense. Kitt was caught on Second street in San Rafael last July 2. He had a prior conviction.

A first offender, who got off with $200 fine, was Thomas Jay Wilson, 62, of 519 Mission avenue, San Rafael. San Rafael police arrested him on Mission avenue last Monday.

The judge put Wilson on one year probation on condition he pay the fine, not drink for six months, and drive only for work and necessary family errands for the next six months and only between 6 a.m. and 6 p.m.

Cattle Set Record; Beef No Cheaper

SACRAMENTO (AP)—A record number of cattle were being fattened for California's markets July 1, but it isn't likely to make beef any cheaper.

The state Agricultural Department reported this week that the state had a record 648,000 calves and cattle on feed when the month opened. The cattle go on feed a few months prior to being shipped to market.

Long range economic forecasts say there probably won't be any break in the price of beef, however.

Pupils Guests At Presido

More than 30 handicapped children from the Marindale School in San Anselmo were given an all-day tour of aspects of both the historic and modern U. S. army yesterday.

Ten members of the Presidio Honor Guard took them by army bus to Ft. Baker to see deep sea diving equipment and a demonstration of diving techniques by the 561st Engineer Company.

The group had army chow at the Honor Guard Company Mess and then visited points of historic interest in the Presidio. Finally, they visited Ft. Cronkhite and saws one of the army's Nike sites.

Patrol Steps Up Trucker Arrests

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Statistics from the California Highway Patrol indicate that patrolmen are cracking down harder this year on truckers than they did last.

During the first five months of 1958, officers stopped and checked 742,000 trucks. During the same period this year they had upped the number nearly 40,000.

Total arrests, mostly for speeding or driving overweight vehicles, went up 4 per cent, from 66,000 to nearly 69,000.

Expert Will Study Famed Gold Area

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The state has hired a consultant to study the planning needs of the Mother Lode country to preserve its historic and recreational interest.

The Division of Beaches and Parks will pay S. James Barlick of Sacramento $5,000 to make the study of the famed gold mining region.

Steel Strike Hits Defense Output

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The four-day-old steel strike, currently pinching the nation's economy, is beginning to put a dent in national defense work.

The strike has already snarled plans for the completion of three Atlas missile launching sites near Cheyenne, Wyo., according to construction officials.

The first site, scheduled for completion on Sept. 20, will be finished in time. But high pressure tanks for the other sites are not expected to be delivered in time for the November completion date because of the strike, the officials said.

As for the economic situation, the nation's steel production losses continue to mount. Production losses are estimated at 300 million dollars a week. Wage losses are running close to 70 million dollars a week.

The strike, which began at Tuesday midnight, has idled some 500,000 members of the United Steelworkers and some 35,000 workers in allied industries, such as railroads, coal mines and transportation.

President Eisenhower and James P. Mitchell, secretary of labor, conferred on the situation in Washington yesterday. Details of the conference were not released. In Indianapolis, Sen. Vance Hartke (D-Ind.) charged that President Eisenhower should have tried harder to avert the steel strike.

"He could have called these people together," Hartke told newsmen Friday at the Young Democrats state convention. "He should have shown some leadership."

In Detroit, Walter P. Reuther, head of the United Auto Workers, pledged the UAW's organizational, moral and financial support to the Steelworkers in a telegram to USW President David J. McDonald.

Warren Is Home

The former Republican governor began a brief California vacation yesterday in Sacramento where he visited friends he had known while heading the state from 1942 to 1953, including Gov. Edmund G. Brown, a Democrat.

Churchill Says No

LONDON (AP) — Sir Winston Churchill was reported today to have turned down an American film company's plans to make a movie of his life.

The Daily Herald said the former prime minister rejected the proposal by Metro Goldwyn Mayer because he did not approve of the screen play. The paper said the film was to have starred either Orson Welles or Peter Ustinov as Churchill, who will be 85 next November.

Chickens Are Down

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The agricultural department reported today that the chicken population is going down.

Commercial hatcheries produced 1,992,840,000 chicks in June, 12 per cent below the production of a year earlier but 28 per cent above the 1953-57 average for the month.

The department said fewer hatches were expected in July than a year ago.

Sounds Better Now

BREVARD, N.C. (AP)—"What's stuffed in your instrument?" a Transylvania music camp instructor asked a student of the bass horn.

"Nothing," the boy replied, "I've been playing it all year and it's always sounded like this."

The teacher insisted the horn be washed out and, shortly thereafter, the red-faced boy returned holding a pair of girl's pants. Both agreed the horn now sounds better.

Vaccine Hopes High

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—A Soviet scientist yesterday said he had high hopes for a live polio vaccine developed in the Soviet Union.

Dr. Valentine D. Soloviev said about four million Soviet children have been vaccinated with the serum. He said it is too early to tell whether it is a success.

Queen To Yukon

Whistle Bait

LONG BEACH (AP)—For the fellows who like to whistle at girls, this seaside city—crowded with Miss Universe beauties—is the best spot to start.

Seventy-six lovelies from all over the world are on hand for the annual international beauty pageant. At least three more are expected to check in by Monday.

Whites Acquit Negro

PENSACOLA, Fla. (UPI)— An all-white jury yesterday found Negro Raymond Nash, 29, innocent of murder in the waterfront slaying of a prominent Pensacola white businessman.

The all-male jury deliberated only 45 minutes before freeing Nash in the January slaying of Maurice Finman, 52, owner of the Pensacola Rug and Shade Co. Finman was found shot to death in a deserted waterfront area near a Negro swimming pool the night of Jan. 31.

Fire Claims Life

KERNVILLE (UPI)— Complete control of the week-old lightning-caused Sequoia National Forest fire which has claimed one life is predicted for this afternoon.

The death occurred yesterday when James E. Bastady, a forest service trail crewman, died in a San Francisco hospital of burns suffered Sunday. He was burned along with Robert Knudsen of Kernville when they were trapped in a wind-caused flareup.

Knudsen remains in critical condition in a Bakersfield hospital.

School Vote Breather

SACRAMENTO (AP)—California will get a breather from school board elections until April, 1961. The only exceptions will be in new districts formed prior to next Feb. 1.

A bill signed by Gov. Brown provides that school elections shall be held every two year, and that board members shall be elected for four-year terms. The elections will be held in odd-numbered years. The old law provided for annual elections for three-year terms.

New UCLA Head

Dr. Vern O. Knudsen was appointed by the University of California regents yesterday to succeed Dr. Raymond B. Allen. Dr. Knudsen has been a member of the UCLA faculty since 1922.

Foreign Aid Fight Shifts To House

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress' annual battle over foreign aid spending shifted to the House today following conference committee approval of a $3,556,200,000 authorization measure.

The compromise bill, voted out late yesterday by House-Senate conferees, may reach the House floor as early as next Wednesday. The measure appeared certain of passage there and later in the Senate.

But the foreign aid fight was far from over.

Economy advocates hope to cut the program when congress considers another bill carrying the actual cash authorized by yesterday's measure.

Chairman Otto E. Passman (D-La.) of the House Foreign Aid Appropriations Subcommittee noted that in past years congress has appropriated "several hundred million dollars" less than the ceiling fixed by the authorization bill.

"We hope to keep the batting average up this year, too," Passman said today. "We expect to work the fat out of the bill and give the President what he needs, not what he wants."

Jensen Addresses Sausalito Rotary

The process of budgeting county expenditures is now keyed to "performance" rather than a fixed future amount, Donald A. Jensen, Marin County administrator, told the Sausalito Rotary Club this week.

As an illustration, Jensen explained that the budget might contemplate a certain number of sanitary inspections or a specified number of car miles, rather than setting up a fixed amount of money. He said it is a principle advocated by the Hoover report on federal procedures.

VISITING ROTARIAN—Walter J. Hamilton of San Carlos, governor of California's northwest Rotary district, will speak before the San Rafael Rotary Club Monday and confer with local officials on administration and service problems. The visiting official was elected governor of this district at Rotary's 50th annual convention in New York last June.

Fairfax Woman Sues For Hurts

Kathryn C. Hall, 58, of 42 Meadow way, Fairfax, seeks $75,000 damages in Marin Superior Court for injuries suffered last December when a car hit her in front of St. Rita's Church in Fairfax.

She filed the suit yesterday against Robert and Kathleen Harwood of 66 Vendola drive, Santa Venetia. The suit was originally filed in San Francisco, but it was transferred to the Marin court because both parties live in Marin County.

Mrs. Hall alleges she was walking in a pedestrian lane across Sir Francis Drake boulevard Dec. 7 when a car driven by Harwood struck her. She claims injuries to her pelvis, body, limbs, and head plus internal hurts and severe shock.

Dave Phillips Now Heads 20-30 Club

Dave Phillips has been installed as president of the San Rafael 20-30 Club.

Phillips and other officers were in stalled at a special "Hawaiian Night" meeting Saturday at Rickey's Rancho Rafael, where the club meets regularly at 7:30 p.m. Mondays.

Also installed were James Robichaud, first vice president; Don Miller, second vice president, and David Goetlieb, secretary. Vern Silva was re-installed as treasurer. Richard Peterson, Robert Kant, Goetlieb and Silva were installed as directors. Tom Cowles was named publicity chairman.

Play Commission Postpones Meet

Thursday's regular meeting of the Sausalito Recreation Commission was postponed until July 23 at 7:30 p.m., when members plan a field trip of the city's park and recreation facilities, according to Commission Chairman John Minton.

At that time, all of the city's present recreation facilities, including park sites, will be inspected in addition to school playgrounds. Minton said the commission also plans to inspect potential recreation locations.

Unions, Business Split On Merits Of House Labor Reform Measure

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Union and business leaders split today over relative merits of the House Labor Committee's newly completed labor reform bill.

Another battle looms Wednesday, when the bitterly divided committee is scheduled to take a formal vote on its version of the Senate-approved Kennedy-Ervin Bill.

The AFL-CIO and U.S. Chamber of Commerce withheld official comment on the House measure until they could examine it closely for possible hidden defects.

But union officials generally were agreeably surprised by the committee's action yesterday and said the House bill would be far "easier to live with" than the Senate measure.

Business spokesmen and conservative congressmen, however, contended that the 100-plus amendments adopted by the 30-member House group pulled the teeth from the Senate's proposals.

AFL-CIO sources said the elimination of criminal penalties—jail terms and fines—for union officials violating the "bill of rights" provisions in the House measure made it more acceptible to labor. Some also cheered the reduction in investigatory powers for the secretary of labor as provided in the House bill.

Rep. Edgar W. Heistand (R-Calif.) served notice he will make another effort Wednesday to get the House group to approve a tougher bill. If he carries out this threat, pro-labor Democrats planned to counter by proposing an even-milder substitute.

Publisher Succumbs

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A memorial service will be held next Tuesday for Eugene Meyer, chairman of the board of the Washington Post Co., who died yesterday afternoon at the age of 83.

Meyer died at George Washington University Hospital. He had been suffering from cardiovacular ailments and cancer.

Japanese Tea Ritual Has Nothing On My Barbecuing

THE COMPLICATED RITUAL of the ancient Japanese tea ceremony Cha-No-Yu has nothing on my formal rites of Smo-Kinyu-Rize in barbecuing.

They have been handed down in my family from one season to another ever since I first got spliters in my palms rubbing two sticks together.

None of your skimpy charcoal braziers for me—I'd as soon toast a hotdog over my cigarette lighter. Our hibachi is a primitive monstrosity of cement, bricks and mortar weighing two tons. Its aesthetic value lies in starting everything from scratch.

The scene is usually set on a Saturday or Sunday with a careful selection of props — empty milk cartons, old newspapers and contents of the wastebasket. These are scattered reverently in the blackened sacrificial pit over the remains of yesterweek's embers which I purposely had not removed, hoping a good stiff breeze would do it for me.

Next step consists of gathering other highly combustible material which has been undergoing a special drying-out process in various parts of the yard — leaves, twigs and tree prunings. It must be used sparingly at first, lest the fire whistles toot 551 and several helmeted gentlemen appear in answer to calls from nervous neighbors.

Third stage is the laying of luscious chunks of oak and bay which have seasoned through several summers. They are the meat and body of the pyrotechnics to follow.

Touch of the lucifer is usually applied according to what programs are on TV, what is to be cooked and when. It would never do to conflict with Perry Mason on Saturday night, nor Ed Sullivan on Sunday. The video is too heavy to move to the patio and the barbecue will never budge from its moorings except by a direct bomb hit.

The trick is to reduce the raw materials to glowing charcoal at just the right moment, supervising same before or after the program or during the commercials.

Preliminary rites are performed amid muttered incantations, coughing and billowing smoke which engulfs the patio and can be seen from Tamalpais. The purpose of this is to discourage yellow jackets and anyone else who may be thinking of joining us for dinner.

Sheets of flame follow almost immediately. They scorch everything within a five foot radius—walnut tree, climbing roses and eyebrows. I am not sure but I think this is caused by the poor draft in the chimney.

They don't last too long and usually go out entirely or burn the wood down to ashes before we are ready to cook. This requires repeating steps 2 and 3. Again the sparks fly as I try to make up for lost time.

"I haven't started yet," I yell back. "That was my thumb. I burned it on the hot poker."

It has now gotten dark and I am able to see that what I thought were ashes are live coals after all. If I wait for all the new wood to burn it means another hour so I push it to the sides of the pit where it smolders spiteful clouds of hydrocarbons.

My wife brings out the meat and I throw it on the grill. She says it is chicken but there is really no way of telling until the smoke clears away. By then it is so charred only its mother would recognize it.

That's to soak my burnt thumb.

SAUSALITO WATERFRONT makes a fine play yard for the children of the families who live in the 70 arks and houseboats on Richardson Bay. Their parents have taught, left to right, Gina, 5; Maria, 2 and Lynn Batchelder, 3½, the dangers of the water and the need for safety. And they have also stressed its beauties and the mystery of its changing moods. Batchelder and his wife find that they have more time for family life than many friends with greater investments.

Only One Poisonous Snake Found Within Marin County

By S. THOMPSON WALKER
Director

Marin county is fortunate in having only one poisonous snake. This is the Pacific rattlesnake which averages three feet in length. Like all the rattlesnakes it is easy to identify once you become familiar with its distinctive form.

Rattlesnakes have a broad, trangular or V-shaped head with a very definite thinner neck area behind the head. The tail will be blunt and stubby due to the presence of the rattles. The non-poisonous snakes will be seen to be much more streamlined. The head and neck are not as distinct and the tail is long and thin in normal specimens.

Snakes as a whole are beneficial and should be treated in an intelligent manner. Most of the snakes that will be observed in Marin County are harmless.

The California king snake is probably the most distinctive. Its black body with vivid white bands circling the upper part provides an easy mark of identification. This snake eats other snakes, rattlers included, which in itself should make it popular.

The other common snakes are the garter snakes and the gopher snake. The garter snakes are generally greenish-gray with two or three longitudinal stripes of a yellowish or red color. They feed on cold-blooded prey such as fish and frogs. The gopher snake is the one that is most commonly mistaken for the rattlesnake. They are generally stout, strong-bodied snakes with a yellowish body hue and brown blotches. They are very beneficial because they feed almost entirely on small rodents.

A good rule for everyone would be to leave all snakes alone if there is any question as to what kind they are, or what they do to aid man.

'Pushbutton War A Lot Of Hooey'

By WILLIAM L. EARLE

Joseph Cumming Thomas had a tougher time enlisting in the Army than he did becoming mayor of Larkspur.

It took him four tries before he was finally accepted for a military career in 1901. Thirty-nine years later, on his first try, he won election to the Larkspur City Council; and two years after that, his council colleagues elevated him to the office of mayor.

Thomas, now 80, enlisted as a buck private and rose to the rank of major during more than 30 years of soldiering. He served in the Army, the Philippine Constabulary, the famed Philippine Scouts and, once again, the Army.

In 1937, five years after retiring from the service, he bought a comfortable hillside house at 263 West Baltimore avenue, Larkspur, where he lives with his wife, Violet, and their son, James, 35. The Army interrupted his retirement (and his local political career) in 1942, recalling him to active duty for three years of World War II service in Utah.

AS AN OLD FOOTSOLDIER Major Thomas dismisses the idea of a "pushbutton" war as "a lot of hooey."

"You've got to have a man on the ground to take a piece of ground and hold it," he says with emphasis.

He thinks the U. S. eventually will be drawn into war with Russia, "although everyone is trying to head it off as long as possible. I don't know how we are going to avoid it."

The youngest of seven children, Thomas was born Jan. 22, 1879, in the village of Summerville, Ga., which later was to lose its identiy by annexing to Augusta. His father was a Richmond County judge.

Thomas attended Sewanee Military Academy and the University of the South, both at Sewanee, Tenn. The latter gave him what he calls "a liberal-classical education with a good dose of mathematics."

When the Spanish-American War broke out in 1898, Thomas and a group of college friends who had also been to military school decided to enlist as a volunteer battalion.

His age (19), plus a War Department announcement that entire units no longer were being accepted, brought Thomas his first rejection for military service.

"LATE IN the same year," he said, "a bunch of us slipped down to Tampa, Fla., hoping to enlist there and go to Cuba. But one morning they called out our names and told us to go back home. So, back to school we went."

His third rebuff came the next year, when he "dashed over to Atlanta" to enlist in the 7th U. S. Infantry, a Regular Army regiment. He was told he would need his parents' consent, and that's where he failed.

"Within several days my mother and my sister showed up at Ft. Oglethorpe and took me away by the ear," Thomas remembers with a grin. "But I didn't give up!"

YOUTHFUL EXUBERANCE paid off in 1901, when Thomas, then 22, was enlisted in Augusta for the 12th U. S. Cavalry, then being organized at Ft. Sam Houston, Tex.

He was a sergeant when his outfit relieved the 1st Cavalry two years later in the Philippine Islands.

The Philippine Insurrection was in progress, but Thomas said his regiment saw little fighting aside from "several raids and a few little troubles we had to go and straighten out."

Thomas was discharged at the end of his three-year enlistment, but he returned to the islands in 1905 after accepting appointment to the Philippine Constabulary, a military and civil force. Its enlisted men were Filipinos, while its officer corps was composed of U. S. Army officers and ex-officers.

Thomas entered the constabulary as a third lieutenant and rose to first lieutenant. At the start, he underwent six months of rigorous training at Santa Lucia, an old Spanish garrison in Manila.

"During those four years," he recalls, "we went up and down the islands fighting bands of insurrectionists. Much of it was rough hand-to-hand combat. I had a very close call one time when a bullet ricocheted and put a dent in my head."

It was during this period that Thomas gained lasting respect for the Filipino as a human fighting machine.

"I DON'T know of, and I've never heard of, any better fighters than the Filipinos," he said. "And I haven't seen a Filipino outfit I wouldn't be willing to serve with."

While on leave in the States in June of 1906, Thomas married the former Violet Sawyer of San Francisco, who was to share many more of his years in the Philippines. Their wedding was on a Friday the 13th, which Thomas says was "very lucky, because we are still married after 53 years."

In 1910, he resigned from the constabulary to accept appointment as a second lieutenant in the Philippine Scouts, a battle-hardened band of trouble shooters organized under the U. S. Army. Its enlisted men all were Filipinos.

Thomas participated in the Scouts' final 1915-16 expedition to Mindanao, "where some Moros got hostile and had to be calmed down."

"We wanted to go to France in 1917 and '18," he said, "but they froze us out and we sat in the Philippines all through the war.

WHEN THE SCOUTS became part of the Regular Army under a 1920 reorganization program, Thomas, then a major, was assigned to the 31st Infantry in Manila with the same rank. The next year, with other veterans of Philippine service, he was sent back to the States. By that time the Army was a skeleton organization.

Thomas' peacetime assignments took him to Camp Sherman, Ohio; Ft. Knox, Ky.; the command and general staff school at Ft. Leavenworth, Kan., and Ft. Douglas, Utah.

In 1927, he was sent to Montana as National Guard inspector for a two-week Guard encampment. The two weeks stretched into five years.

"They took kind of a liking to me," he recalls modestly, "and through the governor, I was detailed as senior instructor of the Montana National Guard, with headquarters at Helena."

By 1932, Thomas was ready to leave the Army. He retired that November.

"When I first enlisted for military service," he said, "I promised myself I would get out after 30 years while I was still young enough to settle down in civilian life. I had seen too many who stayed in too long. They couldn't organize their lives when they got out, and many died within a few years."

TWO YEARS after settling in Larkspur, ex-soldier Thomas opened a real estate and insurance office on Magnolia avenue. He is a charter member of the Larkspur Lions Club, organized in 1938.

Politics was "the last thing I was interested in" when some friends suggested he run for the city council in 1940. They were persistent and circulated a petition in his name before he finally yielded to pressure.

As it turned out, he thoroughly enjoyed being a councilman and, ultimately, mayor.

Thomas had always preferred Army troop duty to supply work. But he was destined to get a taste of the very thing he disliked. In September, 1942, the Army recalled him for service at a huge supply depot near Ogden, Utah.

FORCED TO resign from the council, he took the World War II assignment "much against my wishes, because I had hoped to go to a troop staging area near Seattle."

After the war he returned to Larkspur and, until two years ago, operated his insurance business from his Baltimore Canyon home. He never reopened the real estate office.

His second venture into Larkspur politics was as successful as the first. Elected to the council again in 1946, he became mayor three years later, retiring at the end of his term in 1950.

ONE ISSUE stands out in Thomas' mind as the highlight of his years on the council. It was the big fight over annexation to Larkspur of Greenbrae's Bon Air Apartment area. Annexation opponents finally took the battle to court, and lost.

Volunteer labor went into the building program, with a big assist from members of the Larkspur Grove of Druids. Lumber purchases were made in the late 1940s at surplus sales of Treasure Island stocks which the Navy had sold to private operators.

"There are some pretty heavy timbers in that building," Thomas said. "It would take TNT to blow them out of there."

Completed in 1949, the hall was built alongside the former Northwestern Pacific Railroad section foreman's house, which had served as Legion headquarters for two years before its conversion to a clubroom and kitchen.

Thomas was as determined to retire from the city council in 1950 as he had been to leave the Army in 1932. If 30 years in the military were enough for one man, so were two terms in the political arena.

"I'm like Calvin Coolidge," he says. "I don't believe a man should stay in public office too long."

Looking over his many mementoes of Philippine days, Thomas has no regrets about the course he charted for himself.

He's an Old Soldier now, but his handsome eyes still register the enthusiasm of the young Georgia boy who tried so desperately to enlist more than 60 years ago.

Ark Dwellers Cherish Water, Sky

They Choose To Trim Their Walls With Driftwood, Not Pushbuttons

By DOROTHY SLATTERY

There are not many places left to live in this maturing frontier of ours where a family can reside in close contact with the elements of nature. Not many places where its members can use the driftwood from the beaches, the stones of the soil to fashion comfortable homes as the California pioneers a hundred years ago were doing.

One such place is the Sausalito waterfront.

It's a sprawling labyrinth of jutting docks, decaying shipyards and sinking piers; the homestead of teredo eaten hulls, sleek racing yachts, sturdy fishing boats, powerful cruisers and 70 controversial homesites — 35 arks and 38 floating houseboats.

ALTHOUGH MOST of the residents have a creative approach to living and an artistic outlook, the houseboat colony is not entirely the "left bank Bohemia" it might be imagined to be. Instead one can find family after family realistically approaching the business of living . . . drawing the utmost from the beauties around them. As a whole they are not interested in the chrome plated, push-button existence that is mushrooming on the land near by.

Living on a houseboat makes a person depend on initiative and imagination. The Thad Thomases living at Marinship can vouch for this.

Thad and Beverly purchased an ammunition barge over a year ago, and without any prior experience in carpentry, set about converting it into a home. They walled the barge into rooms and when it came time to lay the roof, 30 neighbors pitched in and had a whale of a time finishing the exterior.

This "barn raising" attitude of the houseboat dwellers has been nicknamed the "Sausalito Waterfront Mutual Aid Association." Neighbors help one another construct walls, paint walls, move barges, the women make curtains for their friends.

JERRY WALTERS has been an active member of the "mutual aid association" for ten years. He transformed a 32 foot landing craft into a creative home with a 'butterfly roof' that, besides being visually unique cuts the Bay's severe winds. A sculptor with a studio close to his home, he summed up his feelings about houseboat living.

"You don't find creative life in a package . . . a home should express the people living in it."

On the south side of the ferry "San Rafael," Architect Donald Batchelder lives with his wife and three little girls, Gina 5, Lynn 3½, and Maria 2.

THE PARENTS don't worry about the girls playing in traffic. They have taught their children about the constant danger of the water that is the frontyard. The backyard, the Sausalito shore, is a wonderland of ships and space where Gina, Lynn and Maria can find a new jungle jim every day.

The Batchelders find they have more time for family life and the stimulating effects of the world around them than many persons with greater investments who can't manage the time.

A neighbor of the Batchelder family, Tashi Monroe is a vibrant woman who has a wide circle of friends including outstanding artists and show people.

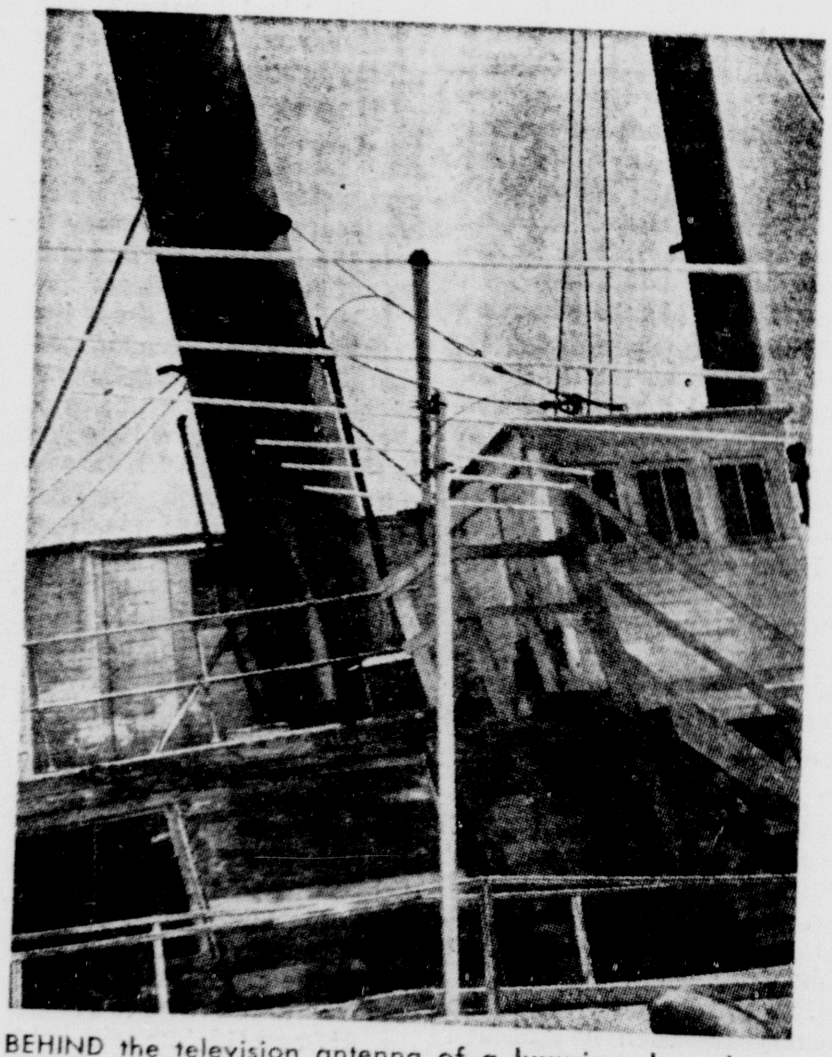
PAT AND BILL Black water the garden on their houseboat moored at Sausalito Yacht Harbor. The Blacks barbecue and sun bathe on the decks. The cabin-like structure on the deck is a skylight for the kitchen below. Bill uses bilges area for storage in place of a hall closet.



BEHIND the television antenna of a luxurious houseboat the old vessel "Lassen" is slowly sinking beneath the waters of Richardson Bay. Nearby families inhabit 35 arks and 38 floating houseboats, a controversial subject in Marin for several years. Living on these waterfront dwellings are artists, architects, teachers, craftsmen, students and San Francisco businessmen. Great believers in the do-it-yourself credo, the families enjoy building walls and furniture to make the barges home. Often the ark and barge neighbors pitch in to help on the big chores.

AT HOME in her houseboat Mrs. Thad Thomas relaxes, finds she is "learning patience from the tides." Beverly and Thad Thomas are in process of finishing walls and plan to replace oil drum stove with fireplace. Drum was set up temporarily for party. The houseboat, moored at Marinship, features diesel Air Force surplus stove. It lacks thermostat so Beverly cooks with a thermometer. The couple plans to finish their kitchen bar-top in mosaic.

SCULPTOR Barney West chisels a bit on a friend on the pier at Sausalito. The sculptor has his studio in the rolling hull of the Lassen, but at certain tides the water creeps up and forces him to evacuate for several hours.

Bay, Mrs. Monroe remembered last summer when her twin daughters, then 15, brought at least 10 teen-agers home with them every day.

"They swam, sailed, waterskied and played chess by the hour . . . the children have always had something to occupy them . . . maybe this is why there hasn't been any juvenile delinquency on the waterfront . . .," she said.

Mrs. Monroe, a third generation Sausalitan, moved from the hills to her houseboat in 1947.

Jean Varda, world famous painter, has transformed part of the ferryboat "Vallejo" into an imaginative studio-apartment. Using inexpensive materials, he has created a home filled with byzantine elegance. There is a stone fireplace inlaid with glass bottles wired for light, authentic sailor cubboards, a bar made from a discarded winch, and government surplus bunks the artist refers to as "Venetian Gothic." One of his latest projects is designing an ensign for his fellow houseboaters to fly. It will feature an eye centered in a field. The eye, Mr. Varda explained, is the symbol for vision. In explaining the development of his own apartment and those of other house boats, Mr. Varda compared the owner-builders to alchemists changing lead to gold.

All the Sausalito houseboats reflect the personalities and tastes of the people living aboard.

THE BLACKS, Bill and Pat, both high school teachers, transferred their living quarters from San Francisco to a 60 foot metal houseboat a year and a half ago. They wanted an individual home and were discouraged by the sameness of tract houses. Since they enjoy the outdoors they decided on the Sausalito waterfront.

The Blacks go boating, swimming and fishing in their spare time. They caught a leopard shark off of Belvedere brought it home and dined on shark steaks. They like to barbecue on their deck and enjoy all the advantages of suburban living.

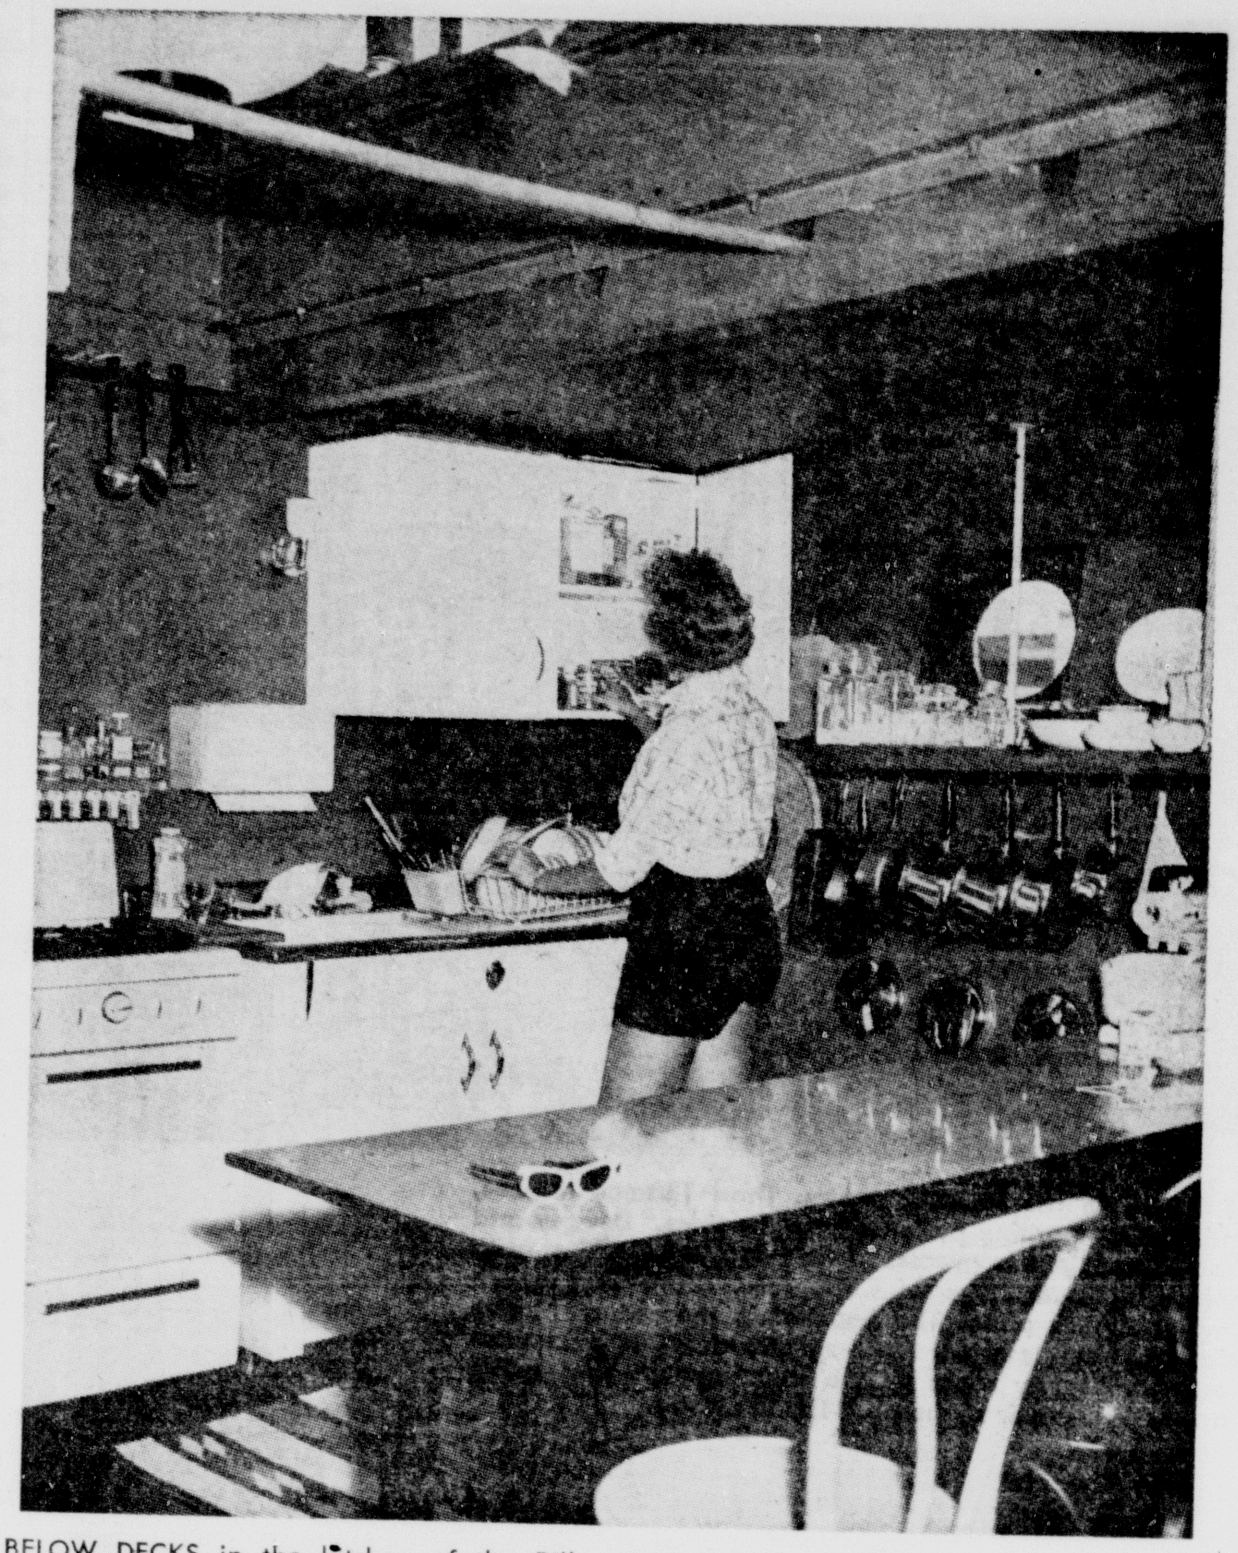
Pat has used her skill as a home economist in the decorating of her houseboat. She designed bamboo and beaded partitions that allow light and air to circulate throughout the three rooms. This decorative device prevents dampness and milldew from attacking the clothing and furniture.

Bill who is a jack of all trades finds the maintenance of a houseboat a full time job. As he aptly put it, "If you own a houseboat, you'd better take care of it or you'll sink."

Houseboaters enjoy a manner of living that has been slowly vanishing from the Bay Area. And they thrive on the proximity of the winds, the tides in their backyard.

Apply Coat First

Nail holes or other blemishes in Douglas fir finish lumber should be filled after the first coat of finishing material has been applied.



BELOW DECKS in the kitchen of the Bill Blacks, Mrs. Black reaches foods on hanging shelves. Her husband constructed shelves at right to hold dishes and to suspend pots and pans. As Pat Black says, every inch must be used on a houseboat. Oriental lanterns hang above the kitchen in the skylight. Her kitchen window is the porthole on her right. Mr. and Mrs. Black are teachers.

ROOF, BLUE WATERS, golden hills and light blue skies make up vista for the ark and houseboat dweller of Sausalito. Here Peggy Bashoff, a guest at a luxury houseboat docked at the Yacht Harbor, attempts to keep her mind on her book while taking the sun. Houseboat families find the water scene always changing and restful at the same time.

ASTONISHING—Lawrence Steese, a carpenter at Gate 5, Marinship looks in wonder at the small remains of a 90 foot barge that was eaten by teredos, a hazard to all boat owners. The boats must be hauled out of the water each year to be scraped and repainted with copper compound to discourage this marine pest. Steese enjoys life along the waterfront and finds the nearby sailboats the most graceful and yet useful things built by man.

WHAT SHALL I WEAR TODAY

When Sis gets up at morn,
And before she goes away,
We hear in a voice forlorn
What dress shall I wear today!

I don't like the blue,
I won't wear it!
I never did like the grey!
I don't like the tan,
I can't bear it!
What dress shall I wear today.

Now Sis is on vacation
With nothing to do but play,
And we miss the old exclamation,
What dress shall I wear today!

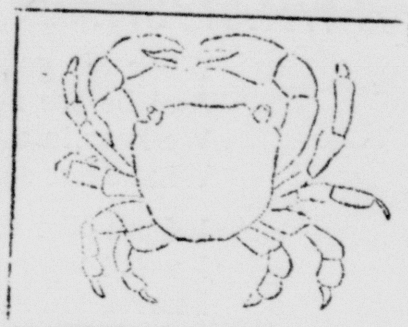
One of the nicest things about wood paneled walls is that so much can be hidden behind them. Step into a lovely, contemporary home and note the profusion of prestige wood paneling, often west coast hemlock or western red cedar, and then try pushing lightly against the wall paneling. Oftentimes, it will open out to reveal linen closets, a dining room buffet, or even laundry equipment.



STRIPED SHORE CRAB (Pachygraphsus crassipes — The Striped Shore Crab or Rock Crab is the most common crab along the California coast. It may be seen scurrying among the rocks, running sideways over the sand, or gathered about a dead fish. It can remain out of water for a considerable time. Stripes and markings vary from red to green to dark purple, and the body may be as much as 1¾ in. across. The female crab carries the eggs about attached to her body. After hatching, they go through a series of changes before transforming into miniatures of the adult. Thereafter crabs cast off their hard covering at intervals, then grow considerably before the new covering hardens. (From "Out-of-Doors in Marin, copyrighted by M. F. Austin.)

Life By Transfusion

Rare Disease Of Bone Marrow Creates Shortage Of Red Cells

By KAY NOAH

Living on borrowed blood since 1954 is Mrs. Ann (J.L.) Winkelman of San Anselmo. She has a rare disease called myelofibrosis which means that her bone marrow is so affected that red cells are not being produced.

No cause has definitely been established for this disease which is so rare that there are no reliable statistics to set a definite pattern. Mrs. Winkelman must face the fact that for the rest of her life, unless some miracle cure is discovered, she will be kept alive through blood replacement. The cells she makes are not as strong as normal red cells and are destroyed faster in the liver and spleen.

MRS. WINKELMAN was held prisoner by the Japanese during World War II, as was her husband although they were in different camps. Her two children were interned with her during her four-year imprisonment. The daughter is now a doctor, Dr. June Summers DeVinney who is a fellow in psychiatry at Stanford, and her son, Wallen Summers, is second of his class at West Point when he graduated in 1957.

Mrs. Winkelman, who is in her late 50s, first became aware of this disease when she came for a yearly checkup in 1954. At first her red count did not fall so far that transfusions were necessary. The detective work on her blood was made by the Donner Radiation Laboratory in Berkeley, who determined exactly how much blood was being made and destroyed in Mrs. Winkelman's body.

The actual transfusions were started in 1956 and it was soon discovered that she required about two units of blood transfusions per month given by her physician, at Marin General Hospital, to maintain a normal blood count. During that year she took six weeks off and went on a trip to Tahiti. At that time her blood was down to 40 per cent of the normal body capacity. When she came back her blood count was much less and since that time she has used up 86 units of blood which were spread over the period of the past three years.

BY MID 1958 there was such a breakdown in her blood cells that it was necessary to administer cortisone - like drugs to block the rate of cell destruction. Because some of the side effects were bad for Mrs. Winkelman, this treatment was stopped to determine the system's general reaction. However, without cortisone, the rate of red blood cell destruction became so rapid that transfusion of two units of blood did not elevate her blood count.

Ten transfusions were required in one week to return the blood to normal and she had to be put back on cortisone.

The latest development is blood transfusions will be of great help to Mrs. Winkelman. She began to have severe reactions with fever to 104 degrees due to antibodies she had developed against the donor's white blood cells. She will have the new units of blood put out by the Irwin Memorial Blood Bank.

It is called "white cell free, washed red cell mass." This blood is processed by washing the cells of the donor's blood with a saline solution and centrifuging the blood. The white cells rise to the top and then can be siphoned off so only the whole red cells remain and are then used to replace blood in the patient. Some of the red cells in the donor's blood are also lost in the process and, in fact, it takes 1½ to 2 units of the new blood to equal the former whole blood when given in transfusion.

Naturally the supply of blood that Mrs. Winkelman will receive is a terrific drain on the financial resources and while there have been many voluntary donations from individuals and friends, members of the Marin County Real Estate Board, inasmuch as Mrs. Winkelman served as a real estate salesman for many years here in the county, and from employees of Schoonmaker Co. of Sausalito where her husband is also an employe, she has been able to afford using the blood. A permanent account setup for Mrs. Winkelman is the aim of Walter Jacobs, who is in charge of blood bank activities at Marin General Hospital for the Irwin Memorial Blood Bank.

Changing San Rafael Canal

Hay Barges Plied Its Waters To Load At D Street Wharves

The San Rafael Canal dates back to the days when hay was what made the wheels of transportation go 'round. Seventy years later, one of its functions still is as a terminal for transportation fuel — now petroleum products.

A few are still around who remember when hay barges chugged up San Rafael Creek to wharves located roughly where the 711 D Street medical center now stands. Nearby, fashionable San Rafael Baths was a summer mecca for swimmers.

Boating on the creek-canal has always been in vogue. Since rowboats were the rage, San Rafael Canal has become anchorage to some 1,000 boats of 18 feet or over, for a taxable value of some $5 millions.

Records on when the canal first was dug are hazy. Originally it followed the course of San Rafael creek, winding westward along what is now Highway 101, under what is now Mac Department Store. Francisco boulevard was a toll road and the hay barges would wend across the marsh to tie up at the D street wharves, according to Clifford Cornwall of the San Rafael City Clerk's office. Himself a newcomer (1924), Cornwall has gathered notes from his father-in-law, Henry Jepson.

Maps of 1899 show the canal in more or less its present course. Dredging was done by the U.S. Corps of Engineers.

THE PROPERTY of the canal and its borders, according to Cornwall, did not come into the City of San Rafael's ownership, however, until 1920. Belatedly recorded were deeds for the property granted to the city by the James L. Flood, Cheda and San Rafael Development Co. interests, among others. Originally the property was owned by railroad baron William Coleman.

At that time, most of the merchandise sold in Marin stores arrived by express freight service barge from San Francisco, to be unloaded at the Irwin Street wharf.

THE BIG changes in the canal, however, have come in the past 10 years. Photos of only 10 years ago show bleak banks on the canal. Today, the same stretches are bordered by commercial yacht anchorages, two yacht clubs, yacht sales service establishments, marina-type housing developments and oil storage facilities One of the big reasons for the canal's being is that it allows shipment of inflammable cargo by tanker directly from the refineries.

Canal development means a big boost to the tax base. Consider the yacht clubs, for instance, with about 200 boats apiece. One popular make of yacht retails at $30,000. Marin Vista, first of several such developments, has 30 units estimated at $1½ million. Going up across the canal are Newport Beach, to boast 35 homes of like caliber and an apartment development where value will be even greater per square foot.

In anticipation of commercial development, the East San Rafael Assessment district was formed and $1,300,000 worth of utilities and roads installed over 122 acres. The pressure of residential development, however, has caused a change of plans.

San Rafael Canal-70 Years Growth

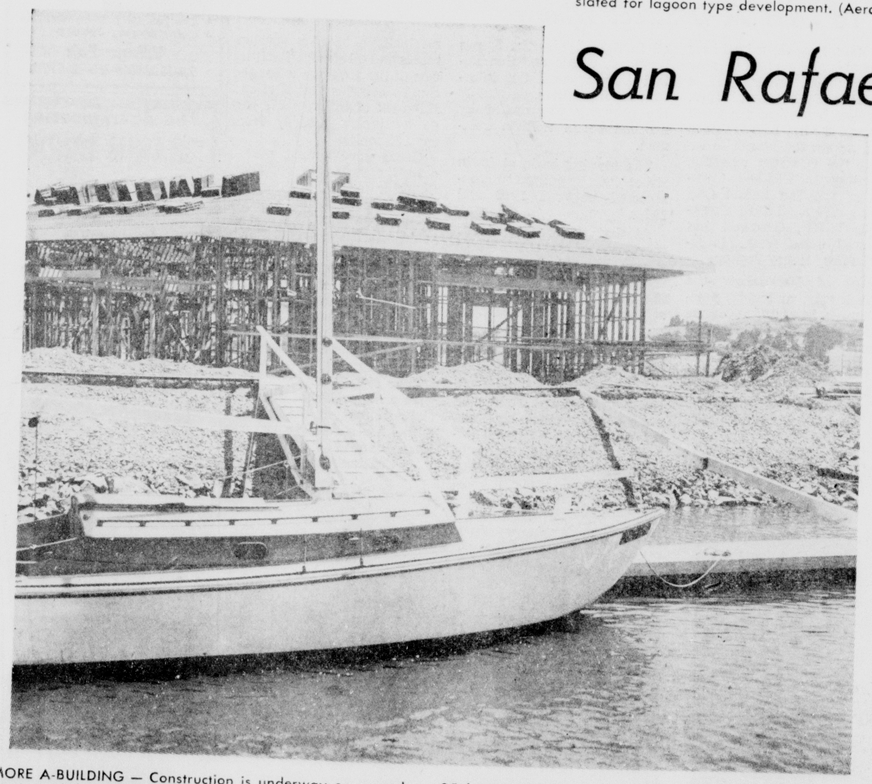
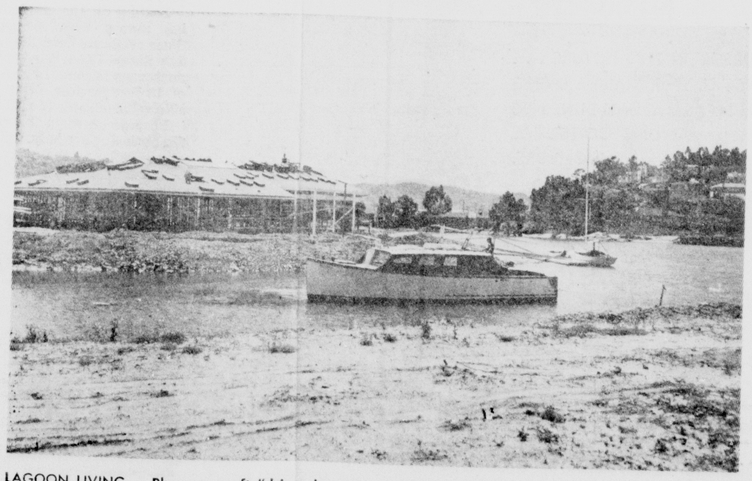
THE CANAL'S small-craft advantages are the same as those for marina-type home development: proximity to San Francisco, equi-distance to both Carquinez Straits and the Golden Gate, protected anchorage, guaranteed depth of channel (8 feet below mean low water) and moderate tide fluctuation (maximum, 7 feet; minimum, 3 feet).

Growth has brought regulation. San Rafael ordinances restrict building beyond a certain line. Boats are limited to speeds of 5 miles per hour within 200 feet of any moored vessel.

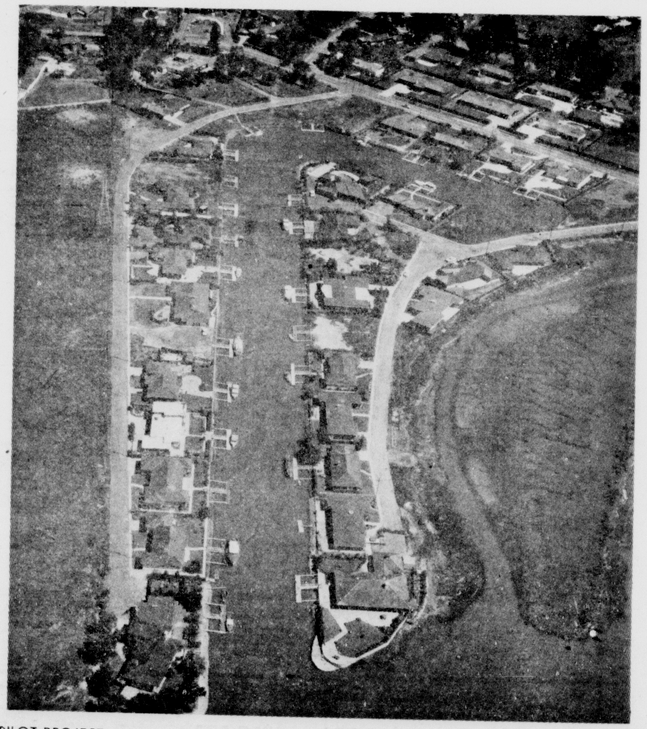
Not only the canal proper, but the bay outside its mouth is either earmarked for development or is already enjoying it.



MORE A-BUILDING — Construction is underway on second marina-type development (Newport Beach) which will add 35 homes. Anxious owner of this one already has boat anchored at float.



LAGOON LIVING — Pleasure craft "drives home" after cruise on bay. Canal affords homeside anchorage with 20 minutes' cruising time of Marin Islands.



PILOT PROJECT—First marina-type development on San Rafael Canal is Marina Vista, which couples dry land access to back-door boating. Mud banks of canal are "buildable," but do not make good beach. Anchorages are protected from high winds and high seas. Channel depth of 7 feet takes all except largest boats.

Music & Drama

NADINE CONNER, opera and concert soprano, will replace Elisabeth Schwarzkopf, who cancelled her summer concert tour because of illness. Miss Conner has long been a star at the "Met" in New York.

Nadine Conner Here To Sing Tomrrow

The petite soprano star, Nadine Conner of the Metropolitan Opera, who has sung for concert, radio and TV audiences all over the country, will make her first appearance here under Marin Music Chest auspices, tomorrow afternoon. The concert will begin at 3 o'clock in Forest Meadows, Dominican College, San Rafael.

Miss Conner is replacing Elisabeth Schwarzkopf, who, because of illness has cancelled all summer engagements.

Miss Conner has long been a favorite at the "Met." She was recently chosen to sing the leading feminine role in the Metropolitan Opera's much heralded revival of Debussy's "Pelleas et Melisande."

In recital and as soloist with leading symphony orchestras, Miss Conner has received cross-country acclaim in this country, Canada, Hawaii and the West Indies. She visited Europe for the first time in the summer of 1953 where she was guest star at the Holland Festival, singing in six performances the role of Susanna in "Figaro."

The following summer she sang in the first opera performances at the University of Puerto Rico in San Juan.

Programmed for tomorrow afternoon is "Die Nachtigall" and "Im Zimmer" by Alban Berg; two songs by Richard Strauss, "Winterweihe and Zueignung; three operatic arias, "Gavotte" from Massenet's "Manon"; "Tanto Amore Segreto" and "Tu Che Di Gel Sie Cinta" from Puccini's "Turandot"; two songs by Joseph Canteloube, "Mulurous Qu'o Uno Fenno" and "Bailero"; two songs by Fernando Obradors, "Del Cabello Mas Sutil" and "El Vito"; and a group of songs by Dvorak, "Free Is The Gypsy," "Songs My Mother Taught Me," "Play Gypsy," and aria: "Song To The Moon" from "Russalka."

Galen Lurwick will be at the piano. Gates of Forest Meadows open at 1:30 o'clock and there are no reserved seats.

He is to portray a quixotic French general in "L'Hurluberlu" ("The Scatter-Brain") by Jean Anouilh.

As daring as staking a home stead, riskier than the gambling tables of the Mother Lode, with bigger returns than most of the early day prospectors ever realized. Such is the suspense in one of America's most exciting pioneer episodes — the search for oil.

From its geologic jacket design (enough to intrigue the scientific) the book moves swiftly into the real-life saga which matches any of Wyatt Earp's escapades for suspense.

The story begins 100 years ago, when a bearded man in a stovepipe hat sat on a log listing to the sound of an iron tool pounding a hole through rock. Thus Edwin L. Drake saw waiting for the opening of a saga which reached its pitch in the heart of Texas and Oklahoma in the 1930's.

Among those who rose and fell with fantastic deals was persistent Dad Joiner, who would patiently gather hosts of small stockholders to drill another dream. It was one well drilled just to keep from disappointing a widow that turned his luck — well almost. Lawsuits were filled faster than the derricks went up. A kindly judge prevented his unbelievable good fortune from going into receivership.

The heroes of the oil story are not all gamblers. Earnest young scientists played a key role.

"Prospecting is like gin rummy," remarked Everette DeGolyear, "Luck enough will win but not skill alone . . ."

Live From The Devil, by Wyatt Blassingame; Doubleday; 488 pp., $4.50.

A fine quick reading novel about an older Florida — the Florida of cattle in the 1800's. Told with sympathy and pace by Wyatt Blassingame, more well-known as a short story writer than novelist.

Blassingame sets up a grab-bag full of strong and forceful characters, places them against a backdrop of a rough frontier, laces in a storm, a king sized knife-and-gun fight. He tosses in a wise madam and tops off the whole affair wtih a raging flood scene that is a hummer — to bring about a book that opens up a new vista and insight into Florida.

It is a rare treat to read a historical novel so well written. The author has done a fine job of using recent historic events, places and people in weaving a dramatic, hard-hitting story of the Jewish people in their struggle to establish their own nation, Israel.

Any person who has warm feelings towards his fellow man will surely enjoy this work and have those feelings enhanced.

Without rancor and with a stubborn, honest eye, the author delineates the heroic struggle the pint-sized Haganah and Maccabee armies stage in resisting the enemies of the Arab world on all of their borders and the back-stabbing of the British within those borders.

Interwoven with the never dull, often exciting actual history is the tender, robust love story of two strong personalities Ari Ben Cannon and Kitty Fremont, an attractive American widow and nurse.

CONVERSATIONS WITH IGOR STRAVINSKY, by Igor Stravinsky and Robert Craft; Doubleday & Co.; 162 pp., $4.00.

Casual, everyday observations characterize the memoirs of Stravinsky — known by most as the greatest composer of our time. Stravinsky's recollections include his association with the colorful Rachmaninoff:

"He was a 6½ ft. tall scowl. — an awesome man."

Of Claude Debussy — "the musicians of my generation and I myself owe the most to Debussy."

Robert Craft, as the questioner, has achieved perfect liason between composer — musician and the layman, permitting the latter to enjoy a thorough understanding of an artistic mind coupled with actual experience and unusual candor.

The student will find Conversations a valuable reference. It belongs in every library — a brilliant condensation of Stravinsky's life in the world of music, accented by a humor seldom found in this kind of reading.

The struggles and aspirations of a young pianist are depicted in dull style. Russia's unanimous approval of Cliburn's achievements in the world of music are outlined. The story itself, is a much-told tale of American ingenuity and talent with the ultimate rise to success.

STEREO HI-FI

By C. J. Catania

FOUR-TRACK TAPE. In accordance with our practice of keeping the public informed of the latest developments in the stereo Hi-Fi field, we will bring you up to date on the pre-recorded stereo tape developments.

With the advent of the stereo disc, the pre-recorded stereo tape sales, because of their comparative high price, took a slump. During the 18-month slump, some of the producers of pre-recorded tape even discontinued the release of new tapes. During this slump period, there has been much talk about the 4-track tapes. The tape recorder manufacturers and the pre-recorded tape producers have been in a quandary as to a standard speed and type of taped music holder, standard reels or cartridges.

As early as May 1958, RCA displayed a new cartridge-loaded tape player at one of the audio shows. It incorporated an automatically loaded cartridge-type tape spool that had 4 tracks and used the 3¾ inches per second speed. As yet, these recorders have not been placed on the market.

The manufacturers and connoisseurs of true high fidelity sound have been against the 3¾ ips speed because it down-grades the quality of the recorded material. The use of the slower 3¾ ips speed coupled with the four tracks of recorded material on a ¼" wide standard tape when played back on conventional home-type recorders will not produce sound with as much fidelity as a good stereo disc.

The Magnetic Recording Industry Association, after much study, has recommended and backed the use of FOUR-TRACK, 7½ ips, REEL TO REEL prerecorded stereo tape. According to Mr. Herbert Brown, newly-elected president of MRIA, this recommendation is based on the fact that 7½ ips maintains high fidelity quality and the four track system, while it does drop signal to noise ratio 3 decibels, a barely perceptible noise change, doubles the amount of playing time on the reel. This brings the cost of tape, minute for minute, close to the price range of the stereo disc.

Many of the producers of pre-recorded tape have enthusiastically announced that they are coming back with complete 7½ ips 4-track libraries and have already started production.

Visit Catania Sound for a demonstration of these new 4-track 7½ ips tapes. Already we have several large shipments on the way. To reduce our inventory of the standard stereo tapes we are offering large savings. Come in now and stock up.

Summer Is Time To Take Stock Of What's In Garden

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

Midsummer, when those who aren't prepared to be profligate with water are likely to be unhappy about the lawn, when the sun rides high and hot, is a good time for taking stock of the garden.

So far — and for reasons which I cannot quite understand—my garden has been peculiarly free of slugs this year.

It was late June before I spotted by first one, and the poison bait I usually use to dispatch them has remained on the shelf all season. However, I dusted and sprayed with greater devotion to schedule than usual this year and I wonder if some of these new chemical formulae have some effect on those destructive, slimy pests.

On the other hand. I've never had a finer nor more persistent assortment of aphids. Each spraying—and I stuck to rotonone and nicotine sulphate—dispatched them, but in a short time a new batch were on everything from their beloved lupines and roses to the mint.

Perennials are such satisfactory, work-saving plants that sometimes there is a temptation to overlook some of the delightful but more demanding annuals and biennials — particularly the biennials. But my canterbury bells this year were such a joy, lasted so long, and made such a lively centerpiece when some stems were cut, that I shall never be without them again.

My favorite biennial—forget-me-not — is easier to handle: I just shake the seed of this year's plants where I want bloom next year and then am careful about my weeding in those spots.

A reader, harking to my complaint about the unsightliness of withering tulips, writes that Dutch tulip growers handle the problem by digging the bulbs when they have finished blooming and heeling bunches of them in the ground in an unobtrusive spot where they may mature for next year's bloom.

This is a fine space-saving idea—but one of the principal advantages of tulips is that you don't have to dig them up and replant them every year — a tiring job if you have enough tulips to make a showing.

CHECKLIST GARDENER'S

- Rumpled growth and buds that "blast" and never open properly usually a sure sign of thrips in roses. Use a spray that is recommended for the critters.
- It's not too late for that first feeding of camellias, azaleas and other acid-loving plants, but time's a wasting. Use the special acid-type fertilizers that are available at your C.A.N. nursery.
- Keep an eye to Tuberous Begonias for the first sign of mildew as June advances. If it shows up, use a spray that's especially prepared for begonias.
- Bedding plants for late summer color should go in now. Zinnias top the list, but don't plant them unless you can give them a warm, sunny location.
- Mulch around moisture-loving plants with peat or steer manure. Don't skimp. Put a layer two to three inches thick around each shrub to conserve moisture in dry summer weather.

Rose Villains Sneak Up Stem And Make Meal Unless Sprayed

Despite a popular notion that growing roses is a difficult task, a few simple rules can assure every gardener of healthy beautiful roses.

Roses must have care if the gardener wants healthy plants and spotless blooms. This care is not difficult if you follow a regular program of spraying, feeding and watering.

Spraying or dusting is first on the list so that destructive insect pests and foliage spoiling diseases are controlled and prevented.

The first insects to be seen on roses early in the season are aphids and thrips. Aphids are easily recognized as small, soft bodied insects greenish, pinkish or reddish in color. Thrips are tiny, slender and hairy . . . yellowish, brownish or greenish in color. When left unmolested they will defoliate and even destroy a complete rose bush. Aphids and thrips are easily kept under control by weekly applications of a nicotine sulphate solution.

DUSTING OR spray mixtures both have been effective when aphids and thrips are a nuisance. To be effective, the spray or dust should contact the insect therefore making it important that both surfaces of the leaf be covered by the spray or dust. Nicotine sulphate solutions also kill the insects with their fumes in a "gassing" type action.

Chewing insects, of which the Japanese Beetle is the most common, must be controlled constantly with a form of insecticide that serves as a stomach poison to the insect. All purpose rose dusts or sprays containing DDT or Malathion are most effective for this type of control.

Where spider mites are a problem, Malathion is recommended. These tiny insects are only about 1/50 of an inch long but can be most destructive since they suck leaf juices from the undersurfaces of the leaves where they spin their webs.

Black spot is probably the most serious of all rose diseases since it spreads rapidly and can defoliate a plant in only a few days. Once Black Spot gets underway it cannot be cured. However, Black Spot can be prevented if the gardener dusts regularly with a rose leaf floral dust. Proper insect control is also necessary to prevent Black Spot.

Infested leaves should be removed and burned to prevent the further spread of insects or diseases.

THE NEXT step toward healthier more beautiful roses is proper feeding. An excellent fertilizing formula is one with a ratio of 4-12-4. It has enough nitrogen and potash for growth, and ample phosphorous for flowering. When applying this fertilizer, work it well into the soil with a hand cultivator and water it in.

Use a handful of fertilizer to a plant, spreading around in a thin layer about 6 inches from the stems. This fertilizing should be repeated once or twice a month throughout the summer.

PROPER watering does four important things. It prevents the plant from wilting; it enables the soil organisms to break down organic matter into simpler forms so that they are available to the plant; it helps the soil acids to break down the insoluble mineral compounds; and replaces the water removed from the plant by transpiration.

Soak your soil with water once each week, giving the soil enough water to reach down into the root area. If watering in the evening, try to keep water off the foliage to prevent mildew.

A mulch will enable you to keep your watering down to a minimum.

Regular care of your roses including spraying, feeding and watering will pay dividends for you this summer with more beautiful, healthier roses.

Do-It-Yourself

Repeating Materials Outside Gives House Expanded Effect

Wall to wall living is disappearing from today's well-designed homes. Both custom and tract homes are making use of the indoor-outdoor living concept, which has had several important effects on home design and the use of building materials.

Glass walls and sliding glass doors are used to open up the inside of the house, to bring the garden—or at least the view of it — into the home. Protected patio areas are placed adjacent to the house and used as outdoor living rooms.

But it takes more than a patio and a sliding door to achieve the full value and comfort of the indoor-outdoor living concept. Architects and designers attempt to integrate indoor and outdoor areas by the skillful use of structural elements.

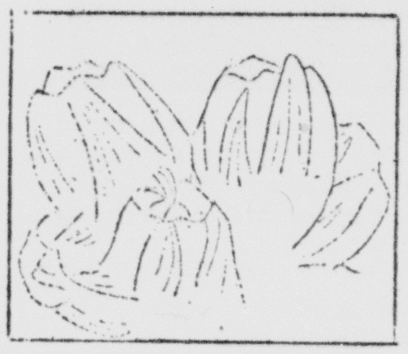
In other words, a good home design should not try to bring the outdoors inside, and vice versa, unless it belongs there. One way to make it belong is by the repetition of building materials and patterns.

If the exterior siding material is redwood applied in a vertical pattern, for example, use vertical paneling in the living room or family room areas to help integrate the indoors with the outdoors. Some designers make an interior wall appear to extend outside the house by the use of a baffle which repeats the wood paneling pattern. A baffle also may make the exterior of a house appear large. It may also serve as a parital enclosure for garden or patio area.

Redwood patio decks are used to give the patio area a feeling of belonging to the house (and they inhibit glare from the summer sun). A wood deck blends also with garden settings, acting as a bridge between indoor and outdoor living areas of the home.

The indoor-outdoor concept has also had its effect on furnishings. Attractively styled outdoor furniture can be kept outdoors during the mild days of spring and summer, and moved into the family room at night or during the cold and wet seasons.

Still in its early period of development, the indoor-outdoor concept is attempting to treat house and garden not as two separate and distinct areas, but as two parts of one integrated area that just happen to have a wall in between.



ACORN BARNACLE (Balanus sp.)—These gray-white, sessile (without a stalk) barnacles encrust rocks, piles, and floating wood, and are often found on the shells or hard, tough outer covering of living animals. Most of them are not more than an inch across. Sometimes you may see an old crab that has many barnacles on his shell. Barnacles do not injure their support, but they may cover a ship's bottom to the point where its speed is slowed unless they are scraped off. (From Out-of-Doors in Marin, copyrighted by M. F. Austin.)

Fence For Privacy

When you live too close to the street for comfort, try erecting a tall fence to regain your privacy. Two-by-ten inch boards of western red cedar spaced two inches apart and set diagonally within a heavy frame break vision from both directions, while creating an interesting pattern and allowing breezes to pass through. Lovely, intimate courtyard can be created between fence and house.

Automatic Spray

A new automatic device dispenses insecticide spray automatically to keep the home free of flies, mosquitoes and gnats. The non-toxic insecticide is said to be harmless to adults, children and pets, and is sprayed into the air at regular 15-minute intervals.

Move All Projects To Outdoor Shop

But you can have your cake and eat it too with an outdoor workshop. Pick a convenient open spot in the back yard, gather your supplies and go to work.

Take, for instance, a four-door dresser. In every repainting job, and particularly when it involves children, remove the old paint first.

A new wash-away paint remover washes off paint, enamel, lacquer and varnish with ordinary water. No scraping or sanding surfaces.

Any fast-drying gloss enamel will give an attractive appearance and resistance to stains and dirt.

Another good outdoor workshop project is a lamp. Four wooden blocks of different sizes will do for base and stand. Try sizes of 5, 4, 3 and 2 inches on all sides.

Paint blocks in the same color as the dresser drawers if you're doing both jobs. Top them off with a shade that matches the body of the dresser.

Drill holes through the centers of the blocks and attach the lamp to them with a pipe. Drill another hole through the back of a bottom block for the wire. Align the blocks on one another, or angle them for a lighter playroom effect.

In the child's room you can paint a river of blue water with green banks, where a boy can launch his fleet on rainy days. Or you can paint stenciled nursery designs on his walls—or spatterdash the floor for a gay circus effect.

Use paint with no harmful ingredients and be sure it is washable.

Set Of Small Precautions Keeps A Power Mower Safe

Every homeowner wants an attractive lawn. This year nearbly 12 million persons will use power mowers to cut down work in keeping grass neat and healthy.

But the man behind the mower needs to think before put-putting around the yard. He could get hurt.

Keep the lawn free of stones, debris or any hard objects. These damage the cutting blade and may be thrown by the blade with dangerous force, Power Products experts warn.

Never operate the mower unless all safety guards are in place. Keep hands and feet away from the blades or other moving parts.

Fuel should be stored and handled only in clean, safe metal containers. For two-cycle engines using premixed fuel, the easiest and best plan is to have the oil and gasoline mixed right at the filling station, using the force of the pump to get a good mix.

Always disconnect the spark plug wire before working on the engine or cutting blade. This will prevent an accidental start in case the flywheel magneto is revolved.

To operate at top efficiency, the mower should be kept clean and free of grass clippings and spilled gasoline or oil. Use an old whisk broom or stiff brush.

Galloping Grass Stopped By Edge

A plastic lawn edging has been developed to keep lawn borders straight. It halts ambitious greenery from invading the flower bed and spilling over sidewalks and driveways.

Four inches deep, the under ground portion is corrugated to graps the dirt.

Being flexible, it can be turned and twisted into various shapes to create designs in the gardens.

TV's Best Can't Outdraw This Fan

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Wyatt Earp, Paladin and other television gunslingers don't know it — but they are regularly beaten to the draw by a tall-in-the-arm-chair varmint they have never seen.

Getting the drop on TV's best gunfighters is a hobby of Gordon Clark, a lanky 27-year old boat builder. And he never leaves his living room TV set.

About a year ago when Western fan Clark decided to test just how quick television's cowpokes really are. He bought a colt .44, loaded it with blanks and lashed it to his leg. Then he tuned in "Gunsmoke" and waited for Marshal Dillon to make his play.

"DILLON'S the fastest," said Clark, who since that first test has bitten the carpet many time before the marshal's whip-quick draw.

Clark's special clay pigeon is Paladin, the erudite knight errant of "Have Gun, Will Travel."

"I never worry about paladin with either his .44 or Derringer," Clark said. "You always know a second before he draws."

"HE'S NEVER beaten me with that screwy Mary's Leg," said Clark with a practiced curl of the lip. "I can't imagine any real gunfighter using a weapon like that."

KRON Will Cover Fashions In Color

Fall fashions designed and manufactured in the Bay Area will be televised in color on two special 30 minute shows to be seen next Thursday and Friday over KRON-TV (Channel 4). Both programs will be aired from 12:30 to 1 p.m.

Both will be remote telecasts from Union Square, where the San Francisco Fashion Industries Manufacturers and Wholesalers Assn. will be staging its fifth annual display of complete fall lines in America's only outdoor fashion preview.

Vaughn Monroe will be master of ceremonies. Special guests will be Ben Alexander, co-star of the "Dragnet" series, and Jeanne Cagney, currently fashion commentator of "Queen for a Day."

Union Square will discard its traditional appearance for this undertaking as a giant-size replica television set will be erected. This will provide dramatic staging for the appearance of the models as well as concealing necessary dressing rooms in its interior.

More than 30 professional models will step out of the giant TV set and make their way along a 345-foot runway.

MAPING THE CASE—Jack Webb as Lt. Joe Friday and Ben Alexander as Sgt. Frank Smith continue to track down Los Angeles lawbreakers on the "Dragnet" series, now scheduled on Sunday night on KRON-TV (Channel 4).
